A recent issue of the Philadelphia Ledger had this to say of the work of a Lycoming county artist, Mr. J. Wesley Little, who lives on his farm at Picture Rocks:

"The February wall display at the Sketch club consists of landscape studies in a combination of pencil and charcoal. These are all the work of one man, John Wesley Little, of Picture Rocks, near Eagle's Mere. Mr. Little chose a delicate medium for expressing the manifold beauties, not only of his Pennsylvania home, but also the romantic charm of Devonshire, England. The charcoal has added a depth of tone to the more finished grace of the pencil.

The artist has selected his subjects with a keen eye for conventional pictorial effects. He draws firmly and models notable accuracy. Especial commendation is owing the atmospheric values, the cloud masses being apparently withdrawn from the charcoal monotone with nice variety and feeling for space. The silvery tone and graceful thought shown in all the sketches are thoroughly admirable.
