

THE REPUBLICAN.

W. M. CHENEY, - - - Editor. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1893.

Republican State Ticket. Justice of the Supreme Court. D. NEWLIN FELL, of Philadelphia. State Treasurer. SAMUEL M. JACKSON, of Armstrong. Republican County Ticket. For County Commissioners. J. J. Victory for the Vigilant. All honor to the Vigilant! Galantly she bore the Stars to Victory Saturday against the best boat that Britain could build. In a contest eminently fair, with a breeze fitted well to test the racing qualities of both, she administered a signal defeat.

The race was an international one in every respect. It was America against the British Empire. Ireland furnished the noble Earl who so chivalrously sought the trophy carried hither in 1851; Scotland produced the designer and the yacht, and England the club which is its sponsor for our visitor. From her keel to the pennant she flies the Valkyrie is British, owned by a peer of the realm, manned by a crew from Wight, sailed by a Channel skipper, and of design essentially embodying British ideas. The victor is American, typical and thorough. She is built of American material, sailed by a Yankee captain and a Yankee crew and owned by a number of patriotic gentlemen, whose sole object and glory in her construction is that she might retain the cup emblematic of the supremacy of the sea. In building her the centerboard was made the feature of her design. With it the Volunteer, the Puritan and Mayflower had sailed to glorious victories. It was American in origin as in practice, and played an important part in the conquest of Saturday.

Though the fullest of fair play was given the Valkyrie, there was not a single American who was not anxious and hopeful for the success of the Vigilant. From the humblest tenant about the docks to those who live behind the brownstone fronts and the oak doors of the aristocratic residential portions of New York there was an interest intense in the result. Men and women, too, who scarce could tell a yacht from a Canarder gathered about the wharves and the newspaper offices and scanned every bit of news and eagerly listened to every rumor that might tell of the progress of the race. They knew nothing of the boats or their merits, but they did know it was America against Britain, and because of that their joy knew no bounds when it was learned that the home boat had won.

On the water outside the Hook there was a city full of people, whose hearts and voices went out in a great chorus of jubilation as the Vigilant won. But in that jubilation there was not one word of discredit for the Valkyrie nor one sentiment of disrespect for her distinguished owner, forin defeat Danravan is a worthy foe, accepting his reverse as a sportsman should. He has done all that any Briton could, and failed, as others did. In the other races to be sailed he will endeavor to make amends for the defeat of Saturday, but every American will have confidence in the ability of the Vigilant to repeat her victory.

The old soldiers are not singing "As We Go Marching Through Georgia" over in Ohio this fall, but "As Georgia Goes Marching Through Us."

An Old Lady Seeks to Protect Her Late Husband's Land Entry

St. Louis, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Ann Walsh, a decrepit old lady, hobbled up to the bar in the Circuit Court here to-day to apply for naturalization papers. Her case is thought to be without precedent. She is the widow of James Walsh, who had declared his intention to become a citizen, but died before securing his final papers. He had made an entry of land, and Mrs. Walsh becomes naturalized to secure claims.

The Root of the Business Trouble.

The present business condition can be compressed into a sentence. Those who have money for permanent investment do not know whether the dollars they will receive in return for those they invest now will be worth one hundred cents or only fifty. Until they can be satisfied on this score their dollars will remain locked up in banks or private safes, and the business of the country will continue only from hand to mouth. There are crops in abundance, there is plenty of material waiting to be manufactured into the necessities and luxuries of human use, thousands of workmen are anxious to employ their trained hands and acute intellects in making the goods, there are backs to be clothed and stomachs to be filled—in short all the elements of usual business prosperity are waiting to be set in motion by an authoritative assurance that our financial system is or will be on a sound basis.

AN UNFATHERLY ACT.

Martin J. Burke Swears That His Two Boys Were Thieves.

Judge Brey of Philadelphia, on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday discharged from the house of Refuge Martin and Joseph Burke, aged respectively 12 and 10 years, who had been committed to that institution on the oath of their father, Martin J. Burke.

It appeared that the father had sworn before the Magistrate that the boys were given to pilfering, whereas the worst thing that could be said against them was that they had stolen some grapes from a neighbors arbor. Burke said he was out of work at the time and as he was unable to support the children he had taken this action to relieve himself of their charge. He was at present conducting a laundry on North Second Street, and was anxious to get them back. The managers of the House of Refuge would have discharged the boys, but as there was some dispute among their relatives as to who should have the custody of the children the matter was left for the court to decide. The Judge said that it was an infamous thing for a father to swear that his children were thieves when such was not the case. He awarded the children to the father, and if he did not support them properly they would be given to their grandmother.—Phila. Times.

An Important Decision.

The supreme court this week handed down several important opinions, among them that relating to partition of fence lines, which is of special interest to farmers. It has been held by many eminent lawyers that when the fence law of 1700 with regard to outside fences was repealed in 1842, that the act of 1842, which required the erection of line or partition fences, not being specified in the act, continued to remain a law. On the other hand lawyers of high standing claimed that the act of 1842 was repealed by implication when the act of 1700 was removed from the statute books. But Judge McClure held that the law of 1842 is valid and Judge Denn has sustained him in this view, the point of difference being where the supreme court held that in the case of Barber vs. Mensch, that the defendant should have seen that there was sufficient fencing to keep in his own cattle, notwithstanding the fact that there had existed between the litigants an agreement for each to keep up one-half of the fence. Hereafter then, according to Judge Denn's decision, a man who wishes to pasture cattle must see that the whole partition or line fence is sufficient to keep his cattle on his own premises, with the right to recover one-half of the cost of the fence from his adjoining. In other words, the supreme court holds that all agreements between parties for the maintenance of one-half by each will not stand, and that the man who wishes to pasture his cattle must see to it that they do not damage his adjoining. In cases where you have already built your half under an agreement your only remedy against your adjoining who refuses to build his half is to construct the fence and then put viewers on under the act of 1842 to recover the cost of your adjoining's half.
