

Small-Pox in Wall Paper.
"Many years ago a person was sick of small-pox in a farm house in the country town of Groton, and after the patient recovered the dwelling was fumigated and repapered. Ira Chester and family now dwell in the house. The paper was removed a week or so ago, and presently Mr. Chester's daughter was stricken with small-pox. In the opinion of the physician the germs of the disease were dormant in the walls of the room."
The above clipping from the Cincinnati Enquirer makes good the claims of sanitarians, that all disease germs find a hiding place in wall paper, with its vegetable paste to hold it on the wall, and its animal glue to hold its colors; that these, to say the least, are not the best materials with which to cover so much space around us as the walls in which we live and sleep, and that paper and glue are great absorbers, not of moisture, of which every person throws off a certain number of ounces in exhalations every day, and that such decaying material as glue and paste gives off deleterious gases in such small quantities that we do not discover them, though those who study it can smell it in most rooms papered, and especially where a number of layers of paper have been pasted upon each other.
Sanitarians claim that these conditions have more to do with our ill health than we are aware of; that such a state of things in the room in which we live affects us more for better or worse than does a change of climate; that it would be cheaper, at least, to try a change of room or one coated with some non-decaying material, before going to the expense and trouble of a change of climate.

I Vote for Hood's Forty Years in the Ministry

Rev. W. R. Puffer
"Having taken Hood's Sarsaparilla two months I am satisfied it is an excellent remedy. For years I have had Rheumatism, afflicting my body, but especially my right arm from elbow to shoulder, so severe I feared I should lose the Use of it. I felt better soon after I began with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken 4 bottles the rheumatism entirely left me. I have been a minister of the M. E. Church 40 years, and like many others of sedentary habits have suffered with Dyspepsia and Inesomnia, but while taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I have had a good appetite, good digested well, I gained several pounds and sleep better. I vote for Hood's." Rev. W. R. Puffer, Richmond, Va.

Nothing is more desirable about a place or more beautiful than a well kept lawn, and it is not difficult to make or keep in order. The lawn should be carefully graded, if the lawn be of any extent, or even if it be but a city lot. The preparation should be thorough and deep so as to give the seeds a good chance and early start and the plant a fertile soil in which to grow. It takes plenty of seed, more than one would think, because the seeds are so light. The seed should be sown in early spring, in March if possible. When sown on what is called a sugar snow one can not expect the even distribution of the seeds. They will sink down as the snow melts and will need no raking in. If fine compost manure can be had, spread it over evenly and do not trouble to take off any of it, unless it be very coarse. If on city plot, with the streets running east and west, and on the north side of the street, it will prove rather difficult to get a good stand, because of the hot sun and reflection from the buildings. If on streets running north and south there is no insuperable difficulty in getting a good stand and a thick turf. Blue grass is, of course, the mainstay, and in our section of the State, where clay soil abounds, it is almost indigenous; that or its first cousin, June grass. If mixed with white clover and sweet vernal grass it will make the perfection of a lawn. ### Recommending and Prescribing SWAMP-ROOT.

It Cures the Worst Cases.
"Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a preparation discovered by an old and scientific physician, whose wide experience extending over many years has given him exceptional advantages for treating diseases successfully. I have prescribed Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root in a great many of the worst kidney, liver and bladder complaints, and always with the most gratifying results; therefore it affords me great pleasure to most cordially recommend it to suffering humanity and the medical profession, as I feel sure that it will accomplish all that is claimed for it in every instance. It is beyond question the greatest discovery of the day."

FARM GARDEN

NECESSITY OF THE DUST BATH.
Did you ever notice hens dusting in a hollow in the ground, or under a shed where the earth is dry? They are taking a bath, necessary in cleansing their feathers, equally as important to their health as a bath in water is to any of us. Deprive a flock of hens of their dust bath and they will deprive you of fresh eggs. You are keeping hens for profit, but lack of dusting material means lousy fowls, and in this condition the best fowls cannot be productive.—New York Independent.

FERTILITY OF THE WOODS.
The annual falling of forest leaves and the rotting of branches, old logs and stumps in time make up quite a large deposit of decayed vegetation which is apparently of but little use on the uncultivated land where it occurs, writes an Ohio farmer. Feeling that it was a waste of fertility, or at least a failure to secure the benefit that ought to be obtained from it, for two seasons I gathered several wagon loads of the rotted stuff from the woods, hunting out spots where the leaves had lodged and rotted in larger masses than usual, and where a place could be found and conveniently reached that contained the remains of large fallen trees that had entirely decomposed. This stuff I spread as manure one fall on the field to be planted with corn next spring, and, so far as I could discover, with but little beneficial effect on the crop. The next fall I applied about the same amount on another field that was sown to wheat. In this case I had a good crop, for which I still believe some credit may be given to the fertilizer from the woods, but the results were not sufficiently profitable to lead me to repeat the experiment of robbing one piece of land to fertilize another.—New York World.

SHEEP TRAINING THEIR WOOL.
When sheep bite themselves and tear out their wool it is an indication that the skin is diseased and itches intolerably. The trouble may be due to several causes, as the effects of the dry food, which has a coarive tendency, and this induces inflammation in the blood, or the sheep may be annoyed by vermin, either lice or ticks, or they may be suffering from scab, which is one of the most troublesome diseases of sheep, an ailment by a very small mite that burrows in the skin, and in time will destroy the whole fleece, as it is exceedingly contagious. The sheep should be carefully examined, and the cause of the trouble found. If the skin is red in places, the dry feeling is to be blamed for it, and it should be changed, bran mash being given, with a teaspoonful of epsom salts in each feed. A little sulphur may be added with benefit, but the greatest relief will be afforded by feeding some turpentine or beets which have the best effect in such a case. If there are vermin of any kind, these should be got rid of by pouring a decoction of tobacco root into the back and working it through the wool all over the sheep. This will cure the scab if the crusts are broken and the fluid well worked into the skin.—New York Times.

FARM AND GARDEN NOTES.
The best layers are not the best table fowls.
Give one feed of sound grain daily to the poultry.
Turkeys are big eaters by nature and need a wide range.
More young chicks are killed by lice than by skunks or minks.
After goslings begin to feather well they will need very little attention.
Ducks are cheaper to raise than chickens, and can easily be made profitable.
Crusts of bread with warm sweet milk is unsurpassed as a food for young poultry.
When the hens stop laying they can often be started again by giving a change of food.
Fowls that have to hunt for a living usually manage to hide out their eggs when they lay.
The best profit from eggs is in the winter and good treatment must be given to secure them.
The turkey flock should be mated up at once. Select only well matured fowls for the breeders.
The small allowance of bone meal in the food will be beneficial to young fowls that are afflicted with leg weakness.
In shipping hens and roosters have them in different groups. The shipping coops high enough so the birds can stand up in them.
The blossom of the plant from which coffee is obtained is white. It grows to about the height of ten feet, and the fruit is of a bright red color.
Do not get ready to run a winter dairy and expect to make it pay wholly on dry feed. Ensilage and the winter dairy are the complement of each other.
It requires but little time and attention to manage a small flock, but if it is intended to go into the raising as a business it means work and plenty of it.
Are you crowding too many chickens in one roosting place? Are you permitting chicks under four months to roost other than on floor or coop? If so, correct at once these mistakes.
Remember that codfish is a food that pigeons relish. They scent it a great way off. Provide a codfish in your loft where it will be convenient for them to pick at.
Wheat succeeds best on what are called limestone soils. The lime in the soil may have come from underlying rock or have been washed down from some more elevated region, as seen in many of the valleys where wheat is now grown with great success.
"Deep preparation and shallow cultivation" is a good rule to follow in gardening. "Stir the soil" is an agricultural text not to be disregarded. Good drainage is necessary for an early crop. Soil will remain cold until late in the spring if soaked or covered with water, for then the air and sunlight cannot penetrate it.
Eight kinds of celery have lately been tested. They were put before the taster with no record of their names, and were to be placed in order according to their good qualities. He classed them in the following order: New Rose, Golden Dwarf, Half Dwarf, London Red, Giant Pascal, White Walnut, White Plum, Boston Market.

LAWNS AND LAWN GRASSES.
Nothing is more desirable about a place or more beautiful than a well kept lawn, and it is not difficult to make or keep in order. The lawn should be carefully graded, if the lawn be of any extent, or even if it be but a city lot. The preparation should be thorough and deep so as to give the seeds a good chance and early start and the plant a fertile soil in which to grow. A Poet's Turn of Luck.
When six years ago Joaquin Miller went to California and bought a tract of land a mile east of Oakland people laughed, writes E. V. Bok. And for a number of years the poet himself almost believed that the people were right. Miller bought at that time what was probably one of the most unpromising pieces of property in California. The tract consisted of 100 acres, and nearly all of it lay on a steep and rocky mountain side. The eccentric poet went at the cultivation of his new possession with a will. And he did mostly all of his work alone. Soon the property began to show the hand of progress. But it required work of the hardest kind. And during all this time the land was fast proving, even the poet almost believed, the worst type of an "elephant." Now, however, the land is almost a park of the most picturesque order. On it the poet has planted 25,000 fruit trees, hundreds of olive trees, and miles of rare roses. Springs were introduced; trout brooks were stocked; walks and drives were made. Water is plentiful on the place, and that counts for everything on a Californian place. The poet is now, I am told, beginning to see the rewards for his labors. He ships his roses to Denver in the winter, and four weeks ago one of his first shipments came to the New York market. The roses are of the finest specimens, command good prices, and from this branch of his possessions alone it is not unlikely that Joaquin Miller may soon acquire a neat little income. His place is in the direct growing line of Oakland, and the city is gradually approaching the poet's habitation. He does but little work with the pen, but devotes nearly all his time to the further cultivation of his place and the development of the industries possible from its products.—New York Recorder.

Sugar From Cotton Seed.
The cotton plant, which has for so many centuries furnished a large part of the population of the globe with clothing, seems to be almost without limit in its usefulness, remarks a scientific authority.
From the seed a valuable oil is expressed, while the husks form an article of food for cattle in the shape of cakes. From the lint which clings to the seed after it has passed through the "gin" felt is made, while the oil extracted from the seed is applied to quite a large number of purposes. But, according to the British Consul, Mr. Portal, of Zanzibar, Africa, cotton seed is also capable of yielding sugar. A process has been discovered for extracting sugar from cotton seed meal, and, though the details of this process have not been disclosed, it is said that the product obtained is of very superior grade, being five times sweeter than cane sugar and twenty times more so than sugar made from beet. This indicates that sweetness is not due to cane sugar, but to some other chemical.—Scientific American.

The Rain-Making Fakir.
The individual who claims the ability to "make rain" by means of a stovepipe and a few chemicals will soon invade the agricultural districts, and it is pleasing to know that the farmers are well equipped with big spotted bullocks in view of just such an emergency. The rain-making fraud is the most heartless and cruel of all the fakirs, and it is really encouraging to believe that he has at last been stood up correctly, and that he doesn't stand much of a chance of being first in the hearts of his countrymen.—Washington News.

Deafness Can't be Cured
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is not a dangerous condition of the mucous surface. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness cured by catarrh that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

If You Would Live.
If your name is to live at all, it is so much more to have it live in people's hearts than only in their brains, writes Oliver Wendell Holmes. I don't know that one's eyes fill with tears when he thinks of the famous inventor of logarithms, but a song of Burns' or a hymn of Charles Wesley's goes straight to your heart, and you can't help loving both of them, sinner as well as saint. The works of other men live, but their personality dies out of their labors; the poet who reproduces himself in his creation, as no other artist does or can, goes down to posterity with all his personal-ity blended with whatever is imperishable in his song.

If You Want The Best

ALTHOUGH you may have had good luck with but few failures in making cake and biscuit in the old-fashioned way with soda and sour milk, or soda and cream of tartar, you will have better luck and (following directions) no failures with the Royal Baking Powder. The truth of this must be evident when you remember that in the leading hotels and restaurants, and in the homes of our city cousins, where the latest and best methods are invariably employed, and where the most beautiful and dainty food is always set out for the guests, the Royal Baking Powder is exclusively used for all quickly risen food. Royal Baking Powder never disappoints; never makes sour, soggy or husky food; never spoils good materials; never leaves lumps of alkali in the biscuit or cake; while all these things do happen with the best of cooks who cling to the old-fashioned methods, or who use other Baking Powders. If you want the best food, Royal Baking Powder is indispensable.
