ANOTHER BOER AMBUSH. THE BRITISH LOSE GUNS. WHICH

ARE RECAPTURED. A Full Summary of the Transvaal

War News-Progress of the Conflict From Day to Day-The British Encouraged.

The extraordinary run of success which has attended Roberts' operations so long has been broken by a British force walking blindly into a Boer ambush. It was captured, with six guns. Colonel Broadwood is in command of the Tenth Hussars, the Household Cavalry and two batteries of a force of mounted infantry, under Colonel Pilcher, garrisoning Thaban-chu, due east of Bloemfontein, and about half way between it and the Basuto border. Later.—The British have recaptured the guns which were lost with Col. Broadwood in the ambush.

President Kruger says that the last expressed desire of the late Commandant General Joubert was that he should be succeeded as Commandant General by Louis Botha, who has been chosen in his place.

There is as yet no confirmation of the death of Gen. Joubert, but the report is generally credited in Europe. The London Times publishes a despatch from its boemfontein correspondent, stating his belief that 150, 000 foreign troops have been landed to aid the Boer Republics. The report that General French and his force of cavalry have returned to Bloemfontein, and that a small British column had hurriedly retreated from Ladybrand before superior Boer forces, indicates that the Burghers have made good their retreat from the south of the Free State, thus cluding the British columns.

A despatch from Ladysmith says 20,000 Boers are guarding the nine passes of the Drakensberg Range, led by Commandant De Beer. This force consists of Free Staters.

Messrs. Wolmarans, Fischer and Wesels, the peace envoys from the Boer forces, after visiting two or three European capitals, will go to New York, by way of Antwerp. It is un-derstood at The Hague that they are invested with large powers, and are prepared to agree to anything looking to intervention.

The Boers are entrenching at Kroonstadt, where they may make a stand against the advance of Roberts' forces, which comprise some 35,000 cavalry and infantry.

A despatch from Bloemfontein says

General French has returned from Thaba Nchu, having failed to engage the Boers, who are trekking north

Lord Roberts's infantry have now been quiet for fourteen days, and news of an advance is hourly expected at the British War Office.

The Times points a statement from Cape Town that the Boers, after deducting heavy losses, are probably unable now to put more than 30,000 men on the fighting line.

PECULIAR LAWSUIT.

Result of a Chat, Late Travel and Appendicitis.

Miss E. L. Delacroix and S. Scoville, ir., of Stamford, Con., have begun ac tion for $1,000 damages against the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company which is unique Late travel, brakemen the clearness of whose voices is impugned, pedestrian-ism, appendicitis and the law of the State of Connecticut are all mixed up in the suit. None but a jury of Nuimeg citizens could ever hope to "cale'-late" accurately enough to settle the rights of the matter.

Mr. Scovilie and Miss Delacroix came out from New York on the late train a few weeks ago. They were happy in each other's society; so happy that they didn't notice the brakeman calling out Harlem, Mount Vernon, Pelhamville, New Rochelle, Ryc, Harrison, Mamaroneck, Cos Cob Greenwich or any other of the way stations on their blissful journey. "Stamford! Stamford! All out for Stamford!"

"Stamford! Stamford! All out for Stamford!"

Mr. Scoville and Miss Delacroix thought the men yelled this. The brakemen say they did not. Mr. Scoville and Miss Delacroix ran to the door and jumped to the station platform as the train was starting.

form as the train was starting.

They saw the vaishing red tail-lights of the train and the station signboard, "Sound Beach," at the same moment.
"Five miles from home," sighed
Miss Delacroix. Mr. Scoville took off his hat and murmured a few words in-

They had to walk home. Mr. Sco They had to walk home. Mr. Scoville wants damages because he caught cold. Miss Delacroix deposes and says that she had only recently recovered from an operation for apendicitis, and that the long walk injured her to a considerable degree.

The railroad company insists that the brakemen really called out "Sound Beach" in clear tenor voices.

Because it was built on shifting sand at that, the Hotel Wol-laston, one of the handsomest new apartment houses on the Beacon Street Boulevard, must be taken down. A NEW YORK RESTAURANT LOOT-ED OF $3,100.

The Scheme involved the Changing of a $100 Bill and a "Make-Up" That Deceived Employee-They Sent the Waiters Away.

One of the most skilfully planned and daringly executed robberles the police of New York have been called upon to run down was carried out March 26 by five men who took from a safe in Healy's fashionable res-taurant, at the northeast corner of Columbus avenue and Sixty-sixth street, $3,100 in cash and checks.

Three of the thieves sipped their

Three of the thieves sipped their coffee while the fourth entertainingly engaged Cashier Casey, and No. 5 looted the cash drawer in the safe, an arm's length away from the employe. The stolen checks, amounting to $273 were later returned by mall to Thomas Healey, the proprietor.

Two well-dressed men alighted from a cab in front of the restaurant short-

Soon after two others en-tered and walked quickly to a table opposite the cashier's desk. A fifth man, stout of figure and wearing a black mustache, bustled in and seated himself at an adjoining table.

The portly man who had entered last finished his breakfast first. He called the waiter to the table and handed him a $100 bill in payment for a check of $1. The waiter took the bill and walked slowly toward the cashier's desk. Before he reached it the man got up from the table, called the waiter and said he was in called the waiter, and said he was in a hurry and would give the bill to the cashier himself. He gave the waiter 25 cents as a tip. Then he went to the cashier and presented the $100

In the small safe drawer, in which were the receipts for four days, Casey placed the bill. He closed the drawer but did not lock the safe. Then he stepped to the cigar counter, and while giving the man his change continued to answer innumerable ques-tions concerning a proposed dinner.

While this was going on one of the two men who sat behind the cashier got up and went ostensibly to the cashier to pay his bill. The waiter had meantime been sent back for an order. The man crawled under the brass railing unnoticed by the cashier and quickly reached the safe. He opened the drawer, which Casey had failed to lock, and quickly looted it of its con-tents. Then he crawled back, ad-vanced to the cashier with his check and put down the exact amount of change and left the restaurant.

The stout man had kept up his in-The stout man had kept up his incessant questioning, which had distracted Casey's attentions and prevented any sounds of the robbery being heard. During this time the three confederates had remained unconcerned at their tables, apparently enjoying their breakfast.

The stout man finally said he would call later in the day, and, going over to the two men still eating, greeted them pleasantly and went out.

Five minutes after the man had left the bartender called on Casey for some change for the day's business. Then it was that the cashier went to the drawer in the safe and discovered the robbery. the robbery.
