Editor Newell of the Review has advertised his publication for sale in a trade journal published in Philadelphia. Ill health is the reason for offering his business at a sacrificial price. The Review is classed among the best edited newspapers published in this state, and the fraternity in general will regret to see Editor Newell lay aside his entertaining pen.

Our new county officials entered upon the duties of their office Monday. Prothonotary Heess took up the work and started off like an old experienced hand at the business. Sheriff Brown takes hold of his duties very gracefully, and has secured the services of Atty. F. W. Meylert to pilot him over such legal entanglements as often crops in the transactions of this important office.

Since the first of January the county commissioners of Wyoming county have refused to pay bounties on wild animals killed and will continue to do so until they receive further instructions from the auditor general. Many other counties are refusing to pay any more bounties.

Death of Mrs. John Dotter.

On Wednesday afternoon a message was received by friends of F. W. Gallagher, telling of the death of Mrs. John Butler, at the home of her husband's parents near Pittsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher and daughter Mrs. Frey were at their daughters bedside for several days previous to her death, but left for their home Wednesday morning. At that time the condition of Mrs. Butler seemed very favorable toward recovery, but before her parents had reached Laporte, her death occurred. Mr. Gallagher, on Thursday morning returned to the bereaved home, and if possible to bring the remains of his daughter to this place for burial.

Mrs. Butler was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Gallagher, and was born in this town where nearly all her life was spent. She was about 21 years of age, and was married in December of 1906. She was of frail constitution, having been a sufferer from asthma from early childhood. Her cheerful disposition, even when suffering severely, was often commented upon by those who knew her. She was generally beloved, and her seemingly untimely death has cast a sorrow over the community.

A bear chase inside the city limits in which dozens of citizens armed with revolvers and guns took part, caused great excitement at Altoona on New Year's day. The bear wandered into the city, and women and children fled in terror. In a few minutes armed men and boys had driven him to an alley and opened fire. One had been wounded in the foot. The bear fled toward the mountain, but was cornered in an orchard and killed.

State Economic Zoologist Surface is now forming a new plan for conducting part of the demonstration work of the division of zoology in Pennsylvania. Heretofore the work has been confined principally to showing farmers how the San Jose scale and other pests can be controlled, although other valuable points have been given too.

Dr. Surface now proposes to have "model orchards" as he terms them distributed over the state. In these the field demonstrators shall work throughout the year for the purpose of showing fruit growers just how an orchard should be kept. The state does not intend to buy the orchard. The owners simply allow the division of zoology to run them, getting their reward in the increase value of the orchard itself. The state will furnish the expert men to do the work in the orchards, and will also furnish the chemicals for insecticides. Every thing else must be furnished by the owner of the orchard.

It is the hope Dr. Surface to establish about 20 of these model orchards about the state an average of one to every three counties. Many applications are already in from owners, who offer their orchards for the work, and Dr. Surface will soon make his selection. The first work in these model orchards will be started early in March when trees which need pruning will receive attention. Spraying will come later.

Walter Weisbrod, of Cherry township, and Miss Martha Streby, were married Dec. 19, at the residence of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. George Streby, at Dushore, by Rev. P. H. Hoover. Mr. and Mrs. George Weisbrod have commenced house keeping on the Weisbrod homestead near Cherry Mills.

Egg dealers in the cities are giving as the chief reason for the high price of eggs, the rapidly growing demand for them by those who are hatching chickens with incubators. The profit on early chickens is greater than on eggs, and the hens cannot hatch them fast enough to meet the demand.

The National Grange with nearly one million members and representing the agricultural interests of the country have passed resolutions recommending Federal aid in the improvement of the public highways. They ask that congress make an appropriation of $50,000,000 for this purpose, to be divided into five annual installments.
