PRINCE HENRY ARRIVES

Brother of German Emperor Received a Hearty Welcome.

VESSEL WAS DELAYED BY STORM

Land Batteries and American Squadron Fired Salutes, and There Were Greetings From the President, the Army, Navy and New York City.

New York, Feb. 24.—Prince Henry of Prussia, representative of his brother, the emperor of Germany at the launching of the latter's American-built yacht, reached New York yesterday and was cordially welcomed as a guest of the nation. The land batteries that guard the outer harbor ber sounded the first greeting in a ponderous salute of 21 guns, the rifles of a special squadron assembled in his honor re-echoed the sentiment, there were verbal greetings from the representatives of President Roosevelt, the army, the navy and the city of New York, and a great crowd lined the way in the city to see the German sailors and the prince of Germany.

The great storm against which the Kronprinz Wilhelm had struggled for days, and which had grazed the Atlantic coast in an armor of ice, had lost its force and resigned its way to warm sunshine and cheery blue skies, so there were no regrets that the royal guest was a full day late for the entertainment provided for him.

Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, the commander of the special squadron and honorary aide to the prince and his staff, left the flagship Illinois at 9:40 o'clock in the naval tug Nina. They were all in full-dress uniform. The Nina met the Kronprinz Wilhelm beyond Fort Wadsworth, and, swinging around on the starboard side of the liner, steamed up the bay. Prince Henry, attired in the uniform of an admiral of the German navy, and surrounded by his naval and military staff, in brilliant uniforms, stood on the bridge of the liner. As the naval tug got nearer to the side of the steamship Prince Henry and Admiral Evans caught sight of each other and exchanged informal salutes.

As the two vessels, with a flotilla of tugs and official craft, moved in past Fort Wadsworth the first of the salutes of 21 guns was fired. As the first gun sounded the prince advanced to the end of the bridge of the Kronprinz Wilhelm and stood at attention. As he passed the big American flag floating over the fortifications he touched his cap in salute, and the members of his suite did likewise. The flag at the jackstaff of the Kronprinz Wilhelm was dipped, and the German naval band accompanying the prince played "The Star Spangled Banner." The guns of Fort Wadsworth were not spent before those across the Narrows, at Fort Hamilton, boomed out their salute. When that ceremony was over the Kronprinz Wilhelm was stopped and the Nina hauled around to her port side and Admiral Evans and his staff boarded her.

After a brief halt the liner moved ahead and was soon abreast of the special squadron off Tompkinsville. The German standard was run to the foretop of the Kronprinz Wilhelm, and its appearance gave signal for the American fleet to salute. The San Francisco, Cincinnati, Olympia and Illinois raised the German naval standard and then began to fire. The prince stood at attention on the bridge, and back of him were Admiral Evans and his staff and the numerous suite of the German visitors. The prince and his staff were especially interested in the Illinois and Olympia, and offered warm congratulations to the American admiral on the splendid appearance of his squadron.

Prince Henry disembarked at 12:55 p. m., at that moment walking down the decorated gangway from the Kronprinz Wilhelm into the elaborately-decorated pier. He then passed through an ornamental gangway and arch to the gang plank of the Hohenzollern, which had been decorated in the German colors and was covered half its length. Taking the precedence due to his rank, Prince Henry walked up the gang plank, followed by the officers of the Hohenzollern.

The first of his callers to arrive after he had boarded the Hohenzollern was General Brooks, U. S. A., accompanied by two aides, Admiral Barker and his aide, Captain West, representing the United States navy, followed, and then came the German ambassador at Washington and his suite of military and naval attaches and secretaries. Following the German ambassador came the special representative of the president of the United States, headed by Dr. Hill, first assistant secretary of state, and including General Corbin, Colonel Bingham and Commander Cowles, the brother-in-law of the president.

The prince boarded the tug Nina at 3:30 p. m. yesterday to repay his calls. He was accompanied by one aide and Admiral Evans and Ensigns Evans and Chapin. He visited the navy yard first, called on Admiral Barker, and then Governors Island, where he called on General Brooke. From Governors Island the tug proceeded to the battleship Illinois, where he called on Admiral Evans and inspected the ship. He was received by the squadron with the honors due to his rank. From the Illinois the prince returned to the pier at Thirty-fourth street and went on board the Hohenzollern.

Prince Henry last night attended a reception given in his honor by the Deutscher Verein at the club house of the organization. He was escorted through the streets from the dock where the Hohenzollern lies to the club house by Squadron A. of the National Guard, and attended by his suite, Rear Admiral Von Baudissin and his officers and other guests. All the party were in carriages, while at the head of the line rode a detachment of mounted police. In the prince's carriage rode Rear Admiral Evans and Assistant Secretary of State Hill.

At 1 a. m. today the prince and his party left for Washington.

MISS STONE RELEASED

Missionaries Arrived at Strumitz and Made Themselves Known.

Constantinople, Feb. 24.—Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, who with Mme. Tsilka, was captured by brigands in the district of Salonika on September 3 last, has been released and arrived at Strumitz, Macedonia, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Nobody was at Strumitz to meet Miss Stone, as the brigands had given no indication where they proposed to release the prisoners.

Madame Tsilka and her baby were released at the same time. They are all well. Miss Stone immediately made herself known to the authorities at Strumitz.

The first news of Miss Stone's release was contained in a telegram received by Mr. Dickinson, the American consul general at Constantinople, from the American vice consul at Salonika. Strumitz is near the Salonika Uskub Railroad. Miss Stone proceeded to Salonika without delay.

It is said that on account of the necessity of protecting the innocent persons who assisted them, the American delegates will never divulge where and how the ransom money for the release of Miss Stone was paid. The correspondent learns, however, that the use of filling the money bags with lead after the ransom had been paid, with a view of making it appear that the mission to pay the ransom had failed, was completely successful.

FIST FIGHT IN SENATE

Tillman and McLaurin Engage in Disgraceful Brawl.

STAIID SENATORS WERE SHOCKED

Tillman's Insinuating Remarks Precipitated a Rough and Tumble Fist Fight, in Which He Received a Bloody Nose—Were Torn Apart.

Washington, Feb. 24.—A fist fight between two senators on the floor of the United States senate while that body was in open session marked the close of a bitter speech on the Philippine question by Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, Saturday afternoon. For nearly three hours the South Carolina senator occupied the floor, discussing the Philippine situation from his picturesque viewpoint. His remarks were interlarded with frequent spicy exchanges with other senators, in the course of one of which he made some insinuations that a senator had been influenced by improper considerations in his vote on the treaty of Paris.

His statement was developed in a colloquy between him and Mr. Spooner, of Wisconsin. Mr. Tillman at first declined to mention names, but when the Wisconsin senator reminded him that he owed it to himself, to the senate and to the country, to "name the man," Mr. Tillman indicated that he referred to his colleague from South Carolina.

Little imagining that his words were likely to be prophetic, Mr. Spooner remarked sententiously: "I will leave the senator to fight that out with his colleague."

Mr. McLaurin was not in the chamber at the time, being engaged in committee work, but he was sent for, and appeared just as Mr. Tillman concluded his speech. Pale as ashes, Mr. McLaurin rose to address the senate, speaking to a question of privilege. He reviewed Mr. Tillman's charges briefly, and then denounced the statement made by his colleague as a "wifful, malicious and deliberate lie."

Scarcely had the portentous words fallen from his lips when Mr. Tillman, sitting a few seats from him, with Mr. Teller, of Colorado, between them, sprang at them. Mr. McLaurin, who had half turned toward Mr. Tillman, met him half way, and in an instant the two senators, having swept Mr. Teller aside, were engaged in a rough and tumble fist fight. Mr. McLaurin received a heavy blow on the forehead, while Mr. Tillman got a bad punch on the nose, which brought blood. Assistant Sergeant-at-arms Layton sprang over desks to reach and separate the combatants, and himself received several blows. He got between them finally and by main strength wrenched them apart.

Senators Warren, of Wyoming, and Scott, of West Virginia, two of the most powerful men in the senate, leaped to his assistance, and pinning the arms of the belligerent senators, forced them into their seats.

Intense excitement prevailed in the senate and the galleries, which were thronged with people who had been attracted by the spirited debate. Everybody was on his feet. Not a word, however, was spoken. Senators stood about the chamber, for the moment quite helpless, and pale to the lips. Finally order was restored partially, and in the midst of intense excitement the senate went into executive session. For two hours the senate discussed the event behind closed doors. When the doors were reopened it was made known that both of the South Carolina senators by unanimous vote had been declared to be in contempt of the senate. They were permitted by a vote of the senate to make apologies to the senate. The statements were listened to by both the senators and the people in the galleries with breathless interest.

Senator Tillman left the capital when adjournment was taken for recess, and did not return for the night session. Senator McLaurin was in the chamber about 8 o'clock, but left early. Neither senator, when seen at his home, would make a statement.

There have been a number of conferences among senators as to what should be done to preserve the dignity of the senate and to manifest its sentiment with reference to the two senators who violated its traditions. While no plan of procedure has been agreed upon it is learned that there will be very deliberate action, and it is said to be more than likely that it will be no less than thirty days before the South Carolina senators are restored to their full powers as senators, this deliberation on their case being in the nature of a punishment, since they will not be allowed to address the senate or vote until no longer in contempt of the senate.
