Mr. Ernest Gasperine who moved from this place to Bridgeport, Conn., about four years ago, died suddenly of heart trouble on Sunday, September 8. The funeral services were held at Bridgeport, after which the body was taken to Williamsport and interred in Mt. Carmel cemetery. Mr. Gasperine visited Laporte friends only a few months ago.

The Board of County Commissioners of Columbia county are up against a proposition, inasmuch as they are unable to get the taxes collected at Centralia. Nobody will take the job because of the risk of losing money. The town is mostly made up of a coming and going population and many of them foreigners, which makes the collection of taxes very difficult, and no one is willing to give bond for the amount of the tax duplicate which amounts to about $1500 county taxes and $5500 town taxes. Usually the collectors are able to collect but little more than half of the taxes.

A New York state judge refused to issue naturalization papers to a number of applicants on the ground that too many ignorant foreigners have been admitted to citizenship, without knowing what obligations they assume.

If boys were aware of the severe penalty that can be imposed for stealing vegetables or fruit of any description from other peoples land they would stop and think a long time before taking the chance of committing such acts of depredation. According to the act of Assembly governing the same where parties are found guilty a fine of fifty dollars can be imposed and upon failure to pay, the guilty party can be sentenced to jail to serve one day for each dollar fine. The sentence may be made lighter but the manner of imposing it cannot be changed.

Labor Union men in the sections of WilkesBarre and Scranton have started a movement to boycott the beef trust as long as prices remain at their present high mark. They say that the loss in the trade will force the trust to reduce prices. Union leaders say they may as well abstain from meat now, because if the prices keep soaring the working men cannot afford to buy it.

The Towanda Reporter Journal of last week contains the following article concerning a notorious character who several years ago made his home at this place for a short time:

"Horace L. Cole, a noted criminal, preacher, newspaper man, inmate of prisons and author, was arraigned before City Judge Lusk at Cortland Saturday afternoon on the charge of grand larceny in the second degree, in the alleged stealing of a horse and wagon from the livery stable of Price and Lane, Cortland. When Judge Lusk introduced Cole to District Attorney Chase his face lighted up and he said to that official: "How do you do. I don't know whether I'm glad to meet you or not." His hearing was adjourned as the grand jury was in session and his case will probably be brought before that body."

Watterson's Warning Against "Isms."

Colonel Henry Watterson made a speech at the opening of the Bluegrass Fair in Lexington in which he warned the people of his State against the intrusion of certain "isms," and counseled them to live without hypocrisy by adhering to the standard of morals of Old Kentucky.

WARNING AGAINST "ISMS."
"I protest against that religion which sands the sugar and waters the milk before it goes to its prayers. I protest against that morality which poses as a saint in public to do as it pleases in private. As the old woman said of the old man's swearing, if there's anything I do hybominate it is hypocrisy. In my opinion those things which threaten Kentucky are not the gentlemanly vices of the race course and the sideboard, but purify and phariseism in public and in private life.

"The men who made the Bluegrass famous, who put the brand of glory upon its women, its horses and its vintage, were not ashamed to take a drink nor to lay a wager, though they paid their losses and understood where to draw the line. They marked the distinction between moderation and intemperance. They did not need to be told what honor is. They believed, as I believe, that there is such a thing as pretending to more virtue than honest mortals can hope to attain.

"I warn our people against the intrusion of certain 'isms' which describe themselves as 'progress,' and muster under the standard of what they call 'God and Morality,' but which, fifty years ago went by a very different name; 'isms' which, take their spirit from Cotton Mather, not from Jesus Christ; 'isms' which, where they cannot rule, would burn at the stake; 'isms' which embrace the sum of all fanaticism and intolerance, proposing that, instead of the rich, red blood of Virginia, ice water shall flow through the veins of the people; 'isms' which, in one word, would blot Kentucky out of the galaxy of stars and recreate her in the dread image of Maine and Kansas.

NO ANGLES BY LEGISLATION.
"I refuse to yield to these. Holding the ministry in reverence as spiritual advisors, rejecting them, as emissaries of temporal power, I do not intend, if I can help it, to be compelled to accept a rule of modern clericalism, which, if it could have its bent and sway, would revive for us the priest-ridden systems of the Middle Ages. I do not care to live in a world that is too good to be genial; to ascetic to be honest; too proscriptive to be happy. I do not believe that men can be legislated into angels, even red nosed angels.

"The blue laws of New England, dead letters for the most part, did more harm to the people, while they lasted, than all other agencies united. I would leave them in the cold storage to which the execration of some and the neglect of all consigned them long ago, not embalm and import them to Kentucky to poison the meat and drink and character of the people. I shall leave my home life, my professional career and my familiar associates to say whether I do not place, and have not always placed, the integrity of man, the purity of woman and the sanctity of religion above all earthly things; but I hope never to grow to old to make merry with my friends and forget for a little that I am no longer one and twenty! When the time arrives for me to go to my account, I mean to go shouting; to go with my tlying, and, as I never have lied to the people of Kentucky, please God I never shall, I have told them a great many unpalatable things."

"I have met their disapproval full in the face. I have lived to see most of my admonitions against this, that and the other vain hope vindicated by events. I want to live yet a little longer still to tell the truth and shame the devil; but if obsecurity and adversity and neglect shall overtake me it will be a comfort even in the valley of the shadow of death that from first to last I fought not for the speckled gospels of the short-haired women and the long-haired men of Babylon, but for the simple manhood and lovely womanhood of old Kentucky—never New Kentucky, but always and forever, Old Kentucky—your birthright and mine."
