Harrisburg, Pa., April 25.—Upon the receipt of the news from Philadelphia that Senator Quay had been acquitted of the conspiracy charges Gov. Stone appointed Quay United States Senator until the regular Legislative session of

The appointment is addressed to the President of the United States, and it is stated in the letter to be made under the authority of clause 2 of section 3 of article 1 of the Constitution of the United States.

Philadelphia. April 25.—Ex-Senator Matthew S. Quay was declared not guilty Friday of the charge against him of conspiracy to use unlawfully money of the Commonwealth deposited at the People's Bank. The verdict was returned at 11 o'clock, when the jury, which had retired at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, was brought in after an aunouncement that an agreement had been reached. The acquit tal was generally expected after the prosecution rested on Wednesday afternoon, having offered practically only expert testimony to prove the case. The jury, when it withdrew, took into the jury room all the books of the bank and the other documents which had been admitted into evidence and which had formed the basis for the expert's testimony, and it had been thought that the jury might not finish its examination of the books so soon. Papers and books found in the desk of John S. Hopkins, cashier of the People's Bank in Philadelphia, were the ground of the proceedings against Quay. Hopkins committed suicide towards the end of March, 1898, and as soon as papers left by him were opened, and it was found that certain of Hopkins's transactions had imperilled the bank, the doors were shut and a receiver was appointed.

This receiver, Thomas W. Barlow, found, as testified later, books and papers in Hopkins's desk which, it was alleged, implicated Quay with others in the unlawful use of State funds deposited in the bank.

"SEDITION," "TREASON."

Gen. Otis Says Volunteers in Philippines Have Received "Seditious and Treasonable Telegrams.

Erving Winslow, Secretary of the Anti-Imperialistic League Says President Me-Kinley Should Be Impeached for Employing the Army and Navy in War With Filipinos, Unauthorized By Congress.

Washington, April 25.—The Administration officials are indignant toward the people of the United States who, they say, are endeavoring, by causing dissatisfaction among the troops in the Philippines, to weaken the American position, with the obect of forcing the Government to abandon the islands. Major-Gen. Otis says, in explanation of the dissatisfaction among the volunteers, that a number of seditious and treasonable telegrams were received at Manila from the United States for dissipation and the treasonable telegrams were received at Manila from the United States for dissipation was a Cab tribution among the troops. A Cab-inet officer is authority for the state-ment that there is a concerted movement in this country to prevent, by un-derhanded and treesonable means, the Government from obtaining possession of the Philippines. He further says, "It is the present intention of the Administration to make a public exposure of the plot, with the names of those concerned in it, when all the details are obtainable.

There is no concealment of the fact that the Government was very much surprised and chagrined over the apparent desire of a majority of the volunteers now in the Philippines to return home at once. Telegrams received recently from Gen. Otis had said, that the volunteers were cheerful and enthe volunteers were cheerful and en-thusiastic and were unanimous in the desire to remain while there was fighting to do. These despatches were sent by Gen. Otis, supposedly after he had made careful inquiry as to the feeling of the State organizations, and know-ing how how conservative he is in all things, the Administration was satis fied that it was easy sailing with the troops. It was, therefore, with the troops. It was, therefore, with the most intense surprise that the Government learned that the volunteers, or a majority of them, wanted to return to the United States when peace between this country and Spain was declared. Under the terms of this enlistment they are entitled to immediate muster out of the Federal service as soon as peace was declared, and the provision of the Army Reorganization act for out of the Federal service as soon as peace was declared, and the provision of the Army Reorganization act for the retention of those volunteers now in the Philippines for an additional period of six months was not compulsory in its application.

Enough information has been receive from Gen. Otis, taken in connection with what the Administration has ascertained in this country, to justify the assertion made by a prominent official that their is a concerted movement in the United States to compel the Government to relinguish control of the Philippines. Anti-expansionists have been sending letters to the solidiers in the Philippines, urging them to insist upon being allowed to return home. It is stated on authority of this same Cabinet officer that there will be a complete public exposure of the persons, but this may be changed to a determination to proceed against them through the proper tribunals, with a view to funishing them. To use his own language: "Leaving out of consideration the other matters involved, it is said that the Government can collect enough evidence to convict some people in this country of the crime of attempting to incite United States troops to mutiny." to mutiny.

In his telegram Gen. Otis did not tell In his telegram Gen. Ous du not ten the names of the persons in the Unit-ed States who had sent the telegrams which excited his indignation. A de-spatch has accordingly been sent to him asking him for particulars.

stead of Talking of Treason.

Boston, Mass., April 24—Erving Winsiow, Secretary of the Anti-Imperialistic League, said that the charge was ridiculous concerning the implication of treason in the act of writing letters to soldiers in the Philippines urging them to withdraw. Mr. Winslow said that there was no such thing as treason except an overt act against the Government. Constructive treason was not recognized by the Constitution of the United States. He declared that it was of course imposible to tell what some individuals might have attempted to do, whose indignation had been excited by the President's action. He continues: tic League, said that the charge was excited by the President's action. He continues:

"If there is to be any punishment inflicted it should be by, way of impeachment of the President, who employed the army and navy of the nation in war against the people of the Philippines with the avowed purpose of destroying their army and of reducing the people to admit the sover-eignty of our Government, while it is not pretended that this war was declared by Congress, in which body alone, under our Constitution, the right to declare war exists."

Mr. Winslow intimated that it would be difficult for anybody to clude the press censorship and get despatches to the Philippines. The complaint all along has been that the press censorship was so rigid that nobody knew what was going on in the Philippines. That was one of the chief things criticised in the anti-imperialist meeting in Tremont Temple.

ENEMIES COMPLETELY ROUTED.

spiracies in the History of the Nation After a Ten Days' Session in the Courts of Philadelphia.

(Special Correspondence.) Philadelphia, April 25.—Colonel Mat-Philadelphia, April 25.—Colonel Mat-thew Stanley Quay has been complete-ly vindicated by a jury of his piers in the trial growing out of a dastardly conspiracy of his political enemies. Twelve American citizens, "good men and true," have found a verdict of "not guilty" in what will be memorable as the most celebrated case in court in the political history of this country.

This closing chapter in the history of persecution and character assassination was marked by scenes such as have never been paralleled in and about a Philadelphia court room. The minute the verdict was announced it was pandemonium let loose. Men shouted and tossed their hats and surged about this silent but happy man. Women cried, waved their hand-kerchiefs and tried to throw their armsabout his neck. In the midst of it all Quay, dignified, silent, with face as imperturbable as ever, grasped hands as they came and vainly tried to elbow his way to a place where he could be This closing chapter in the history his way to a place where he could be his way to a place where he could be alone.

He said but few words, but there was a softness in the tone of his voice as he repeatedly murmured "Thank you." He felt more than he said, for to him it was the flood tide of light after the hour of darkness. His triumph had come and, best of all, this man who has been hounded as few have been hounded before, saw and heard and felt that the people were with him.

THE VERDICT RECEIVED.

THE VERDICT RECEIVED.

It was a few minutes before 11 o'clock on Friday last when the jury appeared in court and Crier Hart stepped forward and in cold, official accents said: "Gentlemen of the jury, are you agreed upon your verdict?"

Foreman Hill, who is a blonde haired young man, nodded his head as he answered: "Yes, sir."

THE VERDICT.

"How say you? Do you find the defendant guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty," came the answer in a voice that could be heard all over the

If the jurors answered to the next question, "And so say you all?" no one heard it, for the first "burst of a cheer," suppressed by the louder yells of "silence" from the tipstaves, drowned the words. Every one rose to his feet, and the yells of "silence" were followed by cries of "sit down," "sit down."

Quay himself came near giving way. His Jaw quivered an instant, his eyes grew moist, but he recovered himself as the big and burly Shapley grasped his hand, excalaming, "Let me congratulate you, senator." Mr. Shields was pouring out his congratulations at the same time.

Outside in the corridor there was no judge to be respected and no officer to quell the tumuit, for they were all too busy cheering with the rest. He at last managed to edge his way to the corridor. But it was getting from the frying pan into the fire. It wasn't a crowd that was waiting for him. It was a mob drunk with joy, mad with enthusiasm. Cheer after cheer rent the air and shats flew up with the recklessness of frenzy. The guards made no effort to quell the tumult. They were yelling and cheering with the rest, It took the senator nearly ten minutes to reach the corner where the elevators are located. He at last managed to get clear of the mob.

OFF FOR WASHINGTON.

The senator was still disinclined to talk, but when some one excitedly denounced Martin, Wanamaker and Gordon, he remarked with a smile: "Well, they made lots of trouble for me." As soon as the excitement had died down Colonel Quay slipped down to the Walton, packed up, and with his son Richard and Private Secretary Wright, took the first train for Washington.

At the Walton and at the depot the senator had to hold two more receptions. Those that witnessed the scene at the station say it was almost without parallel. The hero of the day was almost in danger of his life, and cheers still echoed in his ears as the train pulled out.

senator quay had left town when the announcement of his appointment as United States senator was wired from Harrisburg. The action of Governor Stone only added fuel to the fire of enthusiasm, and the plaudits for the executive were as plentiful as were the tributes to Quay.

A JUST VERDICT.

A JUST VERDICT.

Not even Senator Quay's worst enemy—If he be sane—can gainsay the fact that the verdict was just. The odds were all against acquittal. The district attorney took every advantage of his privilege to stand jurors aside, and he held the whip hand when the 12 men were selected. Judge Biddle also gave the prosecution the widest latitude and they presented all they had, which was—nothing.

District Attorney Rothermel, although he lost the case, made his reputation as a criminal lawyer. He was a match for the other side at every point. The only reason he lost was that he had no case to start with. But during the entire trial Mr. Rothermel was not only a great and ingenuous attorney, but he was a gentle man. The case was a legacy left him by his predecessor. It had been born during the closing agonies of Graham, and conceived when he first tasted the bitter cup of defeat. The trial itself has been remarkable in many ways. It was at the close of the tenth day that the case, was submitted to the jury.
