ROOSEVELT PLEASSED

President Delighted With Reports
From Chairman Penrose.

PENNSYLVANIA WILL BE TRUE

He is Told That the Keystone State
Will Roll Up a Big Majority Next
Month For Republicanism and Prosperity.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Oct. 15. — President Roosevelt's interest in the election in Pennsylvania next month was significantly manifested in a talk with Senator Penrose, who was among the visitors at the White House last week.

The president made no secret of his feeling of gratitude toward the Republicans of the Keystone state for the conspicuous part taken by their delegates to the last Republican national convention in bringing about his nomination for the vice presidency, despite the opposition of Senator Hanna and others, who were at that time very potential in the councils of the Republican national committee.

Since the responsibilities of the presidency have devolved upon Roosevelt there are no two men to whose judgment and advice on public affairs he gives greater consideration than Senators Quay and Penrose.

CHAT WITH THE PRESIDENT.

Senator Penrose's visit to Washington last week was not in relation to politics, but to close up several matters before the departments. His call on the president was merely a social visit, but the political situation was incidentally discussed. The president was keenly interested in the reports given him by Senator Penrose regarding the outlook for a large Republican majority in Pennsylvania on November 3 next. Senator Penrose informed him that throughout the state the young Republicans have taken hold of campaign work as they have never done before, and this condition is generally attributed to the belief that the larger the Republican vote in Pennsylvania this year the greater emphasis will be given to the fact that Pennsylvania is a Roosevelt state, and proposes to lead the Roosevelt column in the coming national campaign.

The action of the last two Republican state conventions in declaring for the nomination of Roosevelt for president and the adoption of resolutions expressing the same sentiment by the Pennsylvania State League of Clubs have all been most pleasing to the president, and when he learned from Senator Penrose the determination of the party workers to roll up an immense Republican majority next month, with a view to affecting public sentiment throughout the country, he was more than delighted.

PITTSBURG FOR CONVENTION.

Senator Penrose, as chairman of the Republican state committee, has decided to heartily co-operate with the leaders of the movement to have the next national Republican convention held in Pittsburgh. He thinks every Pennsylvanian should exert himself to help along this agitation. "It would be particularly fitting," said Chairman Penrose, "that, with Roosevelt as the candidate and a continuance of the protective tariff the main issue in the coming campaign, that the candidate should be named and the platform formulated in Pittsburgh, the birthplace of the Republican party and the centre of industrial prosperity of the nation. There could be no more appropriate meeting place than Pittsburgh for the national convention next year when we will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the organization of the Republican party. "With the delegates coming from all parts of the country, what an object lesson in the cause of protection would be presented in Pittsburgh and the valleys of the Allegheny and the Monongahela?"

"In no section of the country can there be given a better exemplification of the desirability of a continuance of the policy of a protective tariff than in Pittsburgh and vicinity. The smoke and the flames from the blasts and the coke ovens of Pennsylvania should be enough to convince the most radical of the so-called tariff revisionists of the middle west that there must be no tinkering with the tariff to disturb business conditions and deprive American labor of employment, just at this time when prosperity abounds in all industrial enterprises.

"While, of course, we think there may be objections from western states to Pennsylvania again getting the national convention, after Philadelphia had it last time, we feel that we can present the best argument for their taking our choice for the convention city."

A Grange Offered by Women.
Union grange of Southington, Conn., since Jan. 1, when all the offices were filled by lady members, has been making fine progress. At the opening of the year sixteen were initiated, the rituals were taboored, and such degree work has never been seen in the grange. Two successful institutes were held early in the spring. "Josh Whitcomb" was well presented at the town hall and a neat sum returned to the treasury. These ladies have proved that the success of a grange is secured once it has a live corps of officers and a careful, tactful and resourceful lecturer.—American Agriculturist.
