then admitted that he had two pear necklaces. He said he had bought them in Europe for $3800 as a gift for his wife and that he was willing to pay whatever duty there might be on them. Donahue took possession of the jewelry and made his discovery known to the deputy surveyor in charge of the customs men on the pier, and Mrs. Lyon, who had gone to the street and entered a car, was called back.

Mr. Lyon, according to Donahue, then remarked that his wife had a brooch valued at $500 and a diamond and emerald clasp worth about $500. Mrs. Lyon surrendered the articles, but nevertheless was searched by a but nevertheless was searched by a woman inspector, who discovered noth-ing additional. The deputy surveyor seized all the seven trunks of the banker and his wife and they were sent to the public stores. The banker called at the custom house and said he had no desire to smuggle and was willing to pay whatever was neces-sary. The customs men, in telling their side of the case, said that they had given Mr. Lyon ample opportunity to declare everything that he had that was dutiable, and that he had put the valuable stuff at $504, adding later, at the request of the customs men. $45 for two suit cases bought abroad. An-other search of the trunks followed the discovery of Donahue and a gold watch valued at about $100 was found. Mr. Smyth said he thought it was a proper case to submit to United States

Commissioner Russ in Hoboken, and he ordered Donahue to take the banker there a prisoner. No charge was made against Mrs.

Lyon, but she decided to accompany her husband to Hoboken. After hearing the testimony the commissioner held Mr. Lyon in $2500 bail, which he furnished in cash. He was held for examination on June 8.

Mr. Lyon declared on the pier that he had eleven pieces of baggage, but as only ten were found, he was asked about the other. He said it had been sent ahead by the steamer Cincinnati, which arrived here about a month ago. It is a large trunk and has been since in the government stores. It will be carefully searched and its contents ap-puraised, as the contents of the other trunks will be, so the exact value of everything of foreign make found in them will be presented at the exami-nation of Mr. Lyon.
