Mr. Karns is a first rate fellow and having had one term experience at Harrisburg can no doubt look after his constituents, perhaps, as well as any person in the county. Frank Lusch is a young man and having served several years of his life in book keeping, could no doubt look after the office of Prothonotary satisfactory to the people.

Fish and Game Meeting.

A Meeting of citizens interested in the enforcement of the Game and Fish laws of the state, was held at the office of E. M. Dunham, on Saturday afternoon May 14. E. M. Dunham was elected chairman. After stating the object of the meeting and discussion upon the questions and objects, the following committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by laws for the government of the society, viz: H. T. Downs, F. H. Ingham, A. Walsh, A. A. Baker and E. S. Chase, who was requested to report such constitution and by laws at a meeting to be held at same place, on Saturday afternoon June 4, 1892.

Judge Connolly is a rasher, if you don't believe it, inquire of either of the Sullivan county constables. In making their returns, on Monday, Judge inquired of them if they had visited hotels and saloons once a month as the law requires of them, also, if they knew of any violation of the liquor law etc. This propounding of questions, was new to the boys and took them by storm, however, their answers were satisfactory and they were excused and their returns filed. Thos. Cangle, constable of Lopez, was called back the second time, he, evading the question of whether he had visited the hotels in his bailiwick monthly, in his first examination; the last however, proved satisfactory. The constables do not receive any compensation for this work and Thomas is under the impression that an officer of the law is out of place in donating his labor to the public in general.

An association to suppress the habit of "treating" has been formed in Philadelphia, consisting of members of the Union League club of that city. The foundation theory of the organization is that social tipping causes the growth of intemperate habits, and is the prime source of general drunkenness. The members of the "Anti Treating League" do not promise to abstain from drink. They merely promise to abstain from asking or causing others to drink. They allege that because one member of a social group thinks he needs to use a stimulating beverage he should not solicit those around him who do not feel that they need it, to join him in the indulgence that he craves.

The Death of George Washington Copied From the Ulster County Gazette, Dated 1800.

The following is taken from the Ulster county Gazette, published at Kingston, the county seat of Ulster Co., N. Y. The date of the paper is Saturday January 4th, 1800 and is published by Samuel Freer & Son. The sheet is a four column folio and the editorial page is draped in mourning by exceedingly heavy column rules. Our readers will notice at this early date the letter "s" was pronounced "a." For instance the word "sir" was thus "fir." The following said by the Senate and the President's answer and the entombing of the Father of our country will no doubt prove of much interest to our readers.

To the PRESIDENT of the UNITED STATES.

THE Senate of the United States respectfully take leave, fir to express to you their deep regret for the loss their country has sustained in the death of General George Washington.—This event, so distressing to all our fellow citizens must be peculiarly heavy to you who have long been associated with him in patriotism. Permit us fir, to mingle our tears with yours: on this occasion it is manly to weep. To lose such a man at such a crisis is no common calamity to the world, our country mourns her Father. The Almighty disposer of human events has taken from us our greatest Benefactor and ornament. It becomes us to submit with reverence to him, who maketh darkness his Pallium."

With patriotic pride we review the life of our Washington, and compare him with those of other countries who have been pre-eminent in fame Ancient and modern fame are diminished before him. Greatness and guilt have too often been allied but is whiter than it is brilliant. The destroyers of nations stood abashed at the majesty of his virtue. It reproved the temperance of their ambition and darkened the splendor of victory. The scenes closed and we are no longer anxious lest misfortune should sully his glory; he has traveled on to the end of his journey, and carried with him an increasing weight of honor: he deposited it safely, where misfortune cannot tarnish it—where malice cannot last it. Favored of heaven, he departed without exhibiting the weakness of humanity; magnanimous in death, the darkness of the grave could not obscure his brightness.

Such was the man whom we deplore.—Thanks to God, his glory is unsullied. Washington yet lives upon earth in his spotless example—his spirit is in Heaven. Let his countrymen consecrate the memory of the heroic General, the patriotic Statesman, and the virtuous sage; let them teach their children never to forget that the fruits of his labours, and his example are their inheritance.

PRESIDENT'S ANSWER.

Gentlemen of the Senate. I receive with the most respectful and affectionate sentiments of this impressive address, the obliging expressions of your regret, for the loss our country has sustained in the death of our most esteemed, beloved and admired citizen.

In the multitude of my thoughts and recollection of this melancholy event, permit me to say, that I have seen him in the days of adversity, in some of the scenes of deepest and most trying perplexities I have also attended him in the highest elevation and most prosperous felicity with uniform admiration of his wisdom, moderation and constancy.

Among all our original associates in the memorable League of the Continent in 1774, which first expressed the sovereign will of a Free Nation in America, he was the only one remaining in the General Government. Although with a constitution more enfeebled than his, as an age when he thought it necessary to prepare for retirement, I feel myself alone, bereaved of my last brother; yet I derive strong consolation from the Unanimous disposition which appears in all ages and classes to mingle their sorrows with mine, on this common calamity to the world.

The life of our WASHINGTON cannot suffer by comparison with those of other countries, who have been most celebrated and exalted by Fame. The attributes and decorations of Royalty, could only have served to eclipse the Majesty of those virtues, which made him, from being a modest citizen, a more resplendent luminary. Misfortune had he lived, could hereafter have sullied his glory only with those super-cial minds, who, believing that character's and actions are marked by success alone rarely deserve to enjoy it. Malice could never blast his honor, and Envy made him a singular exception to her universal rule.—For himself he had lived enough, to life and glory. For his fellow citizens, if their prayers could have been answered he would have been immortal. For me his departure is a most unfortunate moment. Trusting however, in the wise and righteous dominions of Providence over passions of men, and the result of their councils and actions, as well as over their Lives, nothing remains for me but HUMBLE RESIGNATION.

His example is now complete, and it will teach wisdom and virtue to Magistrates, Citizens and men, not only in the present age, but in future generations, as long as our History shall be read. If a Trajan found a Pliny, a Mæcæus Arelus can never want Biographers, Eulogists or Historians.

JOHN ADAMS. United States, } Dec. 2, 1799. }

WASHINGTON ENTOMBED.

George Town, Dec. 20. On Wednesday last, the mortal part of WASHINGTON the Great—the Father of his Country and the Friend of man, was confined to the tomb, with solemn honors and funeral pomp.

A multitude of persons assembled, from many miles round, at Mount Vernon, the choice abode and last residence of the illustrious chief there were the groves—the spacious avenues, the beautiful and sublime scenes, the noble mansion—but alas! the august inhabitant was now no more, that great soul was gone. His mortal part was there indeed but ah! how affecting? how awful the spectacle of such worth and greatness, thus, to mortal eyes, fallen! Yes! fallen! fallen!

In the long and lofty Portico where oft the Hero walked in all his glory, now lay the shrouded corpse. The countenance still composed and serene seemed to depress the dignity of the spirit, which atoly dwelt in that lifeless form. There those who paid the last honors to the benefactor of his country, took an impressive—a farewell view.

On the ornament at the head of the coffin, was inscribed SURGE ALIUDICUM about the middle of the coffin, GLORIA DEO—and on the liver plate,

GENERAL

GEORGE WASHINGTON, Departed this life, on the 14th December 1799, Æt. 68.

Between three and four o'clock, the sound of artillery from a vessel in the river, firing minute guns awoke afresh our solemn sorrow—the corpse was removed—a band of music with mournful melody melted the soul into all the tenderness of woe.

The procession was formed and moved on in the following order:

- Cavalry, } With arms reversed.
Infantry, }
Guard, }
Music, }
Clergy, }
The General's horse with his saddle hollers and pifols.

- Cols, }
Sims, }
Ramsay, }
Payne, }
Corpse, }
Cols, }
Gilpin, } Marfteller, }
Little, }

Mourners, Masonic Brethren, Citizens.

When the procession had arrived at the bottom of the elevated lawn, on bank of the Potomac, where the family vault is placed, the cavalry halted, the infantry marched towards the Mount and formed their lines—the Clergy, the Masonic Brothers, and the Citizens, descended to the Vault, and the funeral service of the Church was performed.—The firing was repeated from the vessel in the river, and the sounds echoed from the woods and hills around.

Three general discharges by the infantry—the cavalry, and 11 pieces of artillery which lined the banks of the Potomac back of the Vault, paid the last to the entombed Commander in Chief of the Armies of the United States and to the departed Hero.

The sun was now setting. Alas! the sun of glory was set forever. No—the name of WASHINGTON—the President and General—will triumph over DEATH! The unclouded brightness of his Glory will illuminate the future ages.
