The Grange in Maine.

Mr. O. Gardner, master of the Maine state grange, says that at the close of 1902 there were 318 subordinate granges in Maine, of which 178 own their halls, while nineteen more were building halls. The value of the 178 halls with their furnishings is put at $373,330, an average of more than $2,000 apiece; the value of the real estate owned by subordinate granges is $79,000, making a total value of $452,330 for subordinate grange property in Maine. The membership is 35,000, averaging 150 to each grange. Three Maine granges have more than 600 members each, while several have more than 500.

The grange teaches kindness to animals. The grange at Montville, Vt., practices it. That grange has built a commodious stable in connection with its hall improvements which accommodates thirty-two horses.

What the grange has been and has done are worthy of study and praise. But the past is only an earnest of a much worthier future. Our best history is yet to be made.—American Grange Bulletin.

The Future of Agriculture.

As I view the future of agriculture in America the organization of farmers is a necessity for their success. Study, investigation, the taking, reading, writing for the agricultural press become a matter of necessity and duty which we cannot ignore or escape if the American farmer hopes to hold his relative position in the industrial interests of our matchless country.—Aaron Jones, Master National Grange.

Under Grange Auspices.

The Connecticut Dairymen's association, by invitation of Lyme grange, held an institute at Hamburg with large attendance. Vice President Birge gave an address on "The Future of Cattle Feeding in New England," Secretary Noble on "Dairying," Professor L. A. Clinton, "How to Increase Profits of the Dairy," Cattle Commissioner Averill, "Foot and Mouth Disease."

Mr. E. P. Powell, the well known agricultural writer, has this to say of the grange in the Tribune Farmer: "I am not a member of a grange, but I believe in them with all my heart. They are doing an immense amount of work, and it is of a very wholesome sort. The social influence is as good as the educative. It has the advantage of bringing together husbands and wives, as all clubs should. The grange work, so far as I have watched it, has been invariably for sound legislation, for honest elections, for progressive farm work, for improved institutes and for the general social welfare of farm."
