

STORY OF THE CRIME

Buffalo, Sept. 7.—President McKinley was shot and seriously wounded by a would-be assassin while holding a reception in the temple of music at the Pan-American Exposition a few minutes after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. One shot took effect in the right breast, the other in the abdomen. The first is not of a serious nature, and the bullet has been extracted. The latter pierced the abdominal wall and has not been located.

It was a few moments after 4 p. m. while President McKinley was holding a public reception in the great Temple of Music on the Pan-American grounds that the cowardly attack was made, with what success time alone can tell. Standing in the midst of the crowds numbering thousands surrounded by every evidence of good will, pressed by a motley throng of people, showered with expressions of love and loyalty, besieged by multitudes all eager to clasp his hand, amid these surroundings and with ever recurring plaudits of an admiring army of sight-seers ringing in his ears the blow of the assassin fell and in an instant pleasure gave way to pain, admiration to agony, folly turned to fury and pandemonium followed.

It was just after the daily organ recital in the splendid temple of music that the dastardly attempt upon the life of the President was made.

Planned With Diabolical Ingenuity.

The President, though well guarded by United States special service detectives, was fully exposed to such an attack as occurred. He stood at the edge of the raised dais upon which stands the great pipe organ at the east side of the magnificent structure. Thronged of people crowded in at the various entrances, to gaze upon their executive, perchance to clasp his hand, and then fight their way out in the good-natured mob that every minute swelled and multiplied at the points of ingress and egress to the building. The President was in a cheerful mood and was enjoying to the full the hearty evidences of good will which everywhere met his gaze. Upon his right stood John G. Milburn, of Buffalo, the president of the Pan-American Exposition, chatting with the President and introducing to him especially persons of note who approached. Upon the President's left stood Mr. Cortelyou.

It was shortly after 4 p. m., when one of the throng which surrounded the presidential party, a medium-sized man of ordinary appearance, and plainly dressed in black, approached as if to greet the President.

Sharp Crack of the Revolver.

President McKinley smiled, bowed and extended his hand in that spirit of geniality the American people so well know, when suddenly the sharp crack of a revolver rang out loud and clear above the hum of voices, the shuffling of myriad feet and vibrating waves of applause that ever and anon swept here and there over the assemblage.

There was an instant of almost complete silence. The President stood stock still, a look of hesitancy, almost of bewilderment on his face. Then he retreated a step, while a pallor began to steal over his features.

Then came a commotion. With the leap of a tiger three men threw themselves forward, as with one impulse and sprang toward the would-be assassin. Two of them were United States secret service men who were on the lookout, and whose duty it was to guard against just such a calamity as had here befallen the President of the nation. The third was a bystander, a negro, who had only an instant previously grasped in his dusky palm the hand of the President. As one man the trio hurled themselves upon the President's assailant. In a twinkling he was borne to the ground, his weapon was wrested from his grasp and strong arms pinioned him down.

Crowd Surged Forward.

For a moment the confusion was terrible. The crowd surged forward regardless of consequences.

Men shouted and fought, women screamed and children cried. Some of those nearest the doors fled from the edifice in fear of a stampede, while hundreds of others from the outside struggled blindly forward in the effort to penetrate the crowded building and solve the mystery of excitement and panic, which every moment grew and swelled within the congested interior of the edifice.

But of the multitude which witnessed or bore a part in the scene of turmoil and turbulence there was but one mind which seemed to retain its equilibrium, one hand which remained steady, one eye which gazed with unflinching calmness, and one voice which retained its even tenor and faltered not at the most critical juncture. They were the mind and the hand and the eye and the voice of President McKinley.

President Remained Calm.

After the first shock of the assassin's shots, he retreated a step, then as the detectives leaped upon his assailant, he turned, walked steadily to a chair and seated himself, at the same time removing his hat and bowing his head in his hands.

In an instant Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn were at his side. His waistcoat was hurriedly opened, the President meanwhile admonishing those about him to remain calm, and telling them not to be alarmed.

"But you are wounded," cried his secretary. "Let me examine."

"No, I think not," answered the President. "I am not badly hurt, I assure you."

Nevertheless his outer garments were hastily loosened, and when a trickling stream of crimson was seen to wind its way down his breast, spreading its tell-tale stain over the white surface of the linen, their worst fears were confirmed.

The President's assailant in the meantime had been hustled to the rear of the building by Exposition guards, where he was held while the building was cleared, and later he was turned over to Superintendent Bull, of the Buffalo police department, who took the prisoner to No. 16 police station, and afterward to police headquarters. As soon as the crowd in the temple of music had been dispersed sufficiently the President was removed in the automobile ambulance and taken to the Exposition hospital, where an examination was made. The best medical skill was summoned, and within a brief period several of Buffalo's best known practitioners were at the patient's side.

On the Operating Table.

The President retained the full account of his faculties until placed on the operating table and subjected to an anesthetic. Upon the first examination it was ascertained that one bullet had taken effect in the right breast just below the nipple, causing a comparatively harmless wound.

The other took effect in the abdomen, about four inches below the left nipple, four inches to the left of the navel, and about on a level with it.

Upon arrival at the Exposition hospital the second bullet wound was probed for. The walls of the abdomen were opened, but the ball was not located. The incision was hastily closed, and after a hasty consultation it was decided to remove the patient to the home of President Milburn. This was done, the automobile ambulance being used for the purpose. Arrived at the Milburn residence, all persons outside the medical attendants, nurses and the officials immediately concerned, were excluded, and the task of probing for the bullet which had lodged in the abdomen was begun by Dr. Roswell Parke. When the news of the crime was telephoned to the home of President Milburn, where Mrs. McKinley was resting, immediate steps were taken to spare her the shock of a premature statement of the occurrence before the true condition of the President should be ascertained. Guards were stationed, and no one was permitted to approach the house.

Mrs. McKinley Hears the News.

When it was decided to remove the President from the Exposition hospital to the Milburn residence, the news was broken to Mrs. McKinley as gently as might be by the members of the Milburn family. She bore the shock remarkably well, and displayed the utmost fortitude.

While the wounded President was being borne from the Exposition to the Milburn residence between rows of onlookers with bared heads, a far different spectacle was being witnessed along the route of his assailant's journey from the scene of his crime to police headquarters. The trip was made so quickly that the prisoner was safely landed within the wide portals of the police station and the doors closed before any one was aware of his presence.

Crowd Cried: "Lynch Him."

The news of the attempted assassination had in the meanwhile been spread broadcast by the newspapers, like wildfire it spread from mouth to mouth. Then bulletins began to appear on the boards along newspaper row, and when the announcement was made that the prisoner had been taken to police headquarters, only two blocks distant from the newspaper section, the crowds surged down toward the terrace eager for a glimpse of the prisoner. At police headquarters they were met by a strong cord of police, which was drawn up across the pavement on Pearl street, and admittance was denied to any out officials authorized to take part in the examination of the prisoner. In a few minutes the crowd had grown from tens to hundreds, and these in turn quickly swelled into thousands, until the street was completely blocked with a mass of humanity. It was at this juncture that some one raised the cry of "Lynch him." Like a flash the cry was taken up, and the whole crowd, as if ignited by the single match thus applied, re-echoed the cry: "Lynch him," "Hang him." Closer the crowd surged forward. Denser the throng became as new arrivals swelled each moment the swaying multitude. The situation was becoming critical, when suddenly the big doors were flung open and a squad of reserves advanced with solid front, drove the crowd back from the curb, then across the street and gradually succeeded in dispersing them from about the entrance to the station.

The man's name is Leon Czolgoz. He is of Polish-German extraction. His home is in Cleveland, where he has seven brothers and sisters. He is an avowed Anarchist and an ardent disciple of Emma Goldman, whose teachings, he alleges, are responsible for today's attack on the President. He denies steadfastly that he is the instrument of any body of Anarchists or the tool of any coterie of plotters. He declares he did not even have a confederate. His only reason for the deed, he declares, is that he believed the present form of government in the United States was unjust, and he concluded that the most effective way to remedy it was to kill the President. These conclusions, he declared, he reached through the teachings of Emma Goldman.

VIEWS FROM VIENNA.

Austrian Journals Strong in Denunciation of Anarchism.

Vienna, Sept. 9.—The Vienna newspapers express themselves very strongly in denunciation of Anarchism. The Neues Wiener Tageblatt says: "The country, in its bitterness, will probably take energetic measures to destroy the nursery of Anarchism in the United States."

Czolgoz Identified in Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—If any further proof were needed that Leon Czolgoz was the guest of Chicago Anarchists shortly before he went to Buffalo on his murderous mission it was supplied yesterday by three of the prisoners at the central police station. They identified a photograph of the murderous "Red" as a picture of a man whom they saw at the home of Abraham Isaak, 515 Carroll avenue.

URGING A SETTLEMENT

Executive Board Tells Shaffer to End the Battle.

Pittsburg, Sept. 9.—If the plans of President Shaffer were for the executive board to go to New York and confer with President Schwab, of the United States Steel Corporation, today, those plans were abandoned. It is intimated by those in close touch with the executive board that they had plainly told Mr. Shaffer that a settlement of the strike was imperative, and that he had better put himself into communication with President Schwab and have a plain understanding at once. In other words, the executive board of the Amalgamated Association were pushing the leader for a settlement and to end the battle. It was said also in a semi-official way that possibly President Shaffer was communicating with President Schwab personally yesterday. It was believed that he had either gone to Mr. Schwab's summer home in Loretto or else was meeting him in New York. Leaders are making strenuous efforts to hold the men in line, with the hope that some means of a settlement will come in a few days at the furthest. If it falls the men, it is believed, will break away and return to work as individuals. That would be worse than the terms that have been thus far offered by the corporation. At the same time the delay that has occurred, and is still going on, under the terms offered is telling more severely than ever against the strikers and their organization.

Great Interest Shown in the Coming League Club Convention.

SCRANTON MOST HOSPITABLE

The Opening Gun of the Republican State Campaign Will Be Fired at This Gathering of Loyal Pennsylvania Republicans.

(Special Correspondence.)

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—It has been decided that the opening gun of the Republican state campaign shall be fired at the convention of the State League of Republican Clubs at Scranton on the 17th inst. This promises to be the largest club league convention held in this state since the memorable gathering which assembled in the city of Scranton to decide the great contest between Congressman John Dalzell, representing the opponents of the regular Republican organization leadership, and former Congressman "Jack" Robinson, of Delaware, who won out in a remarkably brilliant finish for the presidency of the league.

This year the aim of the leaders of the Republican organization is to bring the young Republicans to the front and have them through the state league of clubs organize the Republicans of their respective localities and rally them to the polls on election day for the full Republican ticket.

MANY PROMINENT MEN REPRESENTED.

The convention this year will be attended by some of the most prominent of the influential Republicans of the state. Senators Quay and Penrose, Governor Stone, Attorney General Elkin, Secretary of the Commonwealth Griest and nearly the entire congressional delegation will be on hand to help make the occasion a representative gathering of stalwart Republicans.

The platform will sound the keynote of the campaign and from the adoption of this declaration of principles there will be inaugurated one of the most aggressive and thorough campaigns ever carried on in this state in behalf of the Republican party.

PRESIDENT MOORE ENTHUSIASTIC

In commenting upon the outlook for a large convention, J. Hampton Moore, president of the state league of clubs, said:

"We expect to have about 250 clubs from the various counties of Pennsylvania represented at the Scranton convention, and we expect to have enthusiastic and intelligent political effort in fair proportion."

"Usually Philadelphia and Allegheny supply the majority of the delegates, and this year will be no exception, although we are happy to report a number of new clubs from counties like Berks and Schuylkill, which have heretofore been but slightly represented."

"Lackawanna and Luzerne, being close to the seat of assembly, are also particularly well up on the rolls this year."

"Our advice from Pittsburg, Erie and other western counties are quite encouraging." Postmaster Sobel, of Erie, together with Mayor Depinet and Chairman Hay, of the county committee, are at work. From Pittsburg we have advices from both sides that the energetic Young Republicans will be heard from. Former President Arch Mackrell is among those who are stirring up interest. The trip to Scranton is regarded in two lights; first, as a good political move; second, as a good excursion under pleasant auspices.

"The largest county delegation will be from Philadelphia. Plans in that county are being laid for an excursion of 500 active, hustling young party men. They will leave Broad street station on a special train Tuesday morning, September 17, at 9 o'clock, and will arrive in Scranton about 3.30 in the afternoon. The local committee is arranging to make the trip a very enjoyable one.

SCRANTONIANS ARE ACTIVE.

"At the Scranton end the preparations are being conducted by a committee of the most prominent citizens. Milton W. Lowry, formerly vice president of the league, is general chairman, and is being assisted by such men as Congressman Connell, Major Warren and Deputy Attorney General Fleitz.

"The splendid new army building in Scranton has been secured for the mass meeting, at which Senator Thurston, Governor Stone and others are to speak. We shall also present some of the younger and growing men of the party. The convention will adopt a platform and take action on the state nominations. It will also elect officers for the ensuing year.

"We have invited many prominent men to witness the proceedings and expect to have present the ex-presidents, consisting of ex-Mayor Stuart, of Philadelphia; former Congressman Robinson, of Media, who made his celebrated fight against Congressman Dalzell at Scranton; Major Everett Warren, Isador Sobel, of Erie, and Arch Mackrell, of Pittsburg."

People are beginning to realize that this Ointment is a wonder worker with all kinds of skin trouble. Attorney Jas. J. Brown, St. Ignace, Michigan writes as follows:

Dr. A. W. Chase Med. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.—Gents— I cannot refrain from expressing my acknowledgment for the relief I have felt from Dr. Chase's Ointment. For 40 years I was afflicted with a skin disease which was located in one spot—on my leg. I have spent at a rough estimate five hundred dollars trying to effect a cure, and not until I applied this ointment did I get relief. You are strangers to me and this letter is prompted directly because I want to say and I feel as though I ought to say it. That Chase's Ointment has effected a complete cure of my affliction. Three boxes did the work on my leg. I was also suffering from itching piles and applied the ointment which gave the best of satisfaction by affording me ease at night and rapidly causing the disease to disappear. I have received such relief and comfort from the ointment that I cannot withhold expressing my gratitude. I was so long afflicted with the tortures of eczema. I feel now that I am cured, a word of recommendation is due from me.

Yours truly,
JAS. J. BROWN.

Short Talks on Advertising
By Charles Austin Bates.

In a recent article by William Dean Howells he tells of a story which he says has influenced all his life.

The hero of the story is a young Dane, who was going up among the fiords to seek his fortune in the northern fisheries. Many times when he was sailing through the fiords he found himself locked in by mountain walls, with no apparent outlook. It seemed, if he kept on, that he would sail directly into the rocks, but each time as he proceeded he found some unexpected channel, which allowed him to go safely on his way.

Sometimes it seems that advertising is being wasted, that there is no possible way that it will turn out profitably, but if the advertiser will keep right on he will find clear business channels opening, and in the end will make a safe landing in the harbor of success.

A little advertising may be unprofitable when a great deal would pay handsomely.

Short-time advertising seldom pays. That is the reason that ads in the many ephemeral "schemes" that come to every business man are never profitable. It is continuous, consistent, courageous, intelligent advertising in the best newspapers that always and infallibly brings good returns.

Persistence in it pays. It's the man who gets scared and quits who loses his money.
