The cheapest property to-day in America is timber land. Its advance has not been rapid since the panic during the seventies. The demand for wood pulp, the wanton destruction by fire of our forests, the increase in our population and many other causes are tending to make timber more valuable. If you own woodland anywhere, hang on to it if you have to live on acorns and water.

A Petrified Body. The Juniata Star says that about five years ago Minnie Wetzel, of near Centre, Clinton county, aged about 18 years, took ill of pneumonia and after a severe struggle her spirit passed into the better land, and her remains were buried in the graveyard close to Centre church. A short time ago the body was lifted and placed in the Dunkard cemetery near Van Vert, where Mr. Wetzel had secured a family lot. When Mr. Christian Lantz, who superintended the work, took hold of the rough coffin he found it to be exceedingly heavy, and after further handling it was discovered that the body had been entirely petrified. It was now a solid stone of a beautiful gray color and in all respects as natural as the day when buried. - Clinton Republican.

Judgment for the Defendant. The arbitrators in the Frazier-Fox trespass case met at the Grand Jury room in the Court House at the appointed time on Tuesday, and as the plaintiff in the case did not appear a judgment of default was given in favor of the defendant, and the costs placed on the plaintiff. As we have before stated it is the general belief that this will end the case. Frazier and his attorneys claim that the defense has spirited away one of their important witnesses and they are unable to find him. On the other hand Fox and his attorneys claim that the witness can be secured without any trouble, if he is wanted. They say that the suit was brought through the influence of some political enemies of Fox, and that they are ready to have it come to trial at any time. This is the situation to-day. Frazier said the suit will be tried as soon as this witness (Williams) can be found, and Fox says he is ready but that he don't think the case will ever come to trial. It looks as though Fox was still Chairman of the Democratic County Committee, and is still on top. - Towanda Republican.

How the Devil Lost. The following is good to be lost. We clip it from an exchange paper, and respectfully call the attention to it of certain persons who feel disposed to spread in the newspaper line: A young man who ardently desired wealth was desired by his Satanic majesty, who tempted him to promise his soul for eternity, if he could be supplied on this earth with all the money he could use. The bargain was concluded—the devil was to supply the money, and was at last to have the soul, unless the young man could spend more money than the devil could furnish. Years passed away—the man married, was extravagant in his living, built palaces, speculated widely—lost and gave away fortunes, and yet his coffers were always full. He turned politician and bribed his way to power and fame, without reducing his "pile" of gold. He became a "blibuster," and fitted out ships and armies, but his banker honored all his drafts. He went to St. Paul to live, and paid the usual rates of interest for all the money he could borrow, but though the devil made very faces when he came to pay the bills, yet they were all paid. One excellent after another failed—the devil counted the time only two years, that he must wait for the soul, and mocked the efforts of the despairing man. One more trial was resolved upon—the man started a newspaper! The devil growled at the bills at the end of the first quarter, was savage in six months, melancholy in nine, and broke, "dead broke," at the end of the year. So the newspaper went down and the soul was saved.

THE GIRL CAME TO LIFE.

Her Neck was Broken, But She Revived After Being Pronounced Dead. CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 29.—Wednesday evening a telegram reached this city announcing the death at Garrett, Pa., of Miss Mattie Halley, a 14-year-old daughter of Thomas Halley, of this city. She was visiting relatives there and had gone out driving with a cousin about her age. The horse took fright and ran away, upsetting the carriage. Miss Halley fell on her head and broke her neck. She was not quite dead when help arrived, but before she could be moved she apparently expired. HER EYELIDS TWITCHED. After all efforts to revive her had failed, preparations were made for burial. She was laid out and the undertaker was expected to place the body in a casket for shipment to this city. Before he arrived the watchers around the supposed corpse noticed a twitching of the eyelids and presently she awoke, although still unconscious. The physicians were again summoned and treatment for her recovery began. They express their opinion that she will only live a short time.

A HARD FAMILY TO KILL. The Halley family seem to be possessed of wonderful vitality. When Edward, who was 6 years old, was kicked in the head by a horse and had his skull fractured, he lay in a comatose condition for a long while, and was several times reported dead.

The operation of trephining was performed and he now carries a silver plate in his head, enjoying the best of health.

STILL LOOKING FOR BURT.

Crowds Scouring the Woods in the Vicinity of Newtown.

A week has now passed since venerable Samuel Rightly and his aged wife, Lena, were found murdered and horribly burned in the house on their little farm, two and a half miles from Newtown, Bucks county, and the mystery surrounding the atrocious crime is as deep as it was Monday morning Sept. 25. The only thing that has been done in that time has been the placing of a chain of strong circumstantial evidence about the Wallace Burt, the half-breed Cherokee Indian, who slipped through the fingers of the authorities and is still at large. Many think that Burt is still in the neighborhood, and this belief is strengthened by the fact that last Friday night the spring house of Farmer Cooper, for whom Burt worked prior to his sudden flight, was broken into and a nice fat chicken and a quantity of other provisions stolen. The half-breed knew that edibles were kept in the spring house, and it is thought that only someone familiar with the place could have gained an entrance to it in the manner employed.

On Saturday half a hundred men, armed with corn knives, pitchforks and old rusty flint-locks, scoured the heavily wooded tract known as Laurel Hill, near the Cooper farm, but not a trace of the Indian could they find. All day yesterday parties of from two to half a dozen members tramped over the hills and along the bottoms of the Neshaminy in search of the fugitive, but they were rewarded with nothing but aching bones.

FARMERS AFRAID OF BURT. In spite of the fact that they can find no visible signs of the presence of the Cherokee in the vicinity, those engaged in the search are positive that he is not far away. This belief is shared by District Attorney Applebach, who will visit Newtown this afternoon and endeavor to secure half a dozen men to watch in the neighborhood at night, for the District Attorney is satisfied that Burt can be captured only when driven from his hiding-place in search of food.

Mr. Applebach is also of the opinion that some of the negroes in the vicinity know something of Burt's whereabouts and that they can be induced to tell what they know for a little money. The detectives working on the case have not struck any new clues, all their efforts being put forth to capture the Indian, whom they think is near at hand. All the farmers in the neighborhood are afraid of Burt, and the chances are that even if he was seen he could easily escape.

Captain William Wykoop, executor of the estate of the murdered couple, says that he will sell the property within a few days, to satisfy outstanding liens and other debts. It is not likely that the property will bring over $5,000 in open market, and that amount will not quite pay off all the debts upon the property.
