NOT A FREE TRADER

THOMAS JEFFERSON WAS A STANCH PROTECTIONIST.

Patron Saint of That Party Is Abard-Words of the Third President on Tariff Question.

Just why the Democratic party of today should celebrate so strenuously the anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson is hard to understand. Certainly Jefferson was far from being a Democrat, measured by the principles and policies of the Democrats of to-day. He never himself used the word emocrat," but invariably called him-and his followers "Republicans," and it can hardly be questioned that if Jefferson were living today he would not be a member of the Democratic party as it has been constituted durthe last generation.

If the Democratic party during its entre existence has stood for anything it has stood for free trade and for the buying of goods in the cheapest market. It may be well at this time, when we are reading of Democratic tributes to Jefferson, to quote a few words from our third president to show how absurd must always be any Democratic claim n him as the patron saint of that

The first tariff law, passed in 1789, worked well in starting the new republic upon a career of industrial supremacy and afforded sufficient revenue for the needs of the government. By 1806 the surplus in the treasury was so considerable as to make it a difficult problem as to how it should be disposed of. Referring to this matter, Thomas Jefferson said:

ter, Thomas Jefferson said:

Shall we suppress the imposts (duties) and give that advantage to foreign over our domestic manufactures? On a few articles of more general and necessary use the suppression in due season will doubtless be right, but the great mass of the articles on which imposts are laid are foreign luxuries purchased by those only who are rich enough to afford themselves the use of them. **

The general inquiry now is, Shall we make our own comforts or go without them at the will of a foreign nation? He, therefore, who is now against domestic manufactures must be for reducing us either to a dependent upon that nation or to be clothed in skins and live like beasts in caves and dens. I am proud to say I am not one of these. Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comforts.

The probibiliting duties we lay on all comforts.

The prohibiting duties we lay on all articles of foreign manufactures, which prudence requires us to establish at home, with the patriotic determination of every good citizen to use no foreign article which can be made within ourselves, without regard to difference of price, secure us against a relapse into foreign dependency.

In 1809 Jefferson wrote to Humphrey

My own idea is that we should encourage home manufactures to the extent of our own consumption of everything of which we raise the raw materials.

In 1817, upon accepting an election to membership in a society for the en-couragement of domestic manufactures Jefterson wrote:

Jetierisoli wrote:

The history of the last twenty years has been a significant lesson for us all to depend for necessaries on ourselves alone, and I hope twenty years more will place the American hemisphere under a system of its own, essentially peaceable and industrious and not needing to extract its comforts out of the eternal fires raging in the old world.

It might be well to read some of these quotations from Thomas Jeffer the banquets so much enjoyed by Jeffersonian Democrats, Labor For the Canal.

As the United States has undertaken to build the canal, it should prosecute the great work in a businesslike man ner. This means getting the necessary labor that is best suited to climatic conditions and best fitted for the unskilled work of delving in earth and re-moving rock. Cooly labor fills the bill better than any other kind. Then let the coolies do the digging.—Chicago Evening Post.

SHOULD BE LET ALONE.

Tariff Should Not Be Subjected to Dangers of Revision.

The tariff is a complicated arrangement requiring great skill and statesmanship. It was framed after a thorough study of the industrial situation by men of large experience and prudence. It cannot be safely unmade or taken to pieces and put together except under similar conditions. A local demand here or there, which may be reversed a year hence, is not a sufficient basis for revision. It was impossible, from the diversity of interests, to avoid minor injustices, and the changes occasloned by time may once in awhile Leporte, Pa., July 10, 1905. work temporary injury. But the tariff is not a local, but a national, policy and must be judged by its general advan tages. If it were possible for congress to consider the law and correct the slight evils complained of without altering the policy or impairing its strength it might be a wise thing to do, but experience has shown that is very nearly impossible. If once a campaign of revision were entered unon pairs of the pairs of t paign of revision were entered upon n one could foretell where it would end and the last state of the law might be very much worse than the first.

We are authorized to announce the name of W. M. Botsford of LaPorte red in connection with the matter.

Two, as a consider for County Com-Important questions. They may not be the most serious problems that ever confronted a legislative body, but they will be quite serious enough. There will be more than one of them. The great parliamentary bodies of the world have found it exceedingly difficult to dispose of more than one great question at a single session. Each one of them is of more importance then tariff revision. Were the tariff question once taken up it would probably in one way or another consume all of the time at the disposal of congress, and an agitation would be precipitated throughout the Union, while now there ls complete acquiescence as well as phenomenal prosperity. — Baltimore American.
