A Year of Failure.

It is now almost exactly a year since the Fifty-third Congress met in special session at the call of the President. The Committee on Ways and Means of the House started to work on a tariff bill at once, and prepared the first draft just before Congress reassembled in December. It was a monstrous bill—one that simply assassinated American industries by the score. The House took hold of the matter and managed to improve it considerably, though when it went to the Senate last February it still was about as bad as the worst enemy of the country could have wished.

The Senate prepared a new bill, which was bad enough, but was a distinct advance over the House bill, in that it recognized industries north of Mason and Dixon's line. But this would not suit certain Democrats, who loved their States better than the Cleveland brand of Democracy. So a practically new bill was made, which still further recognized protection with the knowledge and consent of the President. Then came the deluge.

President Cleveland's letter has thrown his party into a state of ferment. It has arrayed some of his strongest supporters against him and brought his chief enemy to his defense. Democrat has risen up against Democrat. The knife is out. The air is full of mutterings and threats. The bill was saved from defeat by the action of the Populist in refusing to vote, but it is still in jeopardy.

The Senate insists on its bill again and the House, while holding out, shows signs of wavering by talking of a caucus. So the end seems as far off as ever. It is certain to be the Senate bill or no bill, and the President cannot sign it without stultifying himself. He demands free coal and iron. A tariff on these he calls "perfidy and dishonor." Can he indorse such a bill?

To this condition have we come at last that the Democratic party, strongly entrenched in power, cannot carry through a measure which it claims to have been overwhelmingly demanded by the people in 1892. If the people ever made such a demand they have repudiated it long ago and in November will make another demand of a different kind. If a Tariff bill is not passed within a few weeks the McKinley law will remain in force for the next ten years.

No such demonstration of the incompetency and dishonesty of Democracy could have been asked by Republicans as the party in power has shamelessly given the public. The Democratic party has neither courage nor convictions and is drifting hopelessly on a stormy sea.

Its first year of power has been one of absolute failure. Who can deny it?

One of the first results of the war between Japan and China is the intimation that both nations will try to negotiate loans in England. Neither Japan nor China may make much out of the war, but the British money-lenders will get a clinch on both nations, and thus the way will be opened for Great Britain as a nation to protect British interests in these countries. This protection never has any meaning but one, and it would not be surprising if the war gave an opportunity to Great Britain to obtain a hold in China and Japan that will be difficult to shake loose.

Stowe & Co. carry a car load of special scenery, the transformation scene and mechanical effects are the finest ever seen.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Rondism will not be tolerated in the picnic grove nor in the streets of Laporte on the 15th of August. There is not a use of us mentioning this, however, as we do not address our paper to those kind of people. Stroh suppose you give them a tip through Grandmother.

New York has on its statute book a law which once prevailed in Pennsylvania rating human life as worth at the outside $5,000. Its railroad companies cannot be compelled to pay more than that sum for any life lost through the carelessness and negligence of their management.

Gov. Pattison and his staff will ride from Harrisburg to Gettysburg to attend the Annual Encampment of the National Guard, which meets there August 11, 1894. He will be accompanied by the Governor's Troop of Harrisburg, as an escort and probably the City Troop will make the march with the above.

United States District Attorney E. P. Ingham of Philadelphia and who is visiting friends in Laporte, left for Gettysburg on Tuesday. He goes to commence suit against the parties who are excavating for a trolley line and defacing the old battle field. It is probable that this matter will be amicably settled in due time.

Sheriff Mahaffey made fun for the boys on Monday. He attempted to carry a hod of mortar to the second story of the court house. The thing split out behind and covered him with the mushy stuff from his neck to his heels. He was a sight to behold, and the boys gave a laugh that rocked the court house foundation.

If you can't keep cool altogether, keep as cool as you can. Don't get worried over little things. It never pays, and in this sort of weather it is positively dangerous. Don't drink much ice water, nor drinks that heat the blood. In a word, be temperate in all things if you desire to pass through the heated term with any degree of comfort.

The work of drilling at the Forkston oil well came to a sudden termination on Friday last and it was given out by those engaged there that the work had stopped because there were no indications of oil. The derrick and works were closed up and it is understood that another well will be put down nearer the vicinity of the one put down a dozen years ago.—Ex.

The season at Eagles Mere is now at its height, all or nearly all, of the cottages being full and all of the hotels being comfortably filled. The extreme hot weather of the past three weeks has driven people to seek the coolest places possible and the Mere with its high grounds, pure air and water and beautiful and dense shade is one of the coolest spots in Pennsylvania.

MARRIED:—Mr. Ernest Hegel of Laporte and Miss Martha Tetzlaff of St. Paul, Minn., on Tuesday, July 24, 1894. The marriage took place at Buffalo, N. Y., Rev. J. Brezizing officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Hegel came to Laporte on Wednesday of last week and commenced house keeping on Thursday. Mr. H. is head book keeper at the Laporte tannery for the Union Tanning Company. The REPUBLICAN and hosts of friends extend congratulations.

TO PROTECT WILLIAMSPORT.

A Novel Scheme to Keep the Water Out of Their City.

Williamsport is still waiting the arrival of a government engineer from Washington to tell them how to protect their city from overflow. They had a meeting of citizens and council's committee Tuesday of last week at which Mr. Young presided. He read a telegram from Maj. Raymond, the government engineer, assigned to give an opinion in the matter, announcing that he could not get here before September 1, but was ready to send an engineer to do the preliminary work as soon as he was informed what was wanted.

Mr. Young was instructed to inform Maj. Raymond that they wanted advice as to the most feasible and economic means of protecting Williamsport against maximum floods and are ready to give data and all required information as soon as the engineer arrives.

During the evening Mr. Young said he had as chairman of the committee received many suggestions as to the best means of preventing any more big floods, but he would only report one as the man who offered it said it was the only one. This man told Mr. Young that the thing to do would be to start at Chesapeake Bay and dig the channel of the river ten feet deeper and 100 feet wider as far up as Clearfield.

SONESTOWN ITEMS.

H. C. Boatman has moved into the Casselbury house above town. Haying is about all done around here and the crop was not up to the average.

Cyrus B. Miller died on Monday, July 30. Will be buried on Wednesday Aug. 1.

Passengers for Eagles Mere are much more plentiful than some time ago, on the E. M. R. R.

The agents of Stoves Uncle Tom's Cabin, are billing this town and vicinity for a performance at this place on Aug. 6th.

We expect a large picnic to pass our town on Thursday Aug. 2, en route to Eagles Mere. The picnic, we understand will be under the jurisdiction of Camp 157 P. O. S. of A. of Williamsport, Pa. Sonestown, Pa., July 31, 1894.

A team of horses hitched to a mower, on which was seated Wm. Bird, whose farm is near Liberty, Lyeomung county, ran away on Thursday, July 19th, throwing Mr. Bird in front of the knives. He was frightfully cut about the arms and legs. One leg was so badly injured that amputation at the knee was necessary. This should remind our farmer boys to be careful while harvesting with a machine.

Newspaper subscriptions are infallible tests of a man's honesty. If he has any dishonest blood in him he will cheat the printer by any and every means in his power—declare he has paid when he has not, or that he has a receipt at home which shows that he had paid when he has not, or that the money was lost in the mails. Many an otherwise honest man is dishonest in this respect. The country printer's subscription book will tell a fearful tale on the final day of reckoning.

A MISER'S ESTATE.

Setting the Question of Heirship to the Grimm Fortune. NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 29.—Further complications have arisen in the disposal of the $30,000 left by Miser Grimm in the granting of an order by the Orphans' Court of Newark to Francis W. Knowles for the distribution of the estate of the late Edmund Slater. It will be argued on September 18, and the question heirship to the Grimm fortune is involved in the suit.

Mrs. Sarah J. Slater, who claims the Grimm money in behalf of her daughter, Mrs. Benjamin O. Sutton, of 313 Broad street, Newark, N. J., is the direct defendant in the suit, which has been instituted by Samuel Slater, who claims that she was not the legal wife of his father, and therefore not entitled to any of his property. The elder Slater died in February, 1892, leaving an estate valued at $10,000, of which Mrs. Slater received her dower and $30,000 life insurance.

Grimm died in a hotel in February, 1892, at Freehold.

Securities valued at $30,000, were found in his hut, but no will.

Frank Evans, County Prosecutor of Monmouth county, was appointed administrator, and great surprise was occasioned when Mrs. Slater presented her claim as legal heir.

Mrs. Slater bases her claim on a marriage which she asserts was contracted with Grimm in 1865 Charles H. Dunham and Abram Van Vleet, who witnessed the ceremony, which was performed in this city, are willing to swear to their knowledge of the facts in the case. Lawyer Smith promises some startling and sensational revelations when the case is tried in the Monmouth county courts.
