EAGLES MERE.

The excursion on Thursday from Reading Railroad points, from Sunbury north, brought between two and three hundred people who were fortunate in a pleasant day after a threatening morning.

On Saturday the excursion under the auspices of the Picture Rocks Epworth League were unfortunate in the weather but quite a number came nevertheless. It is very regrettable that no proper provision is made for the comfort of these excursionists in case of rain either in Eagles Mere or on the railroad.

P. C. Dodge and family of Washington are in the Replier Cottage for the season. They are always welcome visitors.

Mrs. J. R. Edgar of Wilkesbarre has rented the Rowley Cottage on the Avenue and has arranged to furnish rooms for a select number. She has called the cottage by the attractive name of "Mountain Villa."

The beautifully clear, cool water from the Water Company's deep wells captivates everybody and keeps the plumber busy making connections. It is fortunate that Mr. Trappe is located here with so complete an outfit that a few hours accomplishes all that is desired.

Ralph G. Phillips, the hustling photographer from Bloomsburg, is on hand with his wife and family. Having purchased the Krips Photograph Gallery property he has built a little birds nest of a cottage on it and set up house keeping.

Mr. Horace MacFarland, the Art Printer, of Harrisburg was noticed heading for the steamer going to Chautauqua. His illustrated lectures on Eagles Mere are the most attractive events on the program.

The foundations for the Stand Pipe are complete and are a fine piece of work of which Engineer Chase and Mason Collins are quite proud.

At the last meeting of the Post Office Club a report was brought in that the Street Commissioner had been drowned on Lakewood Drive.

It was proposed to send out a rescue party immediately but most of the members thought that if the report was true he was certainly dead, and it could do no good, and that a better way was to follow the lead of the Club's august contemporary, the Business Mens League, and pass a series of resolutions to the memory of the departed and of sympathy with his family. Some one suggested that something ought to be done so as to guard against such contingencies in the future and urged a resolution calling on the Council to fence off the Drive until dry weather.

Mr. Johnson stated to the Club that desiring to take a ride on the railroad he had gone to the station to ascertain about the train but could find no time table except those of the steamboat, the Presbyterian Chapel and the Casino. After serious consideration, and in view of his Baptist training, he decided to take water transportation and use the steamer.

The Thursday evening Prayer Meetings at the Baptist Church are well attended.
