Boston.—The Boston Red Sox climbed to the baseball pinnacle. In a ten inning contest and conquest they beat the New York Giants in the eighth game by a score of 3 to 2 and became the champions of Christendom. The championship became theirs in the most teeming and spectacular of all world's series. It included eight games, was won by four games to three, took in one ten inning game and one eleven inning tie. It was a series that brings renown to the victor and the satisfaction to the vanquished of having made a splendid fight, a share of glory as well as satisfaction when the losing team succumbs after the count was three games to one against it at one time and five of the eight games took place in the other team's stronghold.

The name of Fred Snodgrass is on the lips of the baseball world, for almost alone and unaided he gave the championship of the world to the Boston Red Sox after the great Christy Mathewson had taken the measure of both Hugh Bedient and Joe Wood, in one of the bitterest and hardest fought ten-inning battles that was ever contested on any diamond.

When "Red" Murray and Fred Merkle collaborated on a run, with a double and a single off Joe Wood in the tenth inning, breaking a tie which had existed since the seventh frame, the championship appeared to have been won by the Giants. With a shred of hope remaining, Jake Stahl sent Clyde Engle to bat for Wood in the last of the tenth. Engle raised a long high fly to centre, which Snodgrass got under in plenty of time to make an easy catch, but he allowed the ball to pop out of his hands for his first error in the series.

Engle got to second on the muffed and was nearly doubled at the midway when Snodgrass tried to make up for his previous lapse by capturing Hooper's drive in splendid fashion. For a moment atty wavered and passed Yerkes. Fate toyed with the Giants once more, as if to give them another chance. Speaker popped up the first ball pitched for a foul three feet from first base. It was an easy catch for Merkle, but Chief Meyers came rushing up the line and frightened Fred off. The "fans" were yelling so madly at the time that neither player could hear Matty's frantic cries for Merkle to take the ball. It fell to the ground between them, and another golden opportunity was lost.

Tris pounded the next one pitched for a clean single to right, scoring Engle and tying the game. Yerkes took third on the play to catch Engle, while Speaker went to second, Matty purposely passed Lewis, filling the bases, and the infield was drawn in for a play to the plate, which was New York's only chance.

Gardner, however, was good for a long fly to Devore. Josh made a fine catch and put all the strength of his sturdy right arm into a despairing throw home. It was a long heave, and the ball struck the infield, dribbling with slow and agonizing bounces to Meyers, while Yerkes slid home with the run which decided the game and the championship. The Red Sox had counted twice on one hit.

Following is a summary of the lucky inning that gave the World's title to the Red Sox:

TENTH INNING (Second half)—Engle went in to bat for Wood. Snodgrass DROPPED Engle's fly and the batter reached second. Hooper fled to Snodgrass. Yerkes walked. Merkle and Meyers let Speaker's foul FALL BETWEEN THEM. Engle scored on Speaker's drive to right, and on the throw in Speaker took second. Yerkes went to third. Lewis waked and the bases were filled. Yerkes scored the winning run on Gardner's sacrifice fly to Devore.

The attendance and receipts for the world's series this year established new records. Nearly $500,000 will be divided among the owners of the Boston and New York clubs, the players and the National Commission. The total amount taken in at the gates was $490,833, contributed by 252,037 persons. These figures surpass by many thousands the most sanguine expectations of the club owners and National Commission. The series last year between the Giants and the Athletics ended in six games, when the attendance was 179,851 and the receipts $342,364.50.

According to the division of receipts as announced by the National Commission, 10 per cent. of the gross receipts are set apart for the National Commission, 60 per cent. of the net receipts of the first four games go to the players. This amount is subdivided, 60 per cent. going to the winning club and 40 to the losing. The remainder of the money is equally divided between the owners of the two clubs.

Snodgrass's muffed fly cost each New York player $1,283, as this was the difference between the winners' and the losers' end of the players' purse. The players' share for the first four games only was $147,571. Of this amount each of the twenty-two Red Sox players receives $4,024.68, while twenty-three New York players each receive $2,566.46. The National Commission receives $49,083.60 for its services, which will more than cover the cost of running the commission until next year's series.

The series represented a small fortune for the owners of the two clubs. After deducting the National Commission's and players' share $294,177.70 remained for the clubs. This represented for each club more money than was taken in by some of the major league clubs for the entire season of 154 games, and was more than sufficient to pay the club salaries and ground expenses for the year.

Charley Herzog, third baseman of the Giants, led the regulars of both teams at bat in the World's Series. Herzog in the eight games batted 400.

Next to Herzog among the regulars was Chief Meyers, who hit .358. Red Murray was in the .300 class, with an average of .523. Herzog made twelve hits and Meyers and Murray each made ten.

Of the Red Sox regulars Speaker was the only man to hit .300, and he just achieved that mark. Speaker made nine hits in the eight games. Hooper and Stahl also made nine hits apiece, but Hooper's average was .290 and Stahl's was .281.

The figures show that the Giants outbatted the Red Sox, 74 hits to 69 the averages being .270 to .225. The Giants also outscored the Bostons, 31 runs to 25, and stole twelve bases to six for the American Leaguers.

Only in fielding the Red Sox excel the Giants. The errors were 17 for the Giants to 14 for the Red Sox, the averages being: Boston, .960; New York, .951.

Herzog was the only Giant regular infielder who went through the series without making a misplay.

BOY'S FACE A MASS OF SCABBY SORES

Awful to Look At, Resinol Cured in Less Than Two Weeks.

St. Louis, Mo.—"At about 11 years of age my face was covered with a mass of scabby sores, awful to look at, and my sleep was broken up by the intense itching, and then after scratching, the sores would pain me just something awful. My mother got salves and soaps to use, but all to no purpose. A friend of mine who was Physical Director at the Y. M. C. A. at that time, told me it was a bad case, and would spread all over the body if something were not done. He gave me some Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and in less than two weeks I was cured, without leaving any marks or scars whatever." (Signed) Ernest Le Pique, Jr., 3021 Dickson.

Resinol Soap and Ointment stop itching instantly, and quickly heal eczema, rashes, ringworm and facial eruptions, as well as sores, boils, ulcers, burns, scalds, wounds, and itching, inflamed and bleeding piles. Your druggist recommends and sells them (Soap, Ointment, etc., also Shaving Stick, etc.), or sent by mail, on receipt of price, by Resinol Chemical Company, Baltimore, Md. Adv.

CERTAINLY ANIMALS THINK.

Dinks—Do you believe that animals think?
Winks—Certainly. Doesn't the car hog who takes up all the seat think he owns the car?

ONE TERRIBLE SIGHT WITH SKIN TROUBLE

442 East 103rd St., Carnasie, N. Y.—"The trouble began some months back, when my whole body began to break out into little red spots, which gradually formed into great big sores when I scratched it and turned all blue. I was affected from head to foot and also my hands and arms. I looked one terrible sight. It caused awful suffering, and I could not sleep for three or four nights at a time. It seemed to burn and itch so that I thought I should go mad. One of my friends would say, 'Rub well with vinegar,' another, 'Use sulphur and lard,' but nothing seemed to help me. One day looking through a paper I came across an advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, so I bought the same. I would take a bath in warm water using the Cuticura Soap, then use the Cuticura Ointment, which gave me instant relief. At the end of three weeks I was entirely cured of the disease." (Signed) George Vetter, January 17, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston," Adv.

Daddy's Whack-Whack.
On the occasion of her last visit to a certain Baltimore household a young matron of that city found a little friend in tears.
"What the matter with little Marie?" she asked endeavoring to console the weeping child.
"Daddy has just given me whack-whack," the youngster replied between sobs.
"Thoughtless daddy!" exclaimed the young woman, repressing a smile.
"And where did he whack-whack little Marie?"
"On the back of my tummy," was the answer.

Absorbed.
A college professor noted for his concentration of thought, returned home from a scientific meeting one night, still pondering deeply upon the subject that had been discussed. As he entered his room he heard a noise that seemed to come from under the bed.
"Is there someone there?" he asked absently.
"No, professor," answered the intruder, who knew his peculiarities.
"That's strange," muttered the professor. "I was almost sure I heard someone under the bed."

Wise Young Man.
That was a very wise Cambridge student of whom the London story tellers were talking some time ago. One of his college friends finding himself without funds, went to this Solomon of students to borrow. He found him in bed. Seizing him by the shoulder, he shook him.
"I say," he said, "are you asleep?"
"Why do you ask?" queried the other, sleepily.
"I want to borrow a sovereign."
"Yes," said the other, turning over and closing his eyes. "I'm asleep."

Mean Hint.
"Men are what their diet makes them."
"You must have been eating a great deal of sheephead fish lately."

His Point of Vantage.
The mayor of a small town was trying a negro for abusing his wife. She claimed he got drunk and tried to beat her and she hit him.
The mayor turned to his little girl and asked:
"Girl, was your father under the influence of whisky when your mother hit him?"
"No, sah! He was under the kitchen table," she very quickly replied.—Mack's National Monthly.
