MILDRED AND BERNICE.

John Regan and wife of Mildred visited Scranton friends this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Kellar of Mildred are visiting friends in Benton.

Oh, for some of that beautiful snow that cost the tax-payers eight hundred dollars to shovel away. Hot, isn't it.

Owen Brink and wife and Jane Gallagher of Eagles Mere attended the Jordan-Gallagher wedding on Thursday, May 25.

Morgan Deiffenbach and wife of Scranton visited friends in this place.

E. L. Sweeney of Laporte was calling on the business men of this town and the business men were poorer.

Not many miles away a constable had a warrant to arrest a man. He got his man and did not get him for the simple reason that when the prisoner got permission to wash himself before appearing before his 'Squireship to receive his just dues, he took a walk and left the constable awaiting his return, but up to this time he has not come back. A word to the wise is sufficient: Never enjoy yourself in other company and let your man escape.

Glass Eye Explodes.

Frank R. Minner, city building inspector of Allentown, has experienced the most peculiar accident ever known in that vicinity. He was granting a permit to a prospective builder when a glass eye he has worn for many years exploded with a report like a pistol shot.

Few of his friends knew of it, but 20 years ago Mr. Minner met with an accident whereby he lost his left eye and since then has worn an artificial orb.

The man to whom he was granting a permit was naturally startled as he saw Minner sink back and hold his hand to his eye and then sink into a faint while the eye bled profusely.

Dr. Eugene M. Kistler found many painful lacerations about the face but could find no reason for the glass eye exploding. Neither could the optician who had furnished it. Mr. Minner is laid up from the shock, but physicians say that unless splinters of glass have entered the brain, he will recover.

Memorial Services.

Memorial services held in the M. E. church on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, which consisted of music by the choir, reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address by Olive E. Keeler and an address by Rev. C. H. Doupe. After the services the soldiers, led by several children bearing flowers, proceeded to Mt. Ash Cemetery where the graves were decorated.

Derrick—Fiester.

George Derrick of Picture Rocks and Miss Laura Fiester of Nordmont were united in marriage on Thursday evening, May 18, 1911, by Rev. Hertz at Sonestown. The bride is one of Nordmont's most beautiful young ladies and the groom is well known and highly respected. The young couple have the best wishes of a host of friends for a long and happy married life.

The Connell Coal and Mining Company of Bernice have the plans and specifications for a hospital to cost $25,000, which the company propose to build at Bernice. The company also proposes to build a machine shop at that place costing $100,000. The company also propose to build a machine shop at that place costing $100,000. The company also propose to build a machine shop at that place costing $100,000.

Says the Dushore Herald: "The Trexler & Turrell Lumber company has started to peel the last timber tract of 15,000 acres of virgin forest, which will come to the company's mill at Ricketts, unless the company buys the large timber tract over the mountain on South Brook."

A Cow For a Life.

The Ober Gabelhorn is a peak notorious for the dangerous cornices which decorate its upper ridges. Of many accidents reported in connection with it perhaps the most remarkable, says G. D. Abraham in "Swiss Mountain Climbs," was the adventure which befell an amateur and his young guide. In passing along the dangerous final cornice it suddenly gave way under the amateur, and he went flying through space to apparent destruction. The guide at the other end of the rope seemed in hopeless plight, but with astounding presence of mind he flung himself down the opposite side of the ridge, thus saving two lives. The rope cut deep into the snow above, but held firm. The young guide's name was Ulrich Almer. His reward was a cow.

A Horticultural Puzzle.

"It's no use," sighs the nature wizard. "I may as well give up." "What is bothering you?" we ask sympathetically. "I got started a few years ago on a whim of mine. I took a head of cabbage and crossed it with a white potato and grew eyes on it; then I crossed that with a cornstalk and grew ears on it; then I crossed that with a squash and grew a neck on it; then I crossed that with a coconut and grew hair on it, but hanged if I can figure out what to do for a nose and mouth!"—St. Louis Republic.

Easier Way.

"Don't you think it must be a dreadful thing to live from hand to mouth?" "I don't know. I live myself from hand to foot." "How's that?" "My tradesman hands out the bills, and my husband foots them."—Baltimore American.

Stumble Upon Them.

Not by appointment do we meet delight and joy. They heed not our expectancy, but round some corner of the street of life they on a sudden greet us with a smile.—Gerald Massey.

Know that "impossible" has no place in the brave man's dictionary.—Carlyle.

Williamsport is Wormy.

The beautiful city of Williamsport is menaced with a plague of caterpillars and their ravages have become so great that the trees of the city are in danger of being destroyed. City officials are preparing for a general war against the pest and a fund has been started to meet the expense of exterminating the caterpillars. Meetings have been held and advice given by experts from the State Department of Agriculture. The situation is becoming alarming as the chief pride of the city, its trees, is at stake.

The losses by the forest fires which raged on the mountains East of Laporte a few weeks ago, 5000 acres of Davidson Township were burned over but the loss up to this time has not been ascertained.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Raised Me From the Grave"—Mrs. Taylor

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Blum, Texas, said in expressing her opinion of this remedy.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine raised me from the grave and I have much confidence in it. I can never say enough for your grand medicines. If anyone had offered me $100.00 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"
MRS. THOMAS TAYLOR,
Blum, Tex.

Nervous exhaustion is a common occurrence of modern life. The wear and tear on the nervous system is greater now than at any time since the world began. For sleeplessness, poor appetite and that "run down" feeling, nothing is so good as

Dr. Miles' Nervine

THE MERE MAN'S VIEWPOINT

THE STOUT HEART WINS

By BYRON WILLIAMS

THE woman to whom has been revealed the truth knows what a mistake it is to give oneself despair. Then everything is lost! History teems with stories of men and women who but for despair might have won. Literature is loaded with instances of individuals who by holding out a little longer might have "lived happily ever after."

Sir Tannhauser, the legendary hero of Germany, escaping from the thrall of sensual passion, sought absolution at Rome from the pope, who said, "You can no more hope for pardon than this dry wand can bud and bear leaves." Tannhauser, giving up to despair, went his way, and, behold, the pope's staff miraculously sprouted! Messengers were sent to find Tannhauser, but he was gone. Instead of hoping he had abandoned himself to the awful blackness of sorrow and had disappeared.

Woman, Tannhauser would have been absolved, he would have been restored to happiness and to love, if he had stood out against despair.

Consider the case of the Babylonian lovers Pyramus and Thisbe. The trust at Niang's tomb came Thisbe. Driven away by a lion, she fled to a place of safety. Pyramus, arriving at the tomb and believing his beloved Thisbe was dead, gave himself up to despair and killed himself. Thisbe, returning, found her lover cold in death and took her own life.

Had Pyramus embraced hope instead of despair the story would have had a most delightful ending, or might not have been written at all.

In Matthew Arnold's poem, "Tristram and Isolt," Tristram, lying wounded, awaits the coming of Isolt. If the white flag were hoisted it was she that approached. When told the sail was black Tristram gave up and, courting death, died before Isolt, under the white sail, arrived.

Just a little more hope, just a little more faith, and all would have been well.

How many defeats have been turned into victories by some brave heart that refused to be conquered! How many armies have gone down to defeat because they lacked a leader possessing the characteristic that makes a man fight on and on against great odds, defying defeat, knowing no conqueror, acknowledging no subjugator!

Remember, no matter what your fight is, no matter what the load you are carrying, do not enter the slough of despond, do not despair. Some time there will come relief, some time the sun will shine, some time right must conquer might.

Despair dulls the mind, stops the flow of pulsing blood in your veins, makes an invalid of you. Hope feeds the spirits and quickens the body. In the garden of hope grow flowers for every hand. Hope is an enchanter, a tonic, a panacea for all ills.

All about me in the city I see men who have given up the battle in the turmoil of trade. I see men broken and dispirited, men who have abandoned hope and embraced despair. Henceforth for them there will be no sun shining through their cypress trees. All ahead is blackness and oblivion.

They are the wreckage that floats up from the great sea of endeavor, the debris of commercialism. Upon the shore of failure there lie thousands of these wrecked hopes that now are symbols of despair, but upon that long shore line cannot be found one man with hope in his heart.

Hope is an old friend. It comes to us at cradle time and will be constant and true, even beyond the grave. If we will but make a confidant and a companion of it. Despair is a stranger that comes to us later in life to give tears to our eyes and aching pains to our hearts.

Despair usurps the place of happiness and, rude beyond measure, drives from the citadel of our being all these things that make life glad and happy and worth living. And when all the dear things of our being have been beaten out of us by this monster it gives nothing in return but sorrow and bitterness and woe.

Be on your guard, madam. When despair leaves its visiting card at your front door take warning lest it come again and again and ruin your life.

QUALITY

When people realize that it is not the quantity for the money, so much as the quality that counts, then they will patronize the store which does business in good pure goods. Cut prices often mean cut qualities. Our prices are as low as good goods will allow. Our goods are not of the cheap mail-order variety. When comparing prices do not forget to compare qualities. If you find the prices lower than ours, then you will find the qualities inferior—generally "bargain house" job lots.

Ask us to show you why our stock is superior.
