A sermon delivered at Chambersburg on Sunday by Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has aroused much attention. Dr. Schaeffer said among other things, according to reports published: "If a man cannot build up a bank account, he considers himself deserted by fortune. It is very apt to make him think that life is a failure. I would rather be an average, every-day failure with the love of God in my heart than be a New York millionaire—a miser in his heart and a miserable being. The most discontented people of this country are the office-holders. A man may be at the top and yet be the most miserable being on earth. A worm can climb up to the top of this church but will be a worm still. Fame is nothing but a chance of immortality in the printer's ink."

Frank Sanderson of Lock Haven landed an 18 inch trout, weighing three pounds. This is the largest brook trout taken from a Clinton county stream this season. It had a head almost as large as a Delaware shad, and made a breakfast for a family of five.
