In speaking of the poisoning of dogs in New Albany, Editor Taylor of the Mirror says: "It is our opinion that a poisoner is below contempt, whether it be a flea bitten cur or a helpless millionaire such as Schenk et. al. that gets the dose." Our sentiments exactly, Bro. Taylor. The dog poisoner has been getting in his work in Laporte and while it may be true that there is a surplus of the Canis family in this borough, we think the dropping of poison in various places is a mighty poor way to dispose of them. It also places a tempting bait in the way of good dogs that some one pays taxes on and is the personal property of some citizen. If allowing dogs to have the freedom of the borough for a parading ground is a menace, why not pass an ordinance compelling the owners to register such as are valuable as pets or otherwise, and cause them to place a tag on each dog. Then appoint a dog catcher to capture the vagrants and do away with them in a proper manner. This looks to us like a much better plan than sneaking a death dealing dope in the path of the unsuspecting pup. Think it over.

A sad faced editor with fringes on the bottom of his trousers and the wind sighing mournfully through his whiskers sat in his sanctum—thinking. Presently a shadow fell across the room and a shrill voice demanded to know if he was the editor. "Yes sir," said he with a look of alarm. The owner of the voice mopped the floor with the editor and went his way. Thank heaven said the editor, after he had gathered together the wreck of his former self and had straightened up the furniture, "life is worth living. I expected he would tell me to stop his paper."—Ex.

TURKEY CULTURE—SALLY VER-SUS MARY.

For pure bred poultry pessimism talk turkey to farmers in the gobbler graveyard belt.
 "Go talk to Sally," said one of these. "She's got one turk left out of sixty."
 Sally blamed the weather man.
 "Too turrible soppy fur poultis," said she. "When the atmosphere's agin poultis they git cholrey an' sniffles."
 But "between you, me and the gatepost" Sally was to blame, for she hadn't changed stock in ten years, bred only from young birds and reared the poultis with lousy clucks, fed them pasty cornmeal and housed them in dirty boxes.

 But one day we found a farmer chock full of turkey enthusiasm. "Yep," said he, "our turkeys are a success, but go and talk to Mary about it. Mary's the turkey raiser." We found Mary, a pretty, dimpled milkmaid, and it was pleasant to talk to her.
 After we had snapped her favorite hen, Beauty, and while we sat and admired Mary and her turkeys she told us the following interesting turkey tale:
 "Turkeys should be bred from adults, kept strong by new blood every year, and poultis should be hatched and reared by Mother Turkey for success.
 "Chicken hatched poultis are inferior. Hen lice kill them quicker than turkey vermin. Hens feed poultis filth and drag them to death.
 "I dust the turkey three times during hatch—the hen and poultis both when she comes off—and put a little sweet cream on the poult's heads to

 "I house them in a large box, with screen front toward south, and move this box daily so they sleep on fresh ground, and when poultis are able to get over the foot screen of their small yard I turn them loose, but always feed at night to lure them home.
 "Cottage cheese is same as meat to turks, and I make it this way: I let skim milk set in 80 degrees heat, and when sour I stir it and then keep it at 90 degrees for twenty minutes and then hang it in a bag to drain.
 "I am careful not to overfeed and vary the ration thus: For breakfast I chop a hard boiled egg with crisp dandelion and sprinkle with grit; for dinner, dry sweet breadcrumbs and cheese; for supper, half an egg, cheese and young onion tops cut fine.
 "I lead them with good chick feed to red wheat, the standard grain for turkeys. With grit and water before them and such fare the poultis quickly grow, and soon my troubles are over, except to save them from storms and bring them home at night."

DEATH OF EX-JUDGE THOMAS J. INGHAM.

It is our most painful and distressing duty to announce the death of Hon. Thomas J. Ingham, a life long resident of this county, and one of the most enterprising and liberal citizens of Laporte. He departed this life, after a seven weeks' illness of Bronchitis, at his home on Saturday, February 11th, about noon. Funeral services were held at his house on Tuesday, the Rev. H. H. Graves of Towanda officiating, and he was laid at rest in Mountain Ash cemetery.

The following friends of Mr. T. J. Ingham acted as pall bearers: E. J. Mullen, A. Walsh, Fred Vincent, Edw. Ladley, F. G. Lauer, F. M. Crossley.

Resolutions of the Sullivan County Bar Association were read by E. J. Mullen, Esq., Chairman of the committee, at the close of the services at the house.

Thomas J. Ingham, son of Thomas Ingham and Eunice (Horton) Ingham, was born at Sugar Run, Pa., Nov. 25, 1828. He was educated in the common schools, and spent a year at the Harford, Susquehanna Co., Academy, and a year at Wyoming Seminary at Kingston. At a very early age he took an active part in politics, and was elected County Auditor before he was 21 years of age, which office he could not accept. He was elected to the Pennsylvania Legislature from the district then comprising the counties of Sullivan, Wyoming, and Susquehanna in the year 1855, and served two years. He studied law in the office of Hon. Ulysses Mercur, was admitted to the bar and practiced law in the counties of Bradford and Sullivan. He had previously been Deputy Prothonotary of Sullivan County.

In 1874 he was appointed Judge of the new 44th Judicial District comprising the counties of Wyoming and Sullivan. At the ensuing fall election he was elected President Judge of the district and served the full term of ten years. On leaving the bench, Mr. Ingham resumed the practice of law. He had his office in Dushore for about three years, and then returned to Laporte, having associated with his son F. H. Ingham.

Mr. Ingham is survived by three sons, Ernest V., Ellery P. and Francis H. Ingham. One brother only survives him—J. W. Ingham of Sugar Run.

At the organization of the First National Bank of Laporte he was made President, which office he held at the time of his death. Judge Ingham had literary ability of a high order, and had recently written a serial story "The Young Man From Wyoming at Eagles Mere" which was published in this paper. He was the author or compiler of the History of Sullivan County. His death will be mourned by hosts of friends throughout the entire region.

Resolutions of Respect.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Sullivan County Bar Association held in the Court room Monday:

In the matter of the death of Hon. Thomas J. Ingham, a member of the Bar of Sullivan County.

Now, February 14th, 1911, the death of Hon. Thomas J. Ingham of Laporte, Pa., is announced and the members of the Bar, desiring to place upon record an expression of the respect and affection in which they held the beloved President of the Sullivan County Bar Association, adopt the following minutes:

Thomas J. Ingham was born in Bradford County, Pennsylvania, in the year 1828. He died at Laporte, Pennsylvania on Feb. 11, 1911, in the 83d year of his age.

He came to Sullivan County to assume the duties Deputy Prothonotary of this Court in the year 1851. Practically his entire life since that time was spent in Sullivan County. He came shortly after the County was organized, and has interwoven his life into the life of the County. He has become inseparable from its history and a part of all that is worthy of remembrance therein. Admitted to the Bar in 1860, for fifty years he has borne a conspicuous and honorable part in the transaction of the business in this Court, for eleven of them the President Judge thereof.

He has filled nearly every elective office in the gift of the people of this County, among others Prothonotary, Representative, District Attorney and President Judge. It is impossible that any man should have filled the places that he occupied as a result of mere chance. Under our system of government, no man can achieve preferment and retain same for years without merit. His life illustrates that industry and integrity added to an honorable ambition, command the key which opens the way to distinction. He filled many places of public trust and it may be truthfully said of him that in all of them he was faithful to duty.

As a lawyer, he was painstaking and accurate, a safe adviser, a sturdy advocate, a dangerous adversary. Faithful to his client and frank with the Court, to his opponent in a cause he was the perfection of courtesy. A lawyer of the old school, he held personal and professional integrity above mere financial gain.

His career as Judge sustained his reputation as a lawyer. Industrious, careful, impartial, his record on the bench sheds luster on the history of the 44th judicial district of Pennsylvania.

As a citizen, he was clear sighted and public spirited. Every worthy cause found in him a friend and champion. In every relation of life as husband, father, brother and friend, he was always faithful to duty. He has furnished a grand illustration of the power for good of a human life consecrated to the highest and noblest aims. Everything he did, he did well, and his character remains as an example and a precept to those who come after him in the profession of which he was so conspicuous and so honored a member.

In the fullness of years and honors, he has passed from among us. May he rest in peace.

Resolved that the Court be requested to enter this minute upon its record and that a copy of same be delivered to the bereaved family of deceased by the Clerk.

Respectfully submitted,
 E. J. Mullen,
 F. W. Meylert,
 J. G. Scouten, } Committee.

In the death of ex-Judge Thomas J. Ingham of Laporte, the northeastern part of the state loses one of its most distinguished men, and one who during his long and active career served the people most importantly. He was a lawyer of the old school, and one who was an acknowledged leader in his profession. As a judge he displayed both an analytical and an impartial mind, his record upon the bench being one of credit both to himself and the district over which he presided. His literary tastes and attainments were displayed in many articles that have appeared in print, and as a conversationalist and companion he was most delightful.—Williamsport Sun.

Jennie McCarty.

Jenny McCarty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCarty of Eagles Mere, died at her home in that place on Thursday, Feb. 9, 1911, at the age of 16 years. The young lady had been suffering for some time with abscess on the brain and in an effort to relieve her suffering an operation was performed, which, however was of no avail. She was a member of the graduating class of the Eagles Mere school and the remaining seven members of the class mourn her untimely death. Funeral services were held Sunday.

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Blum, Texas, said in expressing her opinion of this remedy.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine raised me from the grave and I have much confidence in it. I can never say enough for your grand medicines. If anyone had offered me $100.00 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"

When people realize that it is not the quantity for the money, so much as the quality that counts, then they will patronize the store which does business in good pure goods. Cut prices often mean cut qualities. Our prices are as low as good goods will allow. Our goods are not of the cheap mail-order variety. When comparing prices do not forget to compare qualities. If you find the prices lower than ours, then you will find the qualities inferior—generally "bargain house" job lots.
