In the Democratic primaries in Cincinnati and Hamilton county, Ohio, June 6, the anti-Cleveland men carried everything, not more than four friends of the ex-President being elected out of the sixty-five delegates to the state convention.

The young people of the 'Mere' enjoyed a dance in the Riak, on Friday evening. A party of Williamsport has leased this structure for the season and will engage in the restaurant business. An enterprise of this kind ought to do well at the Summer City.

This year thus far has been marked by extremes out of season, warm when it should have been cold, cold when it should have been warm, and abnormal heat followed by unusual dampness. The only thing lacking to complete the record is a drought, but the hope is general that it will not add its discomforts to the others.

The political campaign in Ireland is growing hot, and the shillalah and a-billstone arguments of the factions are leaving deep impressions upon the minds of the voters. It is cheering to observe that when these debates are at their height the appearance of the police is a signal for all kinds of whatever faith to fall and to demolish 'Balfour's buildings.' There is a unity of purpose, it seems, on the part of Parnellites and anti-Parnellites, and that is to rid Ireland of the constabulary as a condition precedent to a free discussion of the issues. Arrigh!

Painton to Hang To-Day

William Henry Painton, who will be hanged at York, to-day (Thursday) between 10 and 11 a. m. for the murder of aged Mrs. Elizabeth Storminger in Lewisberry on the night of March 31, declares he is ready to meet his fate and professes to be penitent. Sheriff Finley, who has completed arrangements for the execution, has more requests for admission tickets than he can furnish. Only a limited number of persons will see the hanging.

We are informed that the body will be brought to Sonestown for burial.

The owners and superintendents of the several tanneries in operation in Sullivan and adjoining counties, were quite numerous at the Land Sale, on Monday. They were as follows: Gen. Hill of the firm of Proctor & Hill of the Greenwood tannery, Bradford county; William Hull, general superintendent of the Hills Grove tannery, owned by the Hoyt Bros.; James McFarlane of the firm of James McFarlane & Co., owners of the LaPorte tannery and Samuel Gooline, superintendent of the Jamison City tannery, owned by Theo. E. Proctor.

EaglesMere real estate is rated pretty high judging from the bids at the land sales, on Monday. When county treasurer Wm. Murray struck this list everybody seemed anxious for a chunk of dirt in that vicinity and bids were numerous. An ordinary lot over there, is worth anywhere from four to eight hundred dollars and our people, though not extremely greedy, did not object to paying the taxes and cost and a trifle bonus on the real estate advertised at the summer resort. Herebefore our people have been quite fortunate in catching the rusticators over there fast asleep and in consequence, have treasurer deals for several valuable lots in the centre of their city. The list on Monday was struck off as follows: The Bartch Amanda and the Saylor G. S. lots were struck down to Russel Karns; the Bartch G. W. to R. J. Thomson and the Gideon Hess to Dr. Hill. They say that Doe will have to get out a search warrant to find his investment.

Now For the Other Ticket.

The excitement over the Minneapolis convention, and the nomination of Harrison and Reid is not yet over, but will hardly command so much of public attention during the next two weeks as will the movements of the army of Democrats who are heading for Chicago to name the men who will do battle at the polls next November with the present President and the distinguished New York editor. What will the Chicago convention bring fourth? That's the question now, and until and a short time after it is answered, the attention of the American people will be centred on the Democrats who are going to Chicago to answer it. Just what the Chicago convention will bring forth is one of the things that few, even among the well informed leaders of Democracy, care to predict. Cleveland unquestionably has a large majority of the army of delegates ready to vote and shout for him, and it is not certain that the necessary two-thirds of the delegates to Chicago are not of the opinion that he is the only man to nominate. Ordinarily a Democrat backed by such a large army of delegates would be sure of the nomination of his party; but the nomination of Grover Cleveland is by no means a certainty, although it seems highly probable that he will, for the third time lead his party in the struggle for the Presidency. The danger to the Cleveland forces in the character and location of his small but powerful army of opponents. Without the electoral vote of New York the Democratic candidate cannot hope to be successful this year. The opposition to the Cleveland boom, and without which his nomination would be as sure as that the Democratic National Convention will be held, comes from the most important state. That opposition is now, as it has been for several years, of a character that scores as a rule, and it is going to Chicago this week to remain and fight until the battle is won or lost against Cleveland. Grover's chances depend entirely on the success of this powerful opposition that comes from his own state and the result is more uncertain than was the result of last week's Republican convention. The Democratic hosts are on the road to Chicago now, and next Tuesday the convention will be called to order. Within two weeks the tide for the Presidency will be on and there will be no end of excitement for several months.

Estella, June 13th, 1892.

Active preparations are being made for a grand celebration at Estella on the ever glorious 4th of July. Eminent speakers have been secured with abundant music and everything is looking toward a better time than ever before which is saying a great deal. A general invitation is given to the Sabbath schools, Old Fellows, Patrons of Industry, Patrons of Husbandry and Good Templars, to join in the grand parade. The committee will publish their programme in due time.

A RIOT IN IRELAND.

DUBLIN, June 12.—William Redmond, Edward Harrington and Henry Harrington were in the Tralle this afternoon to address a large meeting of Parnellites. About 3,000 persons were present. They remained perfectly orderly until the chairman prepared to introduce the speakers, when it became apparent that the meeting had been packed with anti-Parnellites. There were then loud shouts against Mr. Harrington and Mr. Redmond and cries of "traitor," "backwards" and "Irishmen's enemies."

Twenty-Five Injured During Political Meeting

The Parnellites raised counter shouts and began cheering for Parnell. Two fights were started near the platform, and one of the disturbers was knocked senseless. This was the signal for a general row. Those on the outstart pressed in toward the platform to aid their friends, until all were so tightly packed that even the peaceably inclined ones had to join the fight in self-defense. A party of anti-Parnellites attacked the members with clubs and knocked down five of them, put the rest to flight, captured all the instruments and stamped them to pieces. When Mr. Harrington stepped down from the platform to help pacify them he was struck on the shoulder with a stone and received a blow on the back. He hastily returned to the platform.

First Road Through LaPorte.

Among the papers recently found in the possession of J. H. W. Little of Shrewsbury, was a certified copy of a report of a road view made September 8th, 1808. The order of the court calls for viewing the ground for a road to commence at or near the dwelling house of Thomas Little in Shrewsbury township, from thence by the nearest and best course to the Turnpike road now opening from Berwick to Newtown (Elmira). The viewers were James Parson, Joseph Whitacre, J. B. Shugart, Theophanes Little, W. Cox, Ellis. The starting point is marked as road from neighborhood of Mancy to Forks of Loyalsock creek, from that point the route is evidently following the road to the outlet of Lewis' lake and very nearly along the route long traveled by the Avery farm, being eight courses for one and a half miles distance, from the outlet the route is a little north of east and but eight courses for seven and three-quarter miles, the point of intersection is described as where the Turnpike crosses a stream nearly a perch wide running north, this evidently was Glass creek. The road made followed very nearly the route originally laid to within 1/2 of a mile of the terminating point, where instead of running east the route was changed to north intersecting the turnpike at the point where it crossed the Loyalsock about one-half mile below the residence of S. Mead. The road was for many years the route traveled from Cherry to Williamsport and probably opened as early as 1812. The road described as the Berwick and Newtown turnpike crossed the North mountain near Long pond following down Glass creek to within about one-half mile of the residence of S. Mead. The road was for many years the route traveled from Cherry to Williamsport and probably opened as early as 1812. The Electoral Vote.

Now that another Presidential campaign is about to begin, it is natural that the eyes of the thinking citizen should be directed to the electoral vote and calculations made as the result in the several states. In the Electoral College of 1888 there were 401 votes, of which the Republicans received 233 and the Democrats 161. By the new apportionment the states, which were Republican in 1888 have 249 votes; the states which were then Democratic are entitled to 175 votes, and the new states which have been admitted to the Union since the last Presidential campaign have 20 votes, making a total of 444 votes in the whole Electoral College of 1892. The number necessary to elect is 223.

The new states with a number of votes to which they are entitled are as follows:

The states which the best informed politicians of both parties admit as doubtful are as follows:

Michigan, which under the new arrangement votes by congressional districts is estimated as about evenly divided, so that each party can figure on seven votes, with the chances in favor of the Republicans securing even more. The following table is reckoned a fair classification of the states that may be set down as sure Republican or Democratic.

Table with 2 columns: State, Party. Lists states like California, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming with their respective party affiliations.

The party that wins in the coming fight will require 223 electoral votes, and it will be seen that, according to the above table the Republicans lack only fifteen, while the Democrats fall fifty-three short of a majority. To win the Democratic party must carry New York, Indiana, Connecticut or Montana or West Virginia, or virtually all the doubtful states. On the other hand if the Republicans carry Indiana they can spare all the other doubtful states, and still win. Then again with Connecticut, West Virginia and Montana they could afford to lose both New York and Indiana. By a little calculating it will be readily seen that the chances favor the Republican party no matter how the figures be manipulated. To win the Democratic party must hold all and gain all. Under the circumstances it is doubtful if the Republican party ever need a more engaging situation.

The W. & N. B. engineer corps changed their boarding place from the LaPorte Hotel to Ring's, on the Dushore road, Wednesday. They are taking the grade from LaPorte to the Summit. Prospects for a railroad in this vicinity was never better than at present.

Steam Baking Pan.

The Combination Steam Cooker and Baking Pan is used for roasting meat and poultry, also for steaming, either on top of the stove or in the oven. When used on top of the stove, being made of thin material and setting close to the fire, it will heat and steam quicker than any steamer now in use; and its shape gives it much more room than the ordinary round steamer; also makes it more convenient for using in the oven, where all vegetables can be cooked by steam, doing away with all small and unpleasant odors which naturally arise from cooking them on top of the stove. Meats and poultry cooked in this pan are much nicer and finer flavored retaining their juices and nutritious sweetness, which is lost, if exposed to the heat of the oven. For baking bread it is unsurpassed, making it much nicer and lighter, giving it a very thin crust and even bake. It also makes a first-class hot closet and oven for an oil stove.
