EAGLES MERE.

Continued from Page One.

In time for breakfast and he doubtless got it down there. In the preachers account it is said that a dinner was also served after the ceremony so that Clarence did not miss either meal and all the members of the Club know him well enough to suppose that he took in both. It is feared that all this in connection with the excitement of the wedding may prove too much for him as the preacher says he left for Corning while the bride was to go to Binghamton. Special telegrams were ordered sent out at the expense of the Club to locate Clarence and Mrs. Clarence so that if any serious trouble is threatened a committee will be sent to their relief with supplies so as to enable them to reach Eagles Mere on their return where the Club will be ready to meet them in good style.

The other matter for which the meeting was called was to have the Club take action looking to the care of Prof. Sheets now staying at Hotel Eagles Mere. The Professor came to us in need of health and weight, and had imbibed so much of the oxygen peculiar to the place that it was feared that it had gone to his head and produced peculiar ideas. Some of the young fellows stated that he is an enthusiastic sportsman, so much so that after holding them to set decoy ducks on the Lake, with the intention of attracting some of the passing flocks of wild fowl, the Professor became so interested that in about fifteen minutes he went and got his gun and commenced blazing away at the decoys. It was only after considerable effort that he was restrained. The decoys however proved successful and the next day the Professor bagged about a dozen of the real thing. He persists that the birds came and roosted on the barrel of his gun and he executed a somersault and shot backwards and got the whole lot.

It was decided to elect him a member of the Club and appoint a "chap-erone" to look after him.

I believe the Republicans are the sure winners this time or the name goes for naught. With Lord, God-Charles and a Bird how can we suffer defeat? And if you are not sure of your color we have a Dyer who will be glad to make you a dyed-in-the-wool republican. And for a governor he comes out plainly and declares that he is a Penny-packer, which means that he will pack the treasury full of dollars if elected. So boys vote straight as all may be with the name this fall.

Among the candidates who are at present soliciting the support of this county, there is no more deserving man than Ulysses Bird, candidate for County Treasurer. We put forth this declaration fully recognizing the actual value of several other candidates at present before the people in the county, and the assertion is made without fear of contradiction. If elected he will attend to the office himself and give his best attention to the duties of the position, and the best attention of an honest, conscientious man means something and the actual value of this quality in an official should not be overlooked by the voters.
