Our local news columns may be a little shy of their usual amount of newsy bits this week, but with old L. A. Grippe again hanging around these parts it is well nigh impossible to keep the wheels of the plant moving. There is just this much about it; nobody dares to kick unless he has had an attack for it seems to be making the rounds pretty thoroughly, giving each one a crack as it goes along, and it is up to any one who has missed it so far to be careful.

Thursday was groundhog day. That is to say, it was the day set for the festive wood-chuck to hike from his winter home and look for a shadow. From appearances as we go to press Bro. Groundhog will look in vain for the fog is so thick that it has to be shoveled off the sidewalks and it is very dangerous to go abroad without a lantern. Of course this means that he will not be scared back into his hole and in order to keep him from freezing spring will come directly.

Short Talks on Advertising
By Charles Austin Bates.
No. 37.

Once in a while some business man, by advertising in programmes, souvenirs and various other schemes, determines that "advertising doesn't pay," and forthwith begins to preach this doctrine.

Several thousand years ago, a gentleman named Aesop told a little story that has a distinct application right here:

"A fox was once caught in a trap by his tail, and, in order to get away, was forced to leave it behind. Knowing that without a tail he would be a laughing-stock for all his fellows, he resolved to try to induce them to part with theirs. So at the next assembly of foxes, he made a speech on the unprofitableness of tails in general, and the inconvenience of a fox's tail in particular, adding that he had never felt so easy as he had since he had given up his own. When he sat down, a sly old fellow rose, and waving his long brush with a graceful air, said with a sneer, that if, like the last speaker,

"Several thousand years ago a gentleman named Aesop told a little story."

he had lost his tail, nothing further would have been needed to convince him; and till such an accident should happen, he should certainly vote in favor of tails."

Pick out the largest users of newspaper space, and you will find that they are the smallest users of space in extraneous media. You will not find among them a single one who is not firmly convinced that advertising does pay. The more a man spends for newspaper advertising the more positive he is in his belief in the results that it brings.

"A fox was once caught in a trap by his tail, and in order to get away was forced to leave it behind."

New Tariff Pact With Canada. The administration's reciprocity agreement with Canada was submitted to congress, with a special message from President Taft urging its prompt enactment into law. The agreement was presented concurrently to the Dominion parliament in Ottawa and within a few days bills will be introduced in the legislative body of each government designed to make the terms of the agreement. The concurrent legislation obviates the necessity of any negotiations on the subject between the two governments. Generally speaking, the agreement opens the markets of the United States to Canada's leading agricultural products, notably wheat and other grain and also to her dairy products, fish, eggs and poultry, sheep, cattle and other live animals. Her rough lumber also is admitted duty free to the United States, as is her print paper and wood pulp and several other raw materials. In return for these concessions Canada takes down the bars altogether on cottonseed oil and American fruits and some other products and grants reduced duties on agricultural implements and other manufactured articles.

On the basis of results expressed in dollars and cents, Canada seems to have a little better of the argument in the agreement, although President Taft points out in his message that the benefits to be derived by the United States cannot be computed in this way at the present. The total value of articles now dutiable which the United States proposes to make free under the agreement is $39,811,000, or 76.4 per cent of the total dutiable importations of Canada into the United States in the fiscal year 1911. The total value of articles now dutiable which Canada proposes to make free is, on the other hand, only $16,958,000, which is 16.5 per cent of all the dutiable imports into Canada from the United States in the same year. The total amount of duties to be remitted by the United States under the agreement is $4,850,000, as compared with $2,569,909 with Canada. Aeroplane Rises From Water. The aeroplane has added another conquest to its long list of achievements on San Diego bay, Cal., when an aeroplane driven by Glenn Curtiss arose from the surface of the bay, flew two miles, returned to the starting place and alighted on the water as lightly as a gull.
