The Cost of the Navy. The truth is that in proportion to the wealth of this country the navai the wealth of this country the naval expenditures of the present time do not seem grossly extravagant. Some one has figured out that comparing what we have pald out for naval purposes since 1801 with the value of American property gives an average naval tax of .00123 per cent. Estimating the present worth of the country at $106.000,000,000, the proportionate expenditure would be $130,000,000 in stead of the $88.000.000 which was used during the fiscal year of 1903.—Syracuse Post-Standard.
