The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has rendered a decision that the manufacturers of patent medicine which contains a large percentage of alcohol must take out licenses as racifiers and liquor license, and that in handling the stuff must have a liquor license. It is stated that many of the medicinal preparations contain 25 per cent. of alcohol, that quite a number contain as much as 45 per cent. The balance of the liquid is water, with just enough of drugs to disguise the taste, and such a preparation is much more intoxicating than beer. A lot of it is said to be sold in prohibition communities. The names of the proprietary compounds coming under the ban are not made public, but some of them are those widely advertised.

Judge Scott in his remarks to the Grand Jury at Easton laid great stress upon the necessity of the enforcement of the law to destroy Canada thistles, which grow extensively in Northampton County. He said he had received numerous complaints from different sections of the county and then quoted the law of 1885, showing that it was a direct violation of the law to allow the growth of this obnoxious weed. The Judge further quoted the penalty and fine, remedy for persons aggrieved, duties of constables and supervisors, and stated that supervisors are to destroy all such growing on the public roads and notify owners of unseated land.

While unloading a car of coal at his coal dock in Catawissa, Marvin Grimes of that town, underwent a most unpleasant experience as the result of a very peculiar accident, which fortunately had no serious consequences.

The hopper in the bottom of the car had been opened to allow the coal to run out. Grimes was standing on top of the coal in the car and approached too close to the spot under which was the open hopper. Before discovering his predicament he was sucked down with the coal into the hopper, and when his body stopped the outflow of coal the hopper closed on him and held him fast with his legs resting on the track and his head on the inside of the car. In this position, surrounded by coal, he remained for over an hour until discovered by some linemen who dug him out and released him from his situation. He was at first too weak to stand, but later fully recovered from the experience.

A farmer living not far from Dushore recently went to the pastor of his congregation and asked that his name be taken off the church list. "What is the trouble, Brother Jones?" asked the surprised pastor. "I supposed you was a faithful follower of the Lamb." Well, I sorter believed that myself, but there is no use talking, a man can't serve the Lord when he has to milk four cows in fly time. After the first heavy frost I'll try this church business again, just now I either have to sell the cows, give up the church, or be a damned hypocrit."

The Hebrew New Year will begin at sunset Friday, the 29th. inst., and will be celebrated the whole day Saturday following. From the four corners of the earth during this time the prayers of the Hebrews will ascend, to the Throne of Mercy, thanking the Giver of All for the blessings of life, health, peace and prosperity enjoyed during the past year and imploring a continuance of the same blessings during the year to come. The New Year, called "Rosh-Hashonon", is celebrated according to the Bible on the first day of the seventh month, Tishri, and the Hebrews are commanded to congregate in a holy conversation.

Yom-Kippur, the Day of Atonement, occurs on the tenth day of Tishri, and will be celebrated by the Hebrews on the 9th. of October. As in the case of all Hebrew holidays, Yom-Kippur begins with sunset on Sunday evening, October the eighth, as according to the Scriptures the day begins with the evening. Yom Kippur with the Hebrew is the holiest of all holidays, and is kept as a Sabbath of the Sabbaths, a day of strict abstinence from all work and earthly pleasures, a day of repentance of public and strict confession, a day of forgiveness and good resolution for the future. The strict followers of the Bible deny that their physical body all food for twenty-four hours. A part of the Yom Kippur morning service is the "memorial service", where for departed ones, special prayers are said and their names mentioned.

An exchange says. A ride over the Wyoming Valley at the present time would convince you that the next big coal strike will develop conditions bordering on civil war. All the collieries are surrounded by stockades of heavy planks, about a dozen feet high. In almost every instance these stockades are so built as to include high ground, from which observations can be made of the surrounding country. In fact the stockades look like the inclosures we see in old prints, where our forefathers defended themselves against the Indians, and it is plain even to the person not a soldier that the collieries have been put in good condition for defense. Non union men can be taken inside the stockade, live there in barracks, and operate the mines, regardless of an army of strikers outside. The new trespass law affords the coal companies ample protection, and any assault on the stockades will lead to a battle. If another general strike is declared next April, we look for trouble in the Wyoming Valley.

The board of health of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., has passed an ordinance, which went into effect on Saturday last, forbidding roosters to crow, dogs to bark, bells to toll, and engines to toot their whistles between 10 o'clock at night and 6 o'clock in the morning. Fines ranging from five to fifty dollars are the penalties for infractions of the ordinance. The housewives are busy instructing the barnyard folk in the new ordinance.

The Lehigh coal company has given notice to 100 families at Centralia, Columbia county, that they intend to mine coal in the Primrose workings of the Centralia colliery, which are directly under the houses and near the surface. The coal company officials fear that the houses may be swallowed up by the earth, but the families notified refuse to move for the reason that they don't know where to go. If the company continues working the veins a disaster may happen any day.

Thousands of dollars have been lost by peach growers in Snyder county within the week, yet the crop was the finest ever marketed. A host of unknown commission buyers were attracted to the district and train loads of peaches were shipped by the obliging agents. When a remittance for the peaches was received, instead of getting the coveted dollar or a dollar and a half per basket, as expected, their pay it is said averaged only 18 cents.

The September Bulletin of the State Agricultural Department contains the following practical hints for the farmer:

Apple, pear and quince trees yet have fruit from which the codling moth is escaping and bands of cloth should be kept around them in order to trap and destroy these pests.

The apple maggot or railroad maggot is a fly larva which bores winding tunnels through the pulp of the fruit. The best possible treatment is to destroy the infected fruit as soon as possible by feeding to stock before the fly larva have time to escape to the ground.

Asparagus should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture during this month or cut and burned.

Bean vines and pea vines should be turned by throwing them into a brush fire as soon as their crops are picked. This will destroy both the plant diseases and insects which they carry, and if done early enough is a good means of destroying the very troublesome pea louse and preventing its occurrence next year.

Berry plants of all kinds are best preserved by cutting and burning the old canes now, if this has not been done sooner. The vines of blackberries, raspberries and dewberries but one crop on each cane or vine should consequently be burned now. This will not only destroy the pest. They may contain but will also give opportunity for development of the new canes. It is not to late to mow and burn the old leaves of strawberry plants, but this should be no longer delayed. Blackberries with rust should be taken out and burned root and branch.

Cabbage and cauliflower may be attacked by black rot, and as there is no remedy for this disease the infected plants should be pulled and burned or used as soon as the first evidences of it appear. It does not injure the plants for food for either mankind or live stock, but every article of plants with black rot should be destroyed by fire in order to destroy the cause of the disease.

The corn crop in the southern counties of the state is meeting the early expressed expectations that it will break the record and the farmers are cutting what they call "a bumper crop." The yield for some acres is the largest known by farmers and all over the counties mentioned there are big fields being harvested. Nearly all the corn is cut and escaped injury by frost. Some farmers are already talking of putting out big crops next year because there are indications that this will be a good one to sell. The potato crop will not be as large as last year, when one of the best paying crops known was gathered. The apple crop is small, much fruit having fallen when very small, and little cider will be made. The pear crop is very good.

The Carnegie Steel company at Pittsburg will on Saturday have the largest semi-monthly pay-roll in the history of the Pittsburg district, when $2,000,000 will be paid its work men. This will be a three weeks' pay, which occurs once each quarter. The usual two weeks' pay amounts to $1,000,000, but this time double and sometimes triple time has been made by the workmen.

Now that the school term is opened for the current year, be sure, that when one of your youngsters comes home complaining, that you know both sides of the case. Your good boy (pretending Percie) or girl at home, may be just the reverse away from home. When he or she happens to be the "boss" at home it is quite likely that the same tactics will not work in school and there is apt to be friction. Remember that teachers are human and they make mistakes as well as anyone. Above all if the teacher is doing his best, though it may not be up to the standard, have sense enough to let him alone, particularly if you must admit that you know nothing of the business yourself. Give the teacher half a chance and if he is worthy of the name he will work out his own salvation, and the community will be the better for the support you give him.—Exchange.
