LET US HAVE PEACE. enator Quay is in a Position to Make Harmony in the Repub-lican Party at Once.

Since Senator Quay's two overwhelming defeates in Lackawanna county, following his defeat in Clearfield and Sullivan, the newspapers which are waging his "campaign of assassination" against the State administration are one and all crying out for compromise and peace. The of Bradford, publications of Megins terms of compromise they propose Tue Williamsport court house will are simple, State Chairman Gilkeson is to be abandoned by his supporters and Senator Quay will then withdraw from the fight and put one of his lieutenants-Andrews, Leach, Watres or some other-in his place.

This is the old compromise of the turkey and the buzzard over again. Said the white man to the Indian, You take the buzzard and I will traders. take the turkey, or 1 will take the turkey and you take the buzzard." It is such a compromise as Beauregard might have proposed to the gallant Major Andreson at Fort "You needn't surrender Sumter: to me. Just haul down your flag and give up the fort to one of my lieutenants."

If Senator Quay will only consent to peace, nobody else need be consulted, and no terms of compromise need be consulted, and no terms of compromise need be formulated. He has only to cease making war. The the Democracy. It was in a state of profound and healthy peace until Senator Quay, without warning, explanation or excuse, saying only that he would "mention his reasons" held a festival for the benefit of after the fight is over, declared war and the Republican organization cumstances, a party which would not rise up to defend its own elected leaders against such an attack would be beneath contempt, and an adminschool convention will be held at istration which would suffer itself to be insulted and assailed without striking back would make every promptly. Any school that has not Republican ashamed who voted for

We all want peace, but it must be peace without dishonor. It cannot be had at the cost of kicking out Chairman Gilkeson, for no reason under heavens save that Senato Quay doesn't want him there, and substituting Andrews or some other willing tool of Senator Quay's ambition to rule the party as an absolute tyrant. The compromise sug gested, indeed, is no change from Senator Quay's original program for it is well understood that Quay's victory means Andrews as the actual session of Congress will demand

ocord of the First White Men in the North and West Branch of the Susquehanna,

The writer in reviewing material for our county history has been led by recent publications of Meginness in his Historical Journal to compile the following paper, taken from Miner's History of Wyoming, Craft's ness, and the Now and Then, published by Gurnard of Muncy.

In the summer of 1618 Etinne Brule in company with french traders from Canada penetrated the wilderness along the west branch, making a record of the names of streams and other subjects of local importance and by so doing prepared the way for subsequent adventurers and

The Susquehanna Indians were early trained to the use of fire arms. Shortly after the Sweeds came, in 1638 they induced three of their soldiers to join them and teach them the European modes of war. It is believed that the Indian forts at the mouth of Sugar creek, near Towanda were erected under their supervision.

For a number of years after the first appearance of the Europeans, the Indians of the Snsquehanna were in constant warfare with other tribes who were making inroads upon them.

In 1661 the legislature of Maryland authorized the Governor to aid them with the provincial forces. Their strength was estimated in 16-47 as being able to put into the field one thousand three hundred warriors trained in the use of fire arms, and by 1672 they were so reduced that they were only able to muster 300.

The places of their villages were well known, but they abandoned the country about Wyoming as early as 1650. The Iriquioss then became the ruling power and by forming a confedracy with five other nations exercised supremacy over a large extent of country from Canada to the southern border of Pennsylvania. Tioga (now Athens) was made the southern enterance to the confederacy and at Shamokin, present Sunbery the great council had a viceroy From two maps showing the location of Indian villages, one found in the history of Bradford county and the other in the Now and Then of February 1890, it is found that nearly all the Indian trails through North-central Pennsylvania converge to one or the other of these places. The road most frequently mentioned connecting these points is known on both maps as the Sheshequin path. This path takes a westerly course from a point a short distance above Towarda and following along Sugar chairman. The work of the coming creek to the western border of the county, thence south to Lycoming session of Congress will demand senator Quay's constant presence at Washington, and Andrews, as in ,90, will run the machine. We believe that the Republican party generally has all the experience of Mr. Andrews as a State chairman that it is willing to take at the price.—Sunbury Amercan.

The enterance of either white men or that of Indians of other tribes than those who were tributary to the confederacy were requested to report to one or the other of these two points. For many years the French seem to have been the only and the course of the west Branch crossing the river and 'following nearly a direct line to the mouth of White Creek to the West Branch crossing the river and 'following nearly a direct line to the mouth of White Creek to the Mest Branch crossing the river and 'following nearly a direct line to the mouth of White Creek to the Mest Branch crossing the river and 'following nearly a direct line to the mouth of White Creek to the Mest Branch crossing the river and 'follo Senator Quay's constant presence at creek and following the course of the at the site of Northumberland. He was known as an Indian trader. In 1728 the Colonial Governor of Penusylvania sent white messengers to visit Shamokin. Following this date we come to the first mention of Conrad Weiser who for many years was in the employ of the Government as Indian Agent and Iterperter. He was also the great reliance of first Moravean Missionaries in their efforts to become acquainted with the Indians. Mention is made of his visits both on the North and West Branch in 1737. In 1742 Nicholas Louis, commonly known as Count Zinzindorf who had arrived in America the year previous in the capacity of Bishop of the Moravian Mission commenced, personally his labors in breaking ground among the more remote Indian villages. Securing aid from Weiser in obtaining an assistant who could converse with the people he went to Wyoming in the month of September 1742 and spent 20 days in successful labor when he returned to the mission station at Bethlehem, Shortly after, during October, he in company with Weiser and three missionaries visited the Indian village at the mouth of Loyalsock creek where Madame Montour then panied with Indian guides, set dilt on horseback from Philadelphia off the 3d of July for a tour of observation to the Northern lakes and the borders of Canada, from their published observations they doubtless followed the Sheshequin path from Sunbury reaching the head waters of the Towarda creek on the 15th and the next day reached Tioga point-Athens. From that point they pass ed up the Susquehanna and made the journey through the lake country. On the 7th of August they returned to Tioga and reached the divide between the Towarda and Lycoming creeks two days later. This tour of observation doubtless had an important relation to the settlement of our country. Two important publications were afterwards made in London by them, viz: "Observations on the Inhabitants, Climate, Soil Productions, made by John Bartram in his travels from Pennsylvania to Lake Ontario in Canada," "A General Map of the Middle British Colonies, by Lewis Evans."

These publications would attract English adventurers to the route of their travels and among those early known to make large investments were Priestly and Vaughn. An important land mark first noted by them but 3 miles west of the border line of our county was the point of divide between the Towanda and Lycoming creeks, the following is from Bartram's notes, "This, like a bridge between the north-east and north-west branches of the Susquehanna here is a spring from whence the water runs to both branches."

This point was an important one in the Indian treaty of 1768 and from that date to the erection of our county in 1847 was an important one In fixing the respective boundaries of all the surrounding counties.
