NATHAN PERSUN, County Surveyor, P O address—Dushore, Pa.

The talk about two Democratic State tickets in New York this Fall shows that politics is beginning already to occupy attention in that State. Only minor State officers and a Judge of the Court of Appeals are to be chosen at large, but a complete Legislature is also to be chosena thing that happens only every other year in New York. The reckless character of much of the legislation of the recent session is believed to be very obnoxious to the Cleveland faction of the Democratic party. The passage of the Buffalo police bill in opposition to the wishes of the people of that city and the refusal of Governor Flower to keep his pledge to the opponents of the bill has made a profound impression throughout the State. The Democratic Buffalo Courier calls upon the anti-Hill and anti-Sheehan Democrats to organize, and the Albany Journal believes that there will be a bolt from the Democratic State Convention and two tickets in the field. It is best to wait until later in the year, however, to see whether these

Had a Whole Express Car Himselt, with None to Dispute Him.

A Bengal tiger and lion, bought for the "Zoo" in Central Park, New York City were shipped on an exin large wooden boxes, fortified by iron bars, apparently of great strength. Between Columbus and Delaware, O., Express Messenger only on train 17, and returning via Och K. Poore heard a grow behind him. He turned from the work upon which he was engaged at the moment and saw two "glaring, burning, bright" eyes watching him from the top of the tiger's cage. Mr. Poore did not make sny investigation. He knew what had happened and he went out of the car like a shot and hanged the deer behind. shot and banged the door behind him. From that time until the train reached Cleveland, the royal beast disported himself in the express car as royalty might. Feeling hungry E. Taylors to spend the summer. he broke open a case of condensed milk and breakfasted. After that during much of the time he sat upon the top of the case and amused himself and terrified the trainmen by looking out of the car window. No one ventured near him. At Cleveland the tiger was driven into his case, a board was nailed over the hole through which he had got out, and he was reshipped to New York.

HUGHESVILLE, - PA. F. W. Gal'agher,

The National Drink Peril. Quarterly Review, of the United Brethren in Christ, contains an able article upon "Our National Perils," by Bishop Hott, of California, in which he enumerates the drink evil as conspicuous among these perils. He declares that the drunkenness of our people has done much to debauch our national life; that it blasts everything it touches: just as it disgraces the individual character and life, just as it shames and wrecks the home, so it despoils and wrecks the State. The article arraigns the distiller and and saloonist as closing their eyes to the wreck of humanity wrought by their business. "This business," it affirms, "builds up an mmense capital from the poor without giving in return a morsel of eal good to the millions of its patrons. This money controls legislation, defies law, insults God. and promotes the murder of mankind." The writer comments with force upon the corrupting influence of the saloon and the drink traffic upon State and National politics, and concludes with an appeal to the Church of Christ, to the preacher of the Gospel, and to the Sabbath and secular school teacher, as "agents in the hands of God for preserving our nation from the perils which threat-en its overthrow." He gives a timely admonition that history repeats itself, that the wickedness of nations becomes their weakness; and that "Righteousness exalteth a a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

STEELTON, Pa., April 25, 1893. Like a thunder clap from a clear sky, the startling intelligence was hearlded about town on Friday April 28, that the Steelton Steel Company and an affiliated Corpora-tion, the Maryland Steel Company at Sparrows Point, Md., had passed into the hands of receivers, appointed by Judge Pennypacker. Had the heavens opened molten lead passed from its realms greater excitement could not have prevailed. Sudden as it was, it was as quickly calmed when the statement of May Bent, President of the Company became known to the superintendents, their assistants and men in charge, who quickly communicated their in-telligent and reliable information to the men in charge. The men were told that their would be no changes in the work before them, and that everything would be carried on as actively as in the past years. Large orders are awaiting the works and a steady, hard pull on the part of the laborers will be the estima-tion of the workers bringing the Company out of its present stringent position, so far as finances are concerned. It is remarkable that not a whimper of distrust was heard; and whimper of distrust was neard; and that the town that the Steel works built and established, will gleam with the prosperity in the future that has characterized it in the past is unquestioned. Every laboring man knows and feels he has a mission to perform, and that loyalty to Steelton contributes to it the largest part of the prosperity. Next to this feeling is the protection to them-selves, which can best be obtained by earnest individual effort. In fact the embarassment of the management of the Company, had no more evil influence, than the failure of a cheap green grocery would have created.

Pay day will come and be met the same as usual. Perfect confidence same as usual. Perfect connecence rules and no crisis like what is predicted in the outside world will be entertained for a moment in the entertained for a moment in the large bean in the larg terested in the most practi-cal way. No excitement pre-vails in Steelton, everything is quiet vails in Steelton, everything is quiet and the army of workmen are not disturbed in the least. Over $100,000 was paid out to the men on Saturday. Every one of the 4,500 employees on the pay roll received every dollar due him. There will be no stoppage of the works. Everything will go on as usual. A slight run was made on the bank by a few weak kneed depositors, who laid awake all night at their homes for fear some one would rob them. They had better left it in the bank.
