REVISION REASONS.

BARCASTIC AND PUNGENT STATE-MENT OF THE CASE.

Protection Should Be Honeycombed Because We Are Doing More Busi-ness In Proportion to Population Than Any Other Country.

Should not the tariff be revised, and, if not, why not? The tariff should be revised for these tery sufficient reasons: The outlook for business of all kinds, the outlook for the largest demand for labor ever known, at the highest wages paid in the world's history, is od. This, in whole or in substantial gree, would be checked as soon as known that tariff changes were to be entered upon. - That always follows tariff agitation in congress.

Such changes as were made would listy no one. They never do. Free ers would only howl for more, hav-once got some concessions from a ablican congress, and would point the inconsistencies of the new draft, y always do. Having once got pronists to practically surrender, keep up their hue and cry until actionists land in the ditch in hopea defeat. That was the final result 1892, after the Republicans yielded 1300 to the free trade call for re-on and passed the McKinley bill. In the fall of that year the protec-tionists lost the house by a majority overwhelming and two years later again lost the house and also the senate end, the unseidence, and the country the presidency, and the country its busines protectionists again permit the trade devil to punch holes through protective tariff the protectionists' out from their mighty victory in , with all its helpful results since in, will not stop until they again land the ditch. No party ever voluntarily doned a brilliantly successful sure except to experience the results in full that must come to the sul-

Another reason why the tariff should be revised is that the Democratic party demands it, the party with but the scattering vote, only scattering except in states where Republican leaders e wabbled upon the great policy that politically created them. In the states where the Republican leaders cling to the protective policy that delivered the country from the free trade hell of 1892-96 the Democrat-le vote has evaporated and Republican and orline have risen to hundreds of thousands. Revision should be had be-cause the people but a few weeks ago stood solidly by the stand pat protec-tionistic and deserted the deserters. Evolvion should be had because nobody gives any reason for revision ex-cept the stock free trade reasons, such as have always plunged the people into distress when they have been adopted. Protection should be honeycombed and revision should be had because we are doing more business in proportion to population than any other country to population than any other country in the world and more than we ever before have done. That shows that something serious is the matter. Revision should be had because it is never wise to let prosperity alone, nev-er wise to stick to the thing that pays. --Worcester (Mass.) Telegram.
