many accidents reported in connection with it perhaps the most remarkable, says G. D. Abraham in "Swiss Moun-tain Climbs," was the adventure which befell an amateur and his young guide. In passing along the dangerous final cornice it suddenly gave way under the amateur, and he went flying through space to apparent destruction. The guide at the other end of the rope seemed in hopeless plight, but with astounding presence of mind he flung himself down the opposite side of the ridge, thus saving two lives. The rope cut deep into the snow above, but held firm. The young guide's name was Ulrich Almer. His reward was a cow.

"It's no use," sighs the nature wiz-ard. "I may as well give up." "What is bothering you?" we ask sympathetically. "I got started a few years ago on a whim of mine. I took a head of cab-bage and crossed it with a white pota-to and grew eyes on it; then I crossed that with a cornstalk and grew ears or it; then I crossed that with a squash and grew a neck on it; then I crossed that with a cocoanut and grew hair on it, but hanged if I can figure out what to do for a nose and mouth!"-St. Louis Republic.

He Worried the Judge. A story was recently told of the elder Judge Peckham, father of the supreme court justice. In the early days of dentistry a hickory plug was put into the cavity to fill the space where a tooth ought to be. This plug had to be gently pounded into its desired position. The old judge was somewhat addicted to strong language, and when the dentist began his wor kthe judge indulged in some classic comment. As the tapping of the plug continued he threw all dignity to the four winds of heaven, and his language became decidedly "more forcible than elegant." When, however, he arose from the chair after what seemed to him an interminable period of agony he pulled out all the stops in his vocabulary for a grand climax. The impression on his listener seems to have been deep and lasting. As the judge passed out the dentist grimly remarked to a walting patient: "Wasn't it beautiful? It wasn't real ly necessary to pound half so long, but I did so enjoy his inflection that I almost pounded the hickory plug into splinters. Wonderful command of language the judge has!"-Case and Common the pluge has an er in a pluge has an er control of the pluge has an er tonic, a panacea for all ills. Comment

THE STOUT HEART WINS

By BYRON WILLIAMS

HE woman to whom has been revealed the truth knows what revealed the truth knows what a mistake it is to give oneself despair. Then everything is lost! History teems with stories of men and women who but for despair might have won. Literature is loaded with instances of individuals who by holding out a little longer might have withen despuir one after? "lived happily ever after." Sir Tannhauser, the legendary hero of Germany, escaping from the thral-dom of sensual passion, sought absolution at Rome from the pope, who said, "You can no more hope for pardon than this dry wand can bud and bear leaves." Tannhauser, giving up to despair, went his way, and, behold, the pope's staff miraculously sprouted! Messengers were sent to find Tannhawser, but he was gone. Instead of hoping he had abandoned himself to the awful blackness of sorrow and had disappeared. Woman, Tannhauser would have been absolved, he would have been restored to happiness and to love, if he had stood out against despair. Consider the case of the Babylonian lovers Pyramus and Thisbe. To the tryst at Ninus' tomb came Thisbe. Driven away by a lion, she fled to a place of safety. Pyramus, arriving at the tomb and believing his beloved Thisbe was dead, gave himself up to despair and killed himself. Thisbe, re-A Cow For a Life. Had Pyramus embraced hope instead of despair the story would have had a most delightful ending, or might had a most deligniful ending, or night not have been written at all. In Matthew Arnold's poem, "Tris-tram and Iscult," Tristram, lying wounded, awaits the coming of Isolde. If the white flag were hoisted it was she that approached. When told the sail was black Tristram gave up and, rourting death, died before Isolde, under the white sail, arrived.

Just a little more hope, just a little more faith, and all would have been well.

time the sun will shine, some time right must conquer might.

Despair duils the mind, stops the flow of pulsing blood in your veins, makes an invalid of you. Hope feeds the spirits and quickens the body. In the garden of hope grow flowers for every hand. Hope is an enchanter, a heart, and It is Said the Girl, Believing She Would Get $7,000 Insurance, Planned It.

Valentine, Neb .- Eunice Murphy, of this place, the girl accused of having incited a mob to hang her flance in order that she might inherit his life guilty as the men who took her sweet-heart to a tree and hanged him.

Silent to all but her attorneys, de spondent, but dry-eyed, Miss Eunice Murphy is composedly waiting in her jail cell the day when she shall be called to trial as accessory to the atrocious murder of Charles Sellers, her suitor.

To all appearances an unsophisticat ed country girl, the young woman is intelligent enough to keep quiet about her affairs. She is charged with incit-ing her fiance, George Weed, his brother Alma, her cousin and former fiance, .arry Heath; and her brother Kenneth Murphy, to their cruel at tack upon a man who had for three years sought her hand in marriage Avarice is alleged as the motive.

Thus are all the elements of a melodrama present in her case. Taking advantage of them, she might, with a newspaper interview, clothe herself with all that morbid glamor so dear to with all that morbid glamor so dear to a sensation-loving public. Yet she prefers to keep her own counsel, re-fusing to make the simplest state ments about the affairs and referring all questioners to her lawyers. The hanging of Sellers, June 18, by some of his neighboring ranchmen near Cody, Neb., created a sensation for a time, but when four men charged with the crime were put in jail and bound over to the district court, the excitement subsided. Now it is excitement subsided. Now it is charged by John M. Tucker, county attorney, that Miss Murphy incited and procured the murder of Sellers, her alleged motive being to get pos-session of $7,000 of insurance policies and considerable personal property which she is said to have believed would be bequeathed to her upon the death of Sellers.

At the time of the killing of Sellers, it was rumored that one man in the party that hanged him to a telegraph pole was inspired by jealousy, he be-ing a suitor of the girl.

Wife to Take $30 In Cheap Stuff In Order to Get a "Fall to Pieces" Rocking Chair.

While the straight out and out mail order houses are receiving the attention of merchants throughout the land, there are dozens of concerns, also mail insurance, has been heid for the dis. order houses, whose operations collec-trict court. The presiding judge de-tively are perhaps more harmful to the clared that Miss Murphy is just as people and the merchants than are the sell direct catalogue houses. These concerns are the premium givers which employ canvassers to organize clubs for teas and coffees, spices, extracts and dozens of other articles, paying either a cash commission or giving some pre-mium, such as sets of dishes, house-mlum, such as sets of dishes, nouse-hold furniture, jewelry and the like. There is scarcely a city in the land of any size but has one or more of these establishments, each doing con-siderable business. Some of these houses pay hundreds of thousands of dollars a year for advertising space in the women's papers. The annual vol-ume of business of some of these concerns exceed that of Chicago's biggest catalogue house. Others do business exceeding a million dollars annually. The catalogues published only go into the hands of agents along with samis not a city or hamlet where these concerns do not transact business. They generally work on the premium plan-a premium to the purchaser of their goods and a premium to the purchase of their goods and a premium to the can-vasser. The goods handled are of an inferior class. They escape the inves-tigation of the pure food officials because shipments are made direct to the consumer or to the agent who does the distributing, and no inspector has the audacity to take goods for analysis that go in this manner to a consumer. Various plans have been devised to head off the operations of these con-cerns. So far no adequate plan has been discovered that will stand the tests of the higher courts. Strange to say, frequently wives of merchants are found among the patrons of these concerns. Not long ago the wife of a storekeeper purchased through one club more than $30 worth of stuff, a better quality of which her husband carried in stock, just to get a cheap rocking chair, and then gave to her neighbors a lot of soaps, extracts and other goods she received in order to keep it out of her husband's sight. Funny game, is it not? But what can be done about it?-Agricultural Southwest.

IRONCLAD RULE IN TRADE.

Best One Is, Have No Such Rule-Case In Point.

Of all ironclad rules in business only one is fit to the up to, and that is to have no such rules.

PNEUMONIA.

Its Best Friend Is a Bad Cold That H Been Neglected.

Pneumonia is not dreaded mer ly for its power to seize and k quickly, but also for its apparen power to select the most unlike victims. Most persons have live through the shock of hearing the some friend had suddenly died of pneumonia-a friend from whom they had parted but a few days c even hours before, leaving him a what seemed the highest notch o physical well being and perhap protesting that he did not know what illness meant. This disease is most dangerous t The apparently strong, robust peo ple of heavy weight and hearty ap petite, although it may attack an one, for its germs are omnipresent The strong and full blooded indi vidual who is at the same time something overweight is especially in danger of pneumonia and should take particular care to avoid it. If his diet is too heavy—and that may safely be assumed—it should be ruthlessly cut down, especially as to meat and the elimination of alcohol. The weighing scale is a good friend to such a person and should be consulted regularly. The scale does not argue about that extra pound or two-it proves it-and aft-er a weight in accordance with age and height has been determined it can be maintained in most cases by the exercise of a little self control.

There are hosts of people who indolently permit themselves to get heavy and even fat in the winter months. They are the people who should be constantly reminded, "The pneumonia germ 'll git yer if yer don't watch out!"

The condition of the man must be recognized as more important than the presence of the germ, as proved by the fact that there is less mortality among the thin and ap-parently delicate than among the stout and full blooded.

Some of the phrases used by the laity on this subject have, after all, more sense than nonsense in them. It is said that some one is "threat-ened with pneumonia" or that a "bad cold ran into pneumonia," and in a sense it is true, for every one is "threatened" with pneumonia; that is to say, the germ is always present and ready and willing to begin its work if one only gives it a chance.

The most successful way to give it a chance is to neglect a bad cold and thus break down the natura defenses of the system. If every bad cold were met with starvation physic and fresh air it would de-part in disgust, and the lurking pneumonia with it, for the large burglar cannot get in through a hole which has refused to admit the smaller one.-Youth's Companion.

Wicker Baskets.

One of the largest imports from Russia into America is willow clothesbaskets. The huge hampers so commonly in use are nearly all made in central Russia by peasants, although some come from the Danube valley, and there is considerable domestic manufacture. The importations last year exceeded a million dollars' worth. Osier willow, from which they are made, has been worked by Russian peasants for centuries and was formerly the material from which they wove their houses. The method of cutting, peeling, twisting and manipu-lating the withes is handed down from father to son .- Chicago Record-Herald.

Crossed by the Corpse. Most of Walthamstow is too modern to have much mystery about it, but the Walthamstow strip" of Leyton preserves the memory of a curious old rule. Barely a hundred yards broad, this strip of land, belonging to Wal thamstow parish, ran right across Leyton from the les to Snaresbrook, par allel with the southern border of Wal thamstow. How came Leyton to b rossed by this alien strip? Leyton it was said, had once refused to bury a body found in the lea; Walthamstov came for ard to do it. And in such cases is the rule that the voluncases is the rule that the vota-teering parish might take from the as much land right through to other the other side as the men who carried the corpse could cover walking in line hand in hand arms extended. The inconvenient result worried both parishes until the growth of population made new parishes necessary.—London Chronicle.

Yet. He-ls Maud thirty yet? She-Yes, yet.-Boston Transcript.

All about me in the city I see men who have given up the battle in the turmoil of trade. I see men broken and dispirited, men who have abandoned hope and embraced despair. Henceforth for them there will be no sun shining through their cypress trees. All ahead is blackness and oblivion.

They are the wreckage that floats up from the great sea of endeavor, the de-bris of commercialism. Upon the bris of commercialism. Upon the shore of failure there lie thousands of these wrecked hopes that now are symbols of despair, but upon that long shore line cannot be found one man with hope in his heart.

Hope is an old friend. It comes to us at cradle time and will be constant and true, even beyond the grave, if we will but make a confidant and a companton of it. Despair is a stranger that comes to us later in life to give tears to our eyes and aching pains to our hearts.

Despair usurps the place of happi-ness and, rude beyond measure, drives from the citadel of our being all those things that make life glad and happy and worth living. And when all the dear things of our being have been beaten out of us by this monster it gives nothing in return but sorrow and bitterness and woe.

Be on your guard, madam. despair leaves its visiting card at your front door take warning lest it come again and again and ruin your life.

Jack knew Weed and invited him into the house. Weed had said he was making a social call. Weed asked Sellers, who was in bed in an adjoining room, to get up and come into the room where Jack and Weed were, but Sellers excused himself by saving he was not feeling well. Fifteen minutes later, Jack says, a party of men, composed of Kenneth Murphy, Harry Heath and Alma Weed, came to the Jack home. They were armed and they covered Jack and commanded him to remain in the room where he was. George Weed told Sellers to get up.

"We are after you," he said, ac cording to the affidavit of the county attorney. Sellers arose and Harry Heath is alleged to have thrown a rope around his neck and pulled it tight, and George Weed, Heath, Man phy and Alma Weed are charged wit having dragged Sellers out of the house to a nearby telephone pole and hanged him.
