"About The Size Of It."

"Senator Quay said: 'I place no confidence in the alleged disaffection of Wallace Democrats, and that as a confidence many of them would vote for Delamater. My experience with our Democratic friends is that when election day comes around they forget the differences and vote the ticket straight. And this the Democratic newspapers are quoting with some satisfaction. But there is no real cause for satisfaction in it. There might be comfort and the promise of victory in it if it had been said of a Democratic candidate, in Georgia or Alabama, or some other states where Democrats were at least accustomed to counting a majority. But in Pennsylvania, where Republicans have 80,000 majority upon a full poll, there is no satisfaction, particularly when it is coupled with that other thing, which Senator Quay said at the same time: 'We do not base our claims for Delamater's majority upon anything so delusive as a Democratic disaffection with their regularly nominated ticket, but upon the fact that our candidate for governor will grow in favor as the campaign progresses, and will receive the Republican vote.'"

Take these two statements together and they properly represent the political situation. The Wallace Democrats generally will vote for Pattison, though the dose will be everything but palatable, while the Republicans will give Delamater an earnest, hearty and growingly enthusiastic support and a full party vote, with a majority that will sizzle the hair of the youthful ex-governor. And don't you forget it."

The Best Form of Punishment.

The reports of the "electrocution" of Kemmler pretty generally agree that the attempt to reach a higher state of civilization in killing off murderers is a good deal of a failure. Some of the reports do not hesitate to declare the whole thing barbarous. There is a loud demand for the repeal of the law and a return to the old time execution by the rope. The details of the legal murder have horrified the sensitive and do not clear up the mystery of whether Kemmler was rendered unconscious on the instant that the electric bolt touched him or whether or he was made to suffer intensely from the various applications. That several minutes were required to produce death is not disputed, but opinions differ whether suffering accompanied the death struggles, and two distinct opinions will continue to be held on that point.

Men have been killed by electric light wires instantly, but this first attempt to kill by science was a bungling effort and unsatisfactory in its results. As far as Kemmler himself is concerned little sympathy need be wasted on him. He murdered his victim in a most atrocious way, and when he was hacking her in such a gasty manner there was no thought of compassion in his breast. Had a mob taken him in the act and quartered him alive, the general verdict, while deploring mob violence, would have been that he had got only what he deserved. But Kemmler's is the first case to be dealt with by electricity and the law, and if, as a result of this doubtful experiment, it can be shown that electrocution is not practical, there will be a speedy end to such punishment. Either this method is a failure or else those who conducted this deadly experiment were at fault. There is but one way to determine the dispute, and that is to try again with a new victim, but it is doubtful if public opinion will allow any more such attempts.

There is a natural repugnance against capital punishment in any form which must increase with the finer sensibilities of continually advancing civilization. The horrible nature of this Kemmler case will reopen the old question of the best disposition to be made of murderers and whether, after all, solitary confinement and hard labor for life is not the best form of punishment.

MUNCY VALLEY.

Special to the Republican:
On the evening of the 30th of July, two thoughtless boys came galloping on horse-back through the upper tannery town and ran over little Bertha Heilig; at first it was supposed she was dead, her mamma was first to get to her aid, the horse knocked her down and jumped over her, her right foot was badly hurt by the horse's shoe striking it, she is unable to walk. She is not eight years of age, also several other small children came near being run over at the same time.

DUSHORE ITEMS.

R. M. Stormont, of LaPorte, was in town Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rogers, of Forks, were in town Saturday.

The "Farmers' Hotel" recently opened by R. H. Brewer is doing a good business.

The small boys of Dushore failed to get started for LaPorte to play ball last Thursday.

Harry Rockwell and Ed Varney, with their lady partners, drove up from Monroeton Sunday.

The picnic in this place next Friday is expected to be one of the best ever held in Dushore.

Geo. Hayman has a new harness-maker. His name is H. B. Brandon and he came from Corning, N. Y.

L. E. Speaker of Hills Grove Democratic candidate for Representative was in this section of the county several days last week, looking after his political interests.

Owing to the rain Saturday evening, the ice cream and lawn festival at the Evangelical church was not largely attended. It was a success, however, and those present enjoyed themselves.

On Sunday our town seemed almost deserted owing to so many of the young people being in attendance at camp-meeting at New Albany. It is estimated that there were two thousand people on the camp ground Sunday afternoon.

Shortly before nine o'clock Saturday evening, during the thunder storm, the western sky was brightly illuminated and remained so for some time. We have since learned that several barns (4 or 5) in the township of Forks, Elkland and Fox, were struck by lightning and were consumed by fire. As hay and harvest is just at an end and farmers' barns are full, the loss will likely be quite heavy. We have not learned the names of the losers.

N'IMPORTE.

ESTELLA ITEMS.

Three fires could be seen during the storm Saturday night as follows: Henry Bedford's barn size 60x70 feet. About 50 tons of hay and a thrashing machine were burned with the barn. One cow was killed. It is singular that no other animals were killed as all the cows and young cattle were under the barn when struck and four horses in the stable. Mr. Bedford was quite severely burned on hand and shoulder in trying to get out the wagon. Loss about $1500.00 partially covered by insurance. Ruben Brown's barn in Fox township and all its contents except a wagon. Loss, $700.00 no insurance. C. Runsey's barn in Forks township, loss about $700.00, insurance $400.

Lulu Brown of Hills Grove is visiting friends here.

A. Logan Grimm Esq., made a business trip to our town on Saturday.

Our Sunday School will picnic on Friday September 6th. Come all and see the bar-bacue.

Mrs. N. K. Woodward of Lincoln Falls has her cottage open for summer boarders.

James Cunningham of the firm of Cunningham & Cole, of Dushore, who has been engaged in equipping the new school house with spouting and furnace pipes, completed the work on Friday last. The tinning of Mr. C. is so well known throughout the county, it is useless to remark that the job is complete in every respect. Mr. Cunningham, on his first visit here was quite surprised at the size of the new LaPorte school building, and said he did not suppose that it was more than half the size of the original. The building covers a few more square feet than does the Court House.

Singular Discovery in a Salt Mine.

In a salt mine near Hermanstadt, in Hungary, which for many years had been full of water, and was visited by tourists on account of its great depth and its repeating echo, recent heavy rainfall raised the water to an extraordinary height. On the 3d instant, says a Vienna correspondent, a number of dead bodies appeared on the surface and on Friday they were taken out, with considerable danger to those who undertook the task. They were found to be the bodies of Hungarian Honveds, 300 of whom fell in the battle of Viz Akna, on the 4th of February, 1849, and instead of being buried were thrown into the salt lake of the mine. The bodies are so well preserved that the wounds which caused death may still be seen quite plainly. Two of the bodies are headless.

A New Counterfeit.

Look out for the counterfeit two-dollar bills. They are an excellent imitation of the genuine. There is one infallible way to test them and other United States paper money. Take a pin or needle and run it under the silk fibre that is scattered through the paper of the bill. It with the pin you can pull up the thread so that it is plainly visible, then you can take the money for the face of it. The counterfeit two are silver certificates.

NORMAL INSTITUTE.

The annual session of the teachers' Normal Institute will commence at Dushore, Monday, Aug. 25, 1890, and will continue for a term of five weeks.

A rapid and comprehensive review of the common branches and methods of teaching will be given. Students should bring all text books on the common branches and methods of teaching they have, and especially Robinson's Metal Arithmetic, Kerl's and Reed and Kellogg's Grammars, Robinson's Complete, and Raub's Arithmetics, Swinton's and Barnes' Histories, Swinton's Geography, and Raub's and Brooks' Methods of Teaching.

Every effort, possible, will be made to make the institute a complete success.

A prompt attendance at the commencement of the term is expected by the superintendent and is of the utmost importance, both to the progress of the student and the proper organization of the institute.

I carry a good assortment in both high and low prices. I am not going to tell you that I will give you goods, nor am I going to tell you that I will sell at cost. Pianos Organs.

The improved method of fastening strings of Pianos, invented by us, is one of the most important improvements ever made, making the instrument more richly musical in tone, more durable, and less liable to get out of tune.

Both the Mason & Hamlin Organs and Pianos excel closely in that which is the chief excellence in any musical instrument, quality of tone. Other things, though important, are much less so than this. An instrument with unusual tones cannot be good. Illustrated catalogues of new styles, introduced this season sent free.
