A clergyman who had accepted an invitation to officiate at services in a neighboring town intrusted his new curate with the performance of his own duties. On his return home he asked his wife what she thought of the curate's sermon. "It was the poorest one I ever heard," she replied promptly—"nothing in it at all." Later in the day the clergyman, meeting his curate, asked him how he had got on. "Oh, very well!" was the reply. "I didn't have time to prepare anything, so I preached one of your unused sermons."

The remains of 128 were recovered and 48 were never found.

John Mitchell strongly affirms there will be no strike of the coal miners; but he also insists there can be no renewal of the present pact which expires next April. This looks ominous for coal consumers. The inference to be drawn from Mr. Mitchell's statement is that the mine owners and the miners may reach a satisfactory understanding for advanced wages and that the buyers of coal will have to foot the bill.

Again the season of thanksgiving and gratitude is drawing near, and every one should cease from their labor long enough to ponder over the year that has just passed and which will soon be but a faint shadow in our lives, and sum up the inestimable blessings that have been given to us and for which we should be truly thankful. While it is true that some of us may not have an abundance of the temporal things of this world, and other have suffered in sickness or sorrow, yet, there is no condition in life so unfavorable but it might not be worse. Whatever our reverses may have been, our blessings have been overwhelmingly greater. If we have looked on the bright side of life and have seen the silvery lining of the clouds, surely we must be able to realize how much we are indebted to Him who has shown us countless mercies. The very fact that we are an atom of this great beautiful world should be a cause for gratitude. We should be grateful for homes and friends, and it is a most fitting time to strengthen ties of friendship by showing appreciation of our friends. Thanksgiving Day is pre-eminently the day of family reunions and social intercourse of friends, but the real significance of the day should not be lost in the pursuit of idle amusement. It is said that gratitude shows a brave soul, and ingratitude a cowardly soul, therefore, let your hearts be filled with praise and gratitude on Thanksgiving Day.

THE GRANGE
Conducted by J. W. Darrow, Chatham, N. Y. Press Correspondent New York State Grange
CO-OPERATION IN MICHIGAN.
What the Information Bureau is Doing For Patrons of the State.
In a previous article in this department reference was made to the valuable work that is being carried on by the Michigan state grange information bureau at Lansing, Mich. The article in question has caused wide interest among patrons throughout the United States. Mr. Hoiden, the manager, writes us that early in the spring they made contracts with cheesemakers in different parts of the state to furnish cheese at wholesale prices to granges ordering through the bureau. They have had many orders from granges this season, and the cheese has given excellent satisfaction. The saving has been all the way from 2 to 5 cents per pound. Many granges have sent in third and fourth orders, and several are ordering for winter supply. As soon as granges start in this work they become interested and continue. The main difficulty is to get them interested enough to begin. They are now buying sweet potatoes in the same way for granges. They bunch orders and send direct to an eastern farmers' exchange. They are in communication with members of the Order in neighboring states and from them are gaining knowledge of their needs and resources with a view to active co-operation between members in those states and Michigan.

NEW JERSEY ENTERPRISE.
An Experiment Station For South New Jersey Contemplated.
Cumberland county (N. J.) Pomona, No. 4, at a recent session appointed a committee from each grange to take preliminary steps toward the establishment of an experiment station in south Jersey, as the soil and climate of the location of the present experiment station in New Brunswick are so different from that part of the state that many of the experiments are not now satisfactory. This committee met recently by special invitation of Professor E. R. Johnstone, principal and superintendent at the Training School For the Peble Minded in Vineland, and organized the Pomona experiment committee, with Walton E. Davis, Shiloh, chairman and George A. Mitchell, Vineland, secretary. They visited and examined the experimental work being done at this model farm and dairy by Professor Johnstone and his able assistant superintendents; also visited the laundry, cannery, workshops and other places of interest at this wonderful "home." Special experimental work was assigned to each member of the committee, which, with work to be done by members of their respective granges, is to be reported at a future meeting.

National Secretary's Report.
National Secretary Freeman's report for the quarter ending Sept. 30 makes a very creditable showing of grange growth in all parts of the country. Maine adds 14 and California 8 to the number of subordinate granges, and each puts a dormant grange again in line. Michigan lends the procession with 47 new granges and 5 reorganized. Ohio and Maryland each add 22, and West Virginia reorganizes 14. New York gains 16 granges and Pennsylvania 17. New granges in Oregon, Washington, Colorado, Kentucky and South Carolina indicate that grange territory is extending and will soon include every state in the Union.

Topics For Discussion.
What can be done by farmers of this locality to develop the resources of their farms in the most profitable manner?
What can the national grange do in addition to what it is now doing to advance the interests of the American farmer?
What can be done to increase the attractions of the farm home to make it the brightest and happiest spot on earth?
To what extent should the national grange urge the interests of agriculture before the national congress?

Pennsylvania Granges Oppose Oleo.
Some of the granges in Pennsylvania are taking up the question of the use of oleo by the government and are protesting against the same. Carpenter grange, No. 454, of Lycoming county has sent a strong resolution to the president and to the state senators protesting against the use of this counterfeited butter at the League Island navy yard. It condemns the use of sale of oleo by or to the government, and calls upon all in authority to maintain an unyielding warfare against the nefarious traffic.

In Special Session.
Special state grange sessions of the New York state grange were held in Newburg and Poughkeepsie in October. At the former place eighty three candidates were given the sixth degree and at the latter eighty one. These degrees were conferred in preparation for the taking of the seventh at the national grange. Pennsylvania and New Jersey have also conferred the sixth degree on a large class for the same purpose.

A Worthy Patron.
Hon. S. Fred Nixon, whose death occurred recently and who was speaker of the New York state assembly for several years, was a member of Westfield grange, No. 109, of Cattaraugus county and was universally esteemed by all who knew him.
