SENATOR PENROSE SPEAKS.

"The action of the state convention in making an unequivocal declaration pledging the Republican organization of Pennsylvania to McKinley's renomination," said Senator Boies Penrose, emphatically, "was undoubtedly in accord with the sentiment of the Republican voters of the state. The campaign just closed with such gratifying results was conducted upon the issue that support of the Republican state ticket meant an endorsement of the McKinley administration and concurrence in the pledge of the platform of the Republican state convention to favor the renomination of the president. The verdict of the people of this commonwealth is eminently complimentary to the McKinley administration, and when coupled with the splendid Republican victory in Ohio, the president's own state, it makes a magnificent tribute from the American people. The matter of the election of stalwart Republicans as delegates to the Republican national convention will now be taken up by the Republican voters of the respective districts, and I have no doubt that no state in the Union will send a delegation to the next national convention which will more satisfactorily and truly represent the sentiments of the Republicans of their respective districts than will that from Pennsylvania."

EX-CHAIRMAN ELKIN'S VIEWS.

"The vote at last Tuesday's election," said Attorney General John P. Elkin, "must be, indeed, gratifying to every sincere friend of the president. Pennsylvania will know no other choice for the presidency in 1900. A popular vote has already indicated the popular favorite. It now devolves upon the men identified with the party organization in the various congressional districts to select stalwart, representative Republicans who will go to the national convention pledged to President McKinley's renomination. It was a happy thought to have had the recent Republican state convention put the Republican organization on record thus early, and it is pleasing to find the sentiment of the voters of the state so cordially concurring in the proposition. The splendid organization which has withstood the onslaughts of political insurgents and guerrillas for so many campaigns will be lined up against any efforts to break into the national delegation in the interest of any candidate other than President McKinley, and the organization will be found thoroughly competent to thwart any scheme or intrigue to divide the delegation against President McKinley."

GUFFEY WORKING FOR BRYAN.

Colonel James M. Guffey, the member of the Democratic national committee from Pennsylvania, and the acknowledged leader of the party in this state, is attending to the matter of selecting a Bryan delegation. He has within the last few days publicly declared that "nothing but declination or death can prevent Bryan securing the Democratic nomination for president next year." Colonel Guffey, it will be recalled, was elected to the national committee when the fight was made upon William F. Harry by the free silver men, after the last presidential election. The action of the last Democratic state convention in referring to William Jennings Bryan as "our matchless leader" expressed the sentiment of the rank and file of the Democratic organization of this state. No matter what may be Colonel Guffey's personal and private views upon the question of 16 to 1, or the income tax, or the various other features of the iniquitous Chicago platform, he must at least pretend to believe in them all if he wants to hold on to the leadership of the Democratic machine. The people of the state by the vote at last Tuesday's election showed conclusively that they recognized the fact that the Democratic candidates and the Democratic leadership represented Bryanism and that a vote for the Democratic ticket could fairly be construed as a vote of confidence in Bryan and the Bryan machine in Pennsylvania. The fact that the Democratic party in Pennsylvania refuses to be divorced from Bryanism will ultimately mean that many former Democrats will cease to have anything to do with the Democratic party as at present constituted, and they will ultimately become full fledged Republicans.

HOW DELEGATES ARE CHOSEN.

The Democrats do not elect their delegates to the national convention in the same manner as the Republicans. The Republicans name two delegates and two alternates from each congressional district in the same manner in which candidates for the national house of representatives are chosen. The delegates and alternates-at-large are elected by the Republican state convention. In the Democratic party the delegates to the Democratic state convention elect the national delegates. A majority of the state delegates from each congressional district recommend to the state convention the names of those they desire elected to the national convention and it is customary for the convention to concur in these recommendations. These district delegates, as well as the delegates and alternates-at-large, must be elected by the state convention.
