The cur-tains of the box caught fire and for a moment it looked as though the audi ence would go into a panic.

As a result the Turkish Government has closed the Dardanelles to the shipping of the world. The Italian attack was attempted under cover of darkness about 2 a.m. The torpedo vessels had not steamed far, however, up the strait before they were revealed by a searchlight on the fort Con Kamle. The other forts were alarmed. Murderously raked from both the European and Asiatic shores, the flotilia turned and fled at full speed back toward the Aegean Sea. The six other torpedo boats are said to have been badly damaged. The run through the Dardanelles is one of about 40 miles between coasts from one to four miles apart. Had the Italian flotilla effected the passage, it would have had the obsolete Turkish warships in the Sea of Marmora at its mercy, and a bombardment of Constantinople, at the eastern end of the sea would certainly have followed.

ARCHBALD AT THE BAR.

Appears to Answer Impeachment Charge Made Against Him.

Washington. -- Judge Robert W Archbald of the United States Commerce Court appeared before the bar of the Senate for the first time to answer the articles of impeachment presented against him by the House of Representatives.

It was an impressive scene. Nearly every Senator was in his seat, and a large number of Representatives came over from the House to look upon the remarkable proceedings. The galleries were crowded. Judge Archbald seemed to be less concerned than any other person pres-ent. He was accompanied by his senior counsel, A. S. Worthington, and hy his son, Robert W. Archbald, Jr., who practices law in Philadelphia. Young Archbald seemed to be profoundly im-pressed with the solemnity of the proceedings. The proceedings, lasting less than thirty minutes, were conducted by en-tering an order fixing August 3 as the limitation of time when all of the pleadings must be before the Senate.
