A BRUTAL ATTACK ON THE G. A. R.

How a Maryland Democrat Views the Defenders of the Nation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—A speech recently delivered at a Democratic meeting in Montgomery county, Md., by James F. Brown, of Washington, who is a member of the Democratic Central Committee, District of Columbia, has attracted considerable attention and provoked much indignation among members of the Grand Army of the Republic and their friends in Washington.

ESTELLA ITEMS No. 1.

G. Messick has repaired his new house and moved in last week. Mrs. H. W. Osler is visiting friends in LaPorte and Nordmont.

ESTELLA ITEMS No. 2.

Mrs. Albert Kaye and Mrs. H. W. Osler are visiting friends at LaPorte this week. Wm. Shoemaker and Mr. Luther are attending the grand reunion at Washington, this week.

Is this a political campaign? Things are so dreadfully dull. We scarcely hear a whisper in regard to national affairs, and regarding local candidates, there are no campaign lies except the old ones. Seems as though things ought to liven up a little.—Dushore Review.

FOR FURNITURE.

The significance of this little squib is plain to the reader. That Newell is for Lull the monopoly candidate there can be no doubt. He has a free pass on the L. V. and must make a showing for the monopoly people somewhere. It is as we predicted before the democratic convention—that the Review would do the booming for Lull. Republicans should by all means give this paper their support.

FOR FURNITURE.

The rain this morning though a trifle disagreeable to a few of our craft people, is appreciated by the farmer.

STEELETON, Pa., Sept. 14, 1892.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN.—Ever since the republican party come into power this county has progressed in every branch of business, notwithstanding the war with all the calamities.

It put down the mighty rebellion, established a sound monetary basis, abolished slavery, passed a protective tariff law, which protects the manufacturers and his employes against foreign competition, and hundreds of other good things have been done by the republican party. While all this time the democrat party have been trying to retard and baffle this great progress made by the republican party for thirty years, and to-day they are in the same old rut, advocating free trade, state banks and numerous other dead and rotten things. In all of my past experience I have never known of as prosperous a Presidential year as this one. All branches of business are running in full blast and why is it? It is the result of the labors of the republican party, and their good management in public affairs. How a man can be honest with himself and vote for Cleveland, I can't see. He is no friend to the protective tariff—he is no friend to the old soldier, he is no friend to anything that is for the advancement of the nation, in fact he is not even a friend to himself, his acts have shown this in the past. While Harrison is in hearty accord with the protective tariff, and he has befriended thousands of old and decrept soldiers, both democrat and republican, by his signature, and if there is any man that should vote for him, it should be the democratic soldier, because he never received, nor never would have received a pension under Cleveland, for he always vetoed the pension bills no matter how just they were. (But Harrison will be President, all the same).

A FREMONT REPUBLICAN.

While a couple of the Shrewsbury boys were on their way home to the Merd Tuesday afternoon they met with a quite an accident which perhaps could have been avoided had the supervisor of said township widened the road at or near the Birch Oil factory. The parties were R. W. Bennett and A. Bowers. Dick was in advance and Bowers tried to drive around him, but in making the transfer the wheels of the two vehicles locked together and in a york second the underpinning of Dick's wagon was knocked from under him. Bowers settled for the smash up and both reached home in due time.

THE OLD SOLDIERS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—This is the opening day for the G. A. R. celebration. The encampment has not "officially" begun, but actively the ceremonies have begun with great brilliancy and much enthusiasm. The air is full of music of a hundred bands. The eye is dazzled by the gay colors covering every building and suspended across the streets, and the streets are crowded with the veterans, some marching in parade, some hurrying travelworn, with baggage in hand, seeking their quarters, and thousands loitering about the streets admiring the scene or crowding the public buildings.

FOR FURNITURE.

Nearly fifty thousand old soldiers are here, and others are pouring through the depots every hour. Many trains are hours behind time, blocked up by the immensity of the crowds the roads have undertaken to transport. Some of the railroads sent dispatches to their agents yesterday not to sell any more tickets, but there are now here or on the way enough people to pass the highest estimate made of the attendance.

FOR FURNITURE.

The parade was a brilliant and imposing display, and was viewed by tens of thousands of spectators. The Council of administration held a meeting to-night, which was largely attended. The accounts of Adjutant General Pyster were examined and approved, and the action of Commander-in-Chief Palmer in the matter of the color line between posts in Louisiana and Mississippi indorsed. The color line question is likely to come up again in the national encampment.

W. C. T. A. DEPARTMENT.

CONDUCTED BY MEMBERS OF THE W. C. T. A. SOCIETY OF LA PORTE, PA. Father's and Mother's Rules. They were not many, but they were law. Father's government was gentleness itself, but the instant we took advantage of that, firmness was in his mild eye, decision in his voice and we knew better than to persist had we wanted to; but we loved him so, that the desire was rarely there. They required perfect honest, absolute truthfulness. If these principles were transgressed, we were treated according to our dispositions—to one the rod was applied as the most efficacious means of discipline, to another the quiet gentle reproof, and solitary musing on the greatness of the sin, and so on through the seven, as their study of our dispositions told them would be wisest. As I grow older, the necessity and wisdom of studying our children's characters and dispositions is more impressed upon me. If parents will do this as a part of the training of their little ones, many useless conflicts will be avoided and many heartaches for the children, and sorrow for the parents, will be spared. Another requirement in father's house was politeness and consideration of one another; no harsh words, no jarring, no contradicting allowed, no selfishness; one was no dearer, apparently, to their hearts than another; no unwise partiality, consequently jealousy was unknown. Punctuality, prompt obedience, quiet order at the table, plenty of fun and merriment, but nothing boisterous nor rude, was permitted. Father and mother themselves had a thorough understanding between each other on the home discipline. When father reproofed, mother always upheld him. When mother spoke the law, father supported her. Here again is a great secret in a well governed home. Let father and mother be honest and true, kind and gentle to one another, and united in the management of their little ones; this, added to well regulated firmness, coupled with self control, patience and constant waiting upon the Lord in prayer, will make a happy home; and the children of such parents will rise up and call them blessed.—From "Our Budget."
