About the time the crime for which Yeagle and Ogden are now serving time, was committed, Finan was peddling liquor out of a wagon through Casmajority. cade, Gamble and McIntyre townships, having no license or shadow of right by law. Right after the murder a warrant was sworn out for his arrest before Alderman Gilmore, but he had vanished and dilligent search failed to reveal his whereabouts. A few days ago a clue was discovered to his whereabouts and County Detective Piatt called in to aid Constable McCrystal.

On Monday they left the city, and only yesterday afternoon were they able to find their man. He was taken before 'Squire Jennings, who placed him undr $300 bail for his appearance at court here in September. He does not deny his offence but says he did not know he was violating the law. As soon as he was made aware of it, he says, he quit. The authorities have a clear case against him. Alderman Gilmore received the papers this morn ing and will have them returned to eptember term.
