If it has been proved that like articles, partially governed by American trusts, sell for much more money in nontariff countries, the natural conclusion to make is that the way to deal with offending trusts is not to take off the tariff upon American commerce and industries, which would knock the prop from under a prosperous nation, but to legislate carefully upon the matter and bring into subjection any man or set of men forming a corporation or trust and force them to provide the public with such commodities as are necessary to the people's welfare at the smallest possible prices. It would be a gross mistake to tamper with the tariff. While not hurting the trusts materially it would throw out of position several millions of American laborers.

Can it be possible that women have forgotten the agony of 1892 to 1897 or that men would willingly leave their families again and be compelled to seek work in vain in other places, as was the case in those years? Thinking people cannot forget in six short years the unspeakable horror of Grover Cleveland's last administration, caused by a wicked reduction of the tariff.

The fact that during the late coal strike no Democrat in position or out raised his voice against the outrageous treatment of our coal miners by the coal operators demonstrates that they do not care so long as they have plenty of campaign material. The Democratic leaders cried bitter tears of regret when they heard that Theodore Roosevelt had forced the operators to come to Washington and made them consent to arbitration upon the strike trouble. The workingman can draw his own inference as to which are his friends—Democrats or Republicans.

It was the unexpected panic during Cleveland's reign that caused the women to wake up to their positions. For the first time they saw that politics had everything to do with their comfort and happiness. They commenced to inquire the cause of the trouble. Many men knew as little of its effect as their wives. They began to compare the prosperous years under protection with the free trade slump and made up their minds to put William McKinley in the chair. Never have we known such prosperity or such universal satisfaction of the workingmen.

Mothers, why should you cavil at the price of your children's shoes or at the food that they eat when you have more than enough money wherewith to buy them? Why do you complain, O housewife, that your servant girl asks $2 or $3 more a month than you have heretofore paid? Don't you remember, dear lady, that eight years ago times obliged you to discharge your servant because of financial shortage? Do you not know that it is always a sign of prosperity when the servants suddenly see that their services are in demand everywhere? If you want to grumble about the beef and sugar trusts, go ahead, but think well before you chop down the tariff that protects your husband's earnings and makes your home comfortable and happy. Don't scold about the signs of prosperity, such as a few dollars added to your servant's wages, or, in fact, any money that you pay out and that goes into the pockets of labor. Such things should not distress you. Demand, if you will, little grumbler, proper legislation as to illegitimate trusts and corporations, and sensible people will be with you. But do not argue for free trade as a cure for aggregated capital, for that means a deterioration of American industries and will not help the complaint.

GRACE MILLER WHITE.

For What Reason?

The Philadelphia Record, a strenuous free trade newspaper, expresses the opinion that if the tariff were taken out of politics by the creation of a permanent commission and if congress should be guided by the advice of such a commission, "after the first year there would not remain protected interests enough to warrant the expenses of the body." Herein is to be found the reason why the idea of a nonpolitical tariff commission finds favor with Democrats and free traders. It would, as they believe, mean the death of protection. Surely Republican business men do not for the same reason favor the nonpolitical tariff commission plan. For what reason, then, should any Republican business man favor it?

An Obvious Truth.

Whatever the Democrats may say, the whole world acknowledges that the Republican party, by its introduction of correct business methods, has brought the grandest era of prosperity to the United States that has been given to any country on the face of the globe.—Buffalo News.

Supplies Utmost Need.

Christ supplies our utmost spiritual need. In him alone there is satisfaction. In him we have the inheritance, incorruptible, undefiled and that fades not away. If Christ be ours, if our faith be rooted and grounded in him, all things are ours and we are Christ's.—Rev. S. G. Nell, Baptist, Philadelphia.

Ministering Unto Others.

If a man would believe in his fellow men, if he would believe in society and the possibilities of human nature, if he would believe in God, he must approach his duties in the spirit of the Master when he said, "I come not to be ministered unto, but to minister."—Rev. Dr. George L. Perin, Universalist, Boston.
