WHEN TO BEGIN REVISION.

Time Will Be Ripe When the Free Soup Houses Open.

A correspondent of the American Economist, writing from Jacksonville Fla., gives the following answer to the question, "When shall we revise the

I think it will be time to revise the ariff when they begin to start free soup couses in the large cities.

It is an excellent suggestion. There were no free soup houses in 1892, after two years of the McKinley tariff. But somehow the people took a notion that they would like to have some. So they elected Grover Cleveland and a Demo-eratic congress. Well, they got the soup houses all right, and plenty of them, even before they began to revise

When the revision came in 1894 there were more soup houses. The in full blast in 1896. Then it decided once more that the tared revising, and it did, who upon elected William McKinley and a Republican protection congress. Soup houses disappeared forthwith. There has been none for eight years. Possibly they may reappear under the Dingley tariff, but probably not. But in any case it would be well to wait until they do come again before we reside the tariff. The Florida Idea is the tariff. The Florida idea is a
