GERMANY IN THE EAST. Project to Establish Sample Rooms in Oriental Cities.

Consul Monaghan writes that German newspapers are agitating the establishment of sample warerooms in the cities of the Far East, as a method most likely to yield the largest returns de Janeiro, for one year, is worth a so eloquent and instructive as direct contact with the objects offered for sale, nor is any nation above this need. The Japanese Consul in Bombay is urging his people to put forth every effort along these lines. Since the return of the Lyons commission France is organizing syndicates to extend trade, which send out and maintain one or more agents to show samples, obtain orders and keep in touch with the trade. Consul Monaghan further says: 'The East has more than half the human race to clothe and feed, and no nation has opportunities like our own. With lines of steamers from San Fran-cisco, Seattle and Portland; with a canal via Nicaragua or Panama, and communication with the Gulf and Atlantic cities, we must participate as no other power can in the commercial splendor promised for the coming century. If coarse cottons can be spun and woven in the South; if Alabama can make iron rails as cheap or cheaper than England; if Europe buys our machines, locomotives, tools, agricultural implements, etc., we must carry these

The Children's Crusade

Although the children's crusade came was a children's great was the excitement, the fanaticism, and the craze of the entire move-ment. Stephen, a twelve-year- old boy from among the French peasantry, preached the crusade; he declared that Christ had commanded him to lead the children of Jerusalem and so eloquent were the words of this lad, so impregnated with the idea was the very air, that children gathered at his call by the thousands. Even bolts and bars, we are told, could not hold them.

Pitiable beyond realization must have been the scenes presented by this mimic crusade, which saw 50,000 German boys and girls, under twelve years of age, cross the Alps—a feat, which or age, cross the Alps—a reat, which when performed by Napoleon was deemed wonderful—march down the Italian coast looking for a miraculous pathway through the Mediterranean; pitiable their disappointment when no not only on the addition to her industries but also on the coming of excellent citizens in the persons of Mr. Kennedy and estimable wife. oblivion of the 3,000 little crusaders for they were never heard of more. Of the expedition, 30,000 French children had gathered at Marseilles. Of these tract is from one dated Feb. 1, 1766: Shipped, by the Grace of God, in good order and well conditioned, by James —, in and upon the good ship called the Mary Borough, whereof its master, under God, for this present voyage, Cantain Payld Moston, and now ridge, Captain David Morton, and now riding at anchor at the Barr of Senegal, and by God's grace bound for Georgey, in South Carolina, to say, twenty-four prime slaves, six prime women slaves, &c. It ends with the pious wish that "God send the good ship to her desired port in safety. Amen."

However impious it may appear to us to associate the name of God with the iniquitous traffic, still it was looked apon by many as a divine institution, directly sanctioned by the Bible. The famous slave-trading Captain, John Newton, afterward to be the Rev. John Newton of Olney, hymn writer and friend of Cowper, did by no means see it to be his duty to change his profession immediately after his conversion though he ultimately became an abo litionist; he carried on slavetrading for years after he was a devout Christian, has been made a colonel for sinking the Democratic ship, Lieut.
