The 10,000 miles journey of the Presidential party ended on Friday May 15th, by the return of the special train bearing the President, Postmaster-General Wanamaker, Secretary of Agriculture Rusk, and their families and attendants to Washington. The journey from the Atlantic, to the Pacific and from the Gulf to the border of British Columbia was made without a mishap and on schedule time to a minute. A wonderful achievement in railroading. The President was received at every point visited with the heartiest expressions of welcome. He made 140 short speeches during the journey, and they were of such an admirable character in tone and sentiment as to win praises from all who heard or have read them. The President during his journey has won golden opinions of his capacity as a wise and judicious Executive. His speeches in comparison with those made by President Cleveland on his Southern tour are in happy contrast. While Mr. Harrison avoided all reference to the late rebellion and treated all as part and parcel of a united and happy country Mr. Cleveland stirred the political animosities of the South by appeals to their prejudices growing out of the war.

Mr. Cleveland's Hindsight.

In his speech at Buffalo Mr. Cleveland said: "I believe the most threatening danger which to-day stands in the way of the safety of our government and the happiness of our people is reckless and wicked extravagance in our public expenditures." It is a pity he did not think so when he was President. At that time he signed appropriation bills with a reckless hand. Here is a comparison:—

Table with 2 columns: Cleveland and Garfield-Arthur. Rows show various financial figures.

The increase shown by these figures is $11,431,652. In view of these cold hard facts the less Mr. Cleveland prates about "economy" the better.—Rochester Post-Express (Ind.)

New Orleans Italians Warned.

NEW ORLEANS, May 17.—Henry Peters, a stevedore, who was unloading a vessel, made affidavit that the Provenzano Brothers and others of Italians congregated around the wharf where he was unloading a vessel, intimidated his laborers, who were mainly negroes, frightening some of them off and threatening to throw him, Peters, into the river.

The Mayor summoned the Provenzanos before him and warned them to desist from their lawlessness. "I am quite tired of this," he said, "and this thing must stop now and for all time. I know well enough that you have long been at the head of the disturbing element here that has been a menace to the peace of this community. You know as well as I do the insidious means by which you seek to intimidate and frighten people. You may not do your work openly but you find another perhaps a better way. This reign of terror must stop and if there is a way possible to do it, it will stop. Now you have been warned."

Blaine of Maine.

Nothing could more clearly show the affectionate regard in which Mr. Blaine is held by his countrymen than the universal expressions of sorrowful regret with which the announcement of his present illness has been received. Few statesmen of any country have commanded so much love as Mr. Blaine has done. His position in American politics is almost unique. Bismarck, in the day of his great power, was feared by many of his countrymen, even by those who honored him for his remarkable abilities and for the benefits he conferred upon his country; Gladstone, the "grand old man" of British statesmanship, is loved and admired for a formidable party, but by another party he is denounced and condemned. Mr. Blaine has no enemies to-day. He has political opponents, but they oppose only his political sentiments, among the multitudes of his countrymen who delight to do him honor they are not the least. As the premier of the present Administration Mr. Blaine has won golden opinions from all sorts of people, Democrats uniting with Republicans in praising the fine dignity, the exceptional ability, the wisdom, courtesy, courage and force with which, in international and national questions of the gravest and most difficult character, he has maintained the honor and prestige of his country and elevated the character of American diplomacy.

Mr. Blaine has grown year after year, in all the qualities which denote the great statesman and patriot. He has similarly grown in the affection, esteem and admiration of his countrymen, and at present he stands indisputably the head and front of political leadership. It is the rearing of men of his remarkable character, ability and patriotism that confers honor and dignity upon their country.

It is not believed that Mr. Blaine's illness is of a serious nature or that it will have any more than temporary inconvenience; it appears to be simply the result of unceasing devotion to the exacting and onerous duties of his office, which has seldom had for its consideration so many great matters of international concern. If the Secretary of State had had nothing more to do than to devise and formulate his brilliant and effective policy of Reciprocity, he would still have had a giant's load on his shoulders, but that policy, important and valuable as it is, has been one of the burdens of the State which he has taken up and carried with such assured success. The universal feeling is that Mr. Blaine's illness will pass away, and that the Secretary will take that needed rest from labor which will give him again his wonted physical vigor. Mr. Blaine is one of the chief props and stays of his country, as well as one of the most honored and beloved of American statesmen.—Philadelphia Ledger.

HILLSGROVE ITEMS.

Fire extinguished. C. W. Sadler made a business trip to Canton Bradford county Tuesday.

Mrs. Henry Gilbert is not improving as fast as her many friends wish.

Grandmother McBride is quite sick with old age—think she is 84 years old.

Wm. Hoffa of this place was called to Dushore by the death of a sister, Sunday.

Mrs. Geo. Woodley of this place is seriously ill. We wish her a speedy recovery.

The past rain has started the grass to grow in the streets—bring on your horses.

The firm of Buckingham and Reinbold are doing a rushing business up Mill Creek.

Clinton Reinbold has got his boots calked up again to help his grandfather make hay.

Editor Strey of Dushore was in town Saturday evening. We hope he is not out canvassing for county office already.

Wm. Cooner Esq., and who is known by many as Daddy C., is paying Lidney Cottage a call this spring as usual.

The show is over, guess the old folks of our village were pretty well suited with the program—Daddy Biddle returned smiling all over.

Some of the boys say, if those elephants of Baruum's hav'nt got hair on their backs there was something wrong with their eyes.

Charley Sadler must have caught on the right kind of bait Friday as he captured well nigh onto 150 of the speckled beauties. We understand that there were no friends invited in to help eat them.

If his hands don't get sore, or his back lame, or the quats don't bite too bad, or he don't get word from York State, or he don't get tired G. Green may work in the woods one more week, but we doubt it.

I should have thought that the editor would have appreciated our writings sufficient to have invited us to his wedding—nevertheless we extend congratulations and wish him and his better half a pleasant and prosperous future.

PERTLE.

DUSHORE ITEMS.

Hon. B. Rush Jackson spent last week in Dushore.

Will Lawrence's new residence is nearly completed.

Miss Gertie Bailey is visiting friends in New York State.

The show was here and enjoyed by many from town and a distance.

There has been no ball playing in Dushore this season. Why not have a game?

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Patton are rejoicing over the advent of a bouncing boy.

The attendance at court from Dushore is considerable lighter this week than usual.

Only five weeks till the glorious Fourth. Then the Lutherans expect to give a grand picnic.

The street sprinkling pump is quite a source of amusement for the boys as well as a great good to the public.

There will undoubtedly be a large crowd in town Saturday to witness the parade and take part in the Memorial exercises.

There will be a lawn festival at Mrs. Weiss's next Thursday evening for the benefit of the Sewing Circle of the Reformed church.

From every quarter of town come the melodious tones of the band horn which constantly reminds us that the band has reorganized.

C. M. Croll's house on Railroad Avenue presents a neat appearance since being remodeled and re-painted. We understand the inside is being fitted out with a choice lot of furniture. This looks very much as if Charlie's bachelor days were near to an end.

Mrs. Thorpe of this place died on Sunday afternoon after a continued illness of consumption for a number of weeks. Mrs. Thorpe was a sister to our townsman John S. Hoffa and was about 45 years of age. The remains were interred in Zion's cemetery on Tuesday, attended by a large concourse of friends and relatives.

The improved method of fastening strings of Pianos, invented by us, is one of the most important improvements ever made, making the instrument more richly musical in tone, more durable, and less liable to get out of tune.

Both the Mason & Hamlin Organs and Pianos excel chiefly in that which is the chief excellence in any musical instrument, quality of tone. Other things, though important, are much less so than this. An instrument with unusual tones cannot be good. Illustrated catalogues of new styles, introduced this season free.
