

OUT FOR GEN. HASTINGS.
TO THE BERNICE MINERS.

A Democratic Newspaper Comes Out, Favoring the Election of Hastings for Governor.

The Bituminous Record, of Phillipsburg, Pa., a Democratic paper, but the representative of the labor organizations of that section, is out for Hastings, and prints the following as Hastings' record as a coal operator:

First—In the settlement of adjustment of any difference arising between his employees and himself over matters of wages General Hastings always recognized the policy of arbitration and conciliation. To such an extent did he observe this policy that during his eleven year's career as an operator he never had a strike in any one of his mines, unless the strike was general throughout the district.

Second—He preferred to treat with representatives of the miners' organization rather than treat with individuals, always recognized committees representing his employees the checkweighmen association or the national or district organization of the miners.

Third—Without cost to his employees he collected the checkweighman money through the office as well as any other monies the men asked to have collected in that manner.

Fourth—He always paid as high wages as were paid in the district, (some times higher for deficiency works), paid his men in accordance with the semi-monthly law, and always paid in cash.

Fifth—He was always opposed to the pluck-me store system; never had a store in connection with his mines and never dealt in store orders, paying the men in accordance with the law.

Sixth—He recognized no blacklist, gave employment to any applicant no matter what the applicant's reputation was as an upholder of labor organizations, provided there was a vacant place in the mine.

Seventh—Representatives of the district or national organizations among the miners never hesitated to call on General Hastings in any matter in dispute for the reason that they knew they would be received cordially and courteously.

Eighth—He always advocated better prices for coal, never offered his miners lower wages than other miners in the district were receiving, was not operating a mine at the time of the recent reduction, and in every respect, while an operator, treated the miners as men, and in case of accident to any of them was more liberal in his donations.
