CLEVELAND AND STEVENSON.

The Chicago Convention resulted in the nominating of Grover Cleveland for President and Adlia E. Stevenson of Ill. for Vice President. The ex-President was nominated on the first ballot which took place at 3:30 Thursday morning June 23. The nomination of Stevenson took place Thursday afternoon of the same date.

The scenes attending the nomination of Mr. Cleveland were both riotous and dramatic; pretty nearly all that went on during the session which began at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and ending at nearly 4 Thursday morning, was disorderly. The Cleveland managers, however, having the power in the number of their votes had determined before going into session to make the nomination without risking another adjournment. They held their people with an iron hand and accomplished their end in the only way in which it could have been done with any
