Cabin Logs Taken to Hodgenville

Cabin of the Great Commoner's Birth Reconstructed in Memorial Hall.

The logs of the Lincoln cabin, which had been stored in a Louisville, (Ky.,) warehouse for nearly four years, were taken to Hodgenville, where they were again erected into a structure like the original in which Abraham Lincoln was born. The cabin was reconstructed inside the memorial hall on the Lincoln farm, near Hodgenville, Ky., where it will probably remain for ages. The logs were taken to Hodgenville under the care and direction of T. W. Miller, superintendent of the Lincoln farm. The logs had been in Louisville since the Kentucky home-coming, which took place in 1996. They were brought from New York by a special representative sent from Louisville, and played a prominent part in the exercises during the home-coming week. The cabin as reconstructed stands in the center of Lincoln Memorial Hall, and will no doubt be the center of attraction for Americans who revere the name of Lincoln so long as the Republic lasts .- Louisville Courier

"A. Lincoln" Endorsed on a Note Insured Its Payment.

The following story is told of President Lincoln: One afternoon as he was walking through Lafayette square, Washington, he noticed a young mee who was using sulphurous language in a manner calculated to alarm the natives. Mr. Lincoln stopped the young man and asked what the trouble was. Not knowing Mr. Lincoln, the young fellow said that a blankety-blank clerk in the Treasury Department had had him trotting there for months to collect a small note and he couldn't get a blanketyblank cent out of him.

"That is pretty bad," said Mr. Lincols, "but I'll tell you what I will do. If you will promise me to give up us-ing profame words, I will guarantee to collect the note for you."

After a little further talk the proposition was agreed to. The young man produced the note and handed it to Mr. Lincoln, who wrote on the back, "A. Lincoln." When it was When it was given back to the collector and his eyes fell en the name he unconscious-ly mumbled, "Well, I'll be d——d," then quickly apologized to the President, who shook his hand, cautioned to remember the compact, as then resumed his afternoon stroll.

It is needless to say that the note was promptly liquidated when next

Lincoln's Own Story

Purnished for Publication During

Contest with Douglas in 1858. This is the brief sketch of Lin-coln's life which he furnished for publication when he was pitted against Stephen A. Douglas for Sena-tor in Illinois in 1858. It runs as follows:

"I was born in February 12, 1809, in Hardin county, Ky. My parents were both born in Virginia of undis-tinguished families—second families perhaps I should say. My mother, who died in my tenth year, was of a family of the name of Hanks, some of whom now reside in Adams, and others in Macon county, Ill. My paternal grandfather, Abraham Lincoln. emigrated from Rockingham county Va., to Kentucky about 1781 or 1872 where, a year or two later, he was killed by Indians, not in battle, but by stealth, when he was laboring to open a farm in the forest. His ancestors, who were Quakers, went to Virginia from Berks county, Pa. An effort to identify them with the New England family of the same name ended in nothing more definite than a similarity of Christian names in both families, such as Enoch, Levi, Mordecal, Solomon, Abraham and the like.

"My father at the death of his father was but 6 years of age, and he grew up literally without education. He removed from Kentucky to what is now Spencer county, Ind., in my eighth year. We reached our new nome about the time the State came into the Union. It was a wild region with many bears and other game ani-mals still in the woods. There I grew There were some schools, so called, but no qualification was eve required for a teacher beyond read writin' and cipherin' to the rule of three. If a straggler supposed to understand Latin happened to sojourn in the neighborhood he was looked upon as a wizard. There was absolutely nothing to excite ambition for education.

"Of course when I came of age I did not know much. Still, somehow, I could read, write and cipher to the rule of three; but that was all. I have not been to school since. The little advance I now have upon this store of education I have picked up from time to time under the pres re of necessity.
"I was raised to farm work, which I continued till I was 22. At 21 I came to Illinois and passed the first year in Macon county. Then I got to New Salem, at that time in Sangamon, now Menard county, where I remained a year as a sort of clerk in a store. Then came the Black Hawk War, and I was elected a captain of volunteers, ure than any I have had since. went through the campaign, was elat-ed, ran for the Legislature the same year (1832), and was beaten the only people. The next and three succeed biennial elections I was elected to the Legislature. I was not a candidate afterward. During this legislative period I had studied law, and removed to Springfield to practice it.

"In 1846 I was once elected to the lower house of Congress. Was not a candidate for re-election. From 1849 to 1854, both inclusive, practiced law more assiduously than ever before Always a Whig in politics and generally on the Whig electoral ticket, making active canvasses. I was los-ing interest in politics when the repeal of the Missouri compromise aroused me again. What I have done since then is pretty well known.

"If any personal description of me is thought desirable, it may be said I am in height six feet four inches nearly, lean in flesh, weighing on an average 180 pounds; dark complexion with coarse black hair and gray eyes. No other marks or brands recollected.

Yours very truly, A. LINCOLN."

This was written a couple of years before he ran the first time for President. "The rest," as the phrase is, "is history."

In Which the Editor Has His Say.

The Editor's Table.

There's a little box of pitts, there's a heap of lengthy bills, there's a caustic letter from a country reader. There's a ticket for a stall, There's another for a ball there's a circular for a patent feeder. There's a pack of cigarettes there are letters of regret, there's a a'proof oh highly-colored lithograph ing; there's a solitary ace, there's a photo of her face, there's an article to start the angels laughing. There's a pretty charming clock, there's some western mining stock, there are stacks of verses in every sort of meter; there's a cotton office hat, there's a badly ragged mat, there's a pipe-bowl than which nothing could be sweeter. There's a gaily ribboned cork, there's a map of all New York, there's a guide to Palestine and one to Russia. There's the latest opera score, there's a lump of iron ore, there's relics of a Harvard football rusher. There are pots of ink and glue, there are letters old and new, there are piles of old exchanges and of paper; there's a narrow pair Anthony Rouse, of shears, there's a glass of that which cheers, there's a double back John Slovinski, and pointed paper scraper, There's a partly smoked cigar, there's an ornamented jar, there's the circulation-swearer's weekly table. Oh the sight will tickle you, if you would catch a view of the editor while writing at his table.

A hungry heart, which is destined never to be fed is one of the saddest spectacles ever witnessed in this world of ours. If you have a word of praise to bestow on your wife-if it is due, bestow it. Do not wait until she is dead, and be forced through blinding tears to tell your heart in its wild throbbing that you have lived a dual life by stifling thoughts and keeping back words that would have brought a flush of pleasure to her cheeks, old as she is, and set her heart to dancing with a pleasure only known to those who have had their hungry hearts fed by words of praiss and recommendation.

The church bell---how its melodies ring, as its tones vibrate and linger. The fashionable belle. with a beau on her string, has a beautiful ring on her finger. A political ring is a very bad thing it scoops in the fool and the scholar but so pleasing a ring has no earthly thing as the ring of the hard silver dollar.

We are here to give you a news paper. Our ambition is to let no Item escape us. However we can only be in one place at a time, so if you see an item getting away from us please capture it and deliver it at the office and great shall be the reward.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Raised Me From the Grave"-Mrs. Taylor

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Blum, Texas, said in expressing her opinion of this remedy.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine raised me from the grave and I have much confidence in it. I can never say enough for your grand medicines. If anyone had offered me $100.00 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"
MRS. THOMAS TAYLOR,

Nervous exhaustion is a common occurence of modern life. The wear and tear on the nervous system is greater now than at any time since the world began. For sleeplessness, poor appetite and that "run down" feeling, nothing is so good as

Dr. Miles' Nervine

Your nerves are your life and lack of vital energy makes existence a misery. Dr. Miles' Nervine will tone up your nervous system.

Ask any druggist. If the first bottle falls to benefit, your money is returned. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.
