GEORGE SIMMONS DEAD.

George Simmons, a well known Thomas Stoltz of Muncy was in lumberman of Sonestown, died at Dr. Donaldson's Sanitarium in Williamsport, shortly after midnight Wednesday morning, at the age of 74 years.

Mr. Simmons was a well known and highly respected citizen in the locality in which he lived. For a number of years he has acted a transfer boss for the Sones Lumber Company, previous to which he was a blacksmith. He was a veteran of the civil war and has a fine record as a soldier. A short time ngo Mr. Simmons suffered an attack of appendicitis and was taken to Williamsport in a critical condition.

Deceased is survived by a wife W. B. Snider of Nordmont was and eight grown children. One son, an engineer, was killed in an accident on the Eaglesmere Railway a few years ago.

Good Roads Day---March 19th.

The movement for good roads i going forward in every section of the state and the people are beginning to realize that no other public movement holds so much potency for the general good as that of good roads.

Let us get together in every neighborhood in Pennsylvania, on March 19, and form a Good Roads Association, no matter how small; name a delegate to represent that district; send his name to the Sec retary of the Pennsylvania Good Roads Association and when a sufficient number of such representatives have been named a County Association will be organized. Good Roads Bulletin.

By Charles Austin Bates.

There is probably no merchant in the United States who is not called upon from time to time to put an advertisement into a programme of a church fair or of some entertainment given by a secret society or a labor organization.

The people who get these things up are often perfectly honest in their intentions. They may honestly believe that their advertising is worth something. On the other hand, there are some who know that what they are selling has no commercial value.

These things are quite frequently a mild sort of blackmail—sometimes they are not so mild. Sometimes a solicitor for a labor programme, for instance, insinuates more or less plainly that unless the advertisement is taken ment is taken the merchant refusing will be blacklisted, by the union.

There is very little doubt that these solicitors are overstepping their authority, and that the intelligent

"He insinuates more or less plainly that the union they misrepresent would not countenance these methods.

Business men all say that such things are an an any any agree and agree and agree and agree agree and agree agree that the y and blackmail."

b ut only here and there is one who has the necessary nerve to refuse to have anything to do with them.

Money paid for such things should not be charged to advertising at all. The bookkeeper should open an account for charity or blackmail or whatever he chooses, so long as it isn't advertising.

A safe rule to go by is, never put an advertisement into anything where you cannot trace a direct result. When somebody tells you that it is Impossible to trace results tell them they are mistaken. If you put your ad in a good newspaper you can tell exactly what it brings you if you try.
