Resolved, that the delegate or delegates present, cast the entire vote of their respective precincts. This caused some debate and it was on Sunday, April 29th. argued that each precinct should send their quota of delegates to the convention. After the secretaries had read over the names of the delegates to the convention of the delegates to the convention. After the secretaries had read over the names of the delegates to the convention. gates, Chairman Jennings announced that nominations for delegate to the

State Convention, was in order. Frank Hannon nominated Hon. W. C. Rogers of Forksville, and T. S. Simmons nominated F. P. Vincent of Dushore. This closed the nominations. Before balloting the following receiving receiving the state of following resolution, was

mously passed:

R:solved, "that the choice of this Convention is Hastings for Governor; Robinson for Lieut. Governor, and Grow for Congressman-at-Large. and the delegate to the State Convention, from this Convention, shall vote for the aforesaid candidates as long as the names are before the State Convention."

A ballot was then taken with the following result:
W. C. Rogers had 19 votes, and F.

P. Vincent had 34 votes. Vincent was declared elected :

The Convention voted that the Chairman of the Standing Committee call the County Convention for the purpose of nominating candidates for county and district offices, during the month of June. On motion adjourned.

Every careful observer knows that the weather has a great effect on humanity. The head of a factory employing 3,000 workmen recently said: "We reckon that a disagreeable day yields about ten per cent. less work than a delightful day and we thus have to count this as a factor in our profit and loss account." Accidents are more numerous on bad days. No wise man will try to collect a long standing debt on a gloomy day, neither will he make an effort to gain any special purpose while the skies are over cast. Fair days make men accessible and generous and open to consider new problems favorably. While mind is superior to matter it is certainly clearer on a clear day. There are, of course, functional states of the body that predispose people to mental depression or exhilaration. A torpid liver, a chronic catarrh, a rheumatic joint, and even a corn may render one susceptible to weather changes. One may read the daily newspapers for weeks and not see an account of a suicide, says a local observer, and in a single day may read of a score of persons who have taken their own lives. An oppressive atmosphere invariably causes depressed spirits. When-ever a person gets into a mood of despondency it is well for them to reason that it is a condition, like many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like, a pressing the many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like, a pressing the many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like, a pressing the many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like, a pressing the many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like, a pressing the many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like, a pressing the many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like, a pressing the many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like, a pressing the many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like, a pressing the many others of earth, that will not lest hum move away like a pressing the many others of earth, that reason that it is a condition, like many others of earth, that will not last, but move away like a passing cloud,—Ex.
