OUR FOREIGN COMMERCE.

There is Nothing the Matter With Our Protective Tariff Policy.
There is nothing the matter with the rotective policy of the Republican arty while we continue to record arge balances of trade in our favor, as large bålances of trade in our favor, as has been the case since the Dingley tarlift was enacted, July 21, 1897. Month after month and year after year the figures published by the useful bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor show large balances on the right side of our national ledger. The accounts for January, 1904, and for the saven mouths ending January the seven months ending January of the present fiscal year and for the twelve months ending in January have the tribute in the prove in exception to the rule which has prevailed for the past six and a half years of Republican policies and control. The figures themselves constitute the best argument along this line. They speak as follows:

Balance in our favor $499,489,179
The record of prior protective tariff years ending in January is—balances in our favor:

This is a record which any political party or any political policy may well bo proud of.

THEY WILL DECIDE.

People Will Say Whether Changes Shall Be Made In Tariff Policy. The Dayton (O.) News, a Democratic journal, says: American Protective Tariff league ex sses itself as satisfied with present de conditions and the future outlook trade and sees no necessity for any changes in the tariff schedule or any assitution for reciprocity. But the manufacturers, the farmers and business men, together with the great masses of the people, realize the necessity for evision for various reasons.

Trade conditions in the United States nce the passage of the Dingley tariff law in 1897 have been and still remain the best ever known in the United States or in any other country—best for the manufacturers, best for the furnicus, best for the susiness men, best for the great masses of the people, including several millions of wage earners. Is it wise to disturb these conficions and bring about the distrust, the feeling of instability, the confusion, the aburn and the general demoraliza-tion of business that would with absoties, or business that would will absolute, certainty attend a tearing up of the tariff? To this question the Tariff league answers; No. It would be neither wise inor prudent nor expedient; that the mischief and damage resulting noin tariff tinkering at this time would really outwelch any evils that may instify attributed to the tariff as it is 'We believe that the great masses of the people hold this view. If we e in error, the results of the cam-ical of 1904 will show it. The chief he, armost the only issue, this year will be, "Shall the tariff be torn up or shall the tariff be let alone?" The great masses of the people will decide, and we have no doubt as to what the decision will be.

Does protection protect? so, for that country has made ter material progress since 1880. when her present protective tariff was adopted, than during any like period in her history. And not only has she de-veloped her home market and prospered accordingly, but she has succeeded in capturing a big trade in other coun-tries, as the label "Made In Germany." tries, as the label "Made in Germany," seen or amany articles sold in the United States. Great Britain and elsewhere, amply attests. Furthermore, this "comercial gain has been accompanied by diminished emigration. Companied by diminished emigration. pagetively few Germans now seek houses in other lands, because conditions in the fatherland are more satisfactory than formerly. There is hard-ly a doubt that the example presented Germany has had a powerful effect ereating protection sentiment in ugland and giving life to Mr. Cham-Ferlain's campaign. Next to the United States. Germany is the most notable illustration that can be cited of the virtue and value of protection.-Troy

There is the Tariff.

Of course there is the tariff. The one Democrat in congress who shows capacity for leadership. John Sharp Williams, thinks it would profit his party to play up the tariff. But even party to play up the tariff. But even Williams, with all his skill and fine ability, would have uphill work in get-ting the people to forget about how the last Democratic attempt to fool with the tariff sent industry to the boneyard and thousands of willing but wageless workers to the soup house. Scranton Tribune.

The Thimble Game.
The Democratic hunt for an issue re minds us of the old game of thimble minds us of the old game of thindle.
Their bosses are going around crying:

Good Material Scarce.
The Democratic party's lack of material was never more woefully demonstrated than by the fact that Willie Hearst is considered a presidential possibility.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

New York as a Factor. Some of our Democratic contemporaries appear to think it fatal to the Hearst boom that there is no Hearst sentiment in New York. Perhaps it is forgotten that the last time Cleveland was nominated and elected the solid against him.
