> Danger of Being Too Obliging. The other evening, while attending s lecture, Howard Tomkins observed, sitting three seats in front, a man whom he recognized as an intimate acquaintance. Tomkins requested the person who occupied the seat next to bim to lean forward and poke the other individual with his stick. The polite stranger at once obligingly did so.

When the disturbed person turned his head a little to find out the cause of the poke, Tomkins discovered his mistake-that he was not the person he had taken him for. Fixing his attention steadfastly on the lecturer and affecting complete unstick to settle with the other for disturbance. There was, as may be readiimagined, a ludicrous and embarrassing scene, during the whole of which Tomkins evidenced the profoundest possible interest in the lec-

Questions and Answers. A school inspector well known for his weight was trying to extract the word "flesh" from a class. His efforts had failed, but, taking hold of his fat cheek between his thumb and forefinger, be pulled it out and asked: 'What's this?'

The unhesitating answer came promptly, "Pork, sir." The same inspector was once giving an object lesson on an umbrella. To ila small hole in it. "What is this, boys?"

"An umbrella, sir. "And what is this?" "The stick, sir."

"And these?" "The ribs, sir." "With what is it covered?"

Surely you know. What kind of an umbrella would you call it?" "An old 'un, sir."-Good Words.

When Horses Go to Sleep. It is not generally known that at least four out of every ten horses do not lie down to sleep. The horse that sleeps in a standing position rests one leg at a time, depending on the other three to sustain the weight of his body. The babit is a very dangerous one. Only a short time since a fine horse in the stables of a big manufacturing concern went to sleep while standing in his stall and fell heavily to the floor, breaking one of his legs. A great many horses are permanently injured as a result of accidents of this nature, and there is no way of enring them of the

A Portunate Mistake.

"There is a young man in Chicago," says a local physician, "who now has a good business and bright prospects who received his start in life by securing 84 that did not belong to him. 1 hardly know under what to class the incident of obtaining the money. I will let the story explain his actions. "This young man arrived in Chicago one day without funds, but with plenty of nerve and push. He wanted money to secure a meal and pay his room rent until be could secure a position. Belleving he could find some man who would help him if he told his story in a straightforward manner, he entered a eigar establishment in Dearborn street. He was about to explain his condition and ask for assistance until he could get a position when the proprietor looked up with a fierce scowl. He turned to his partner, and they held a consultation in a whisper for a few moments. 'Now, take this $4 and don't bother me about that bill again. 'That's all you will get, and now you can get out of this place in a hurry,' exclaimed the

"The young man was pushed toward the door with the money in his hand, and, try as he would, the storekeeper would not let him talk. Once in the street the bewildered fellow considered the matter in every detail and decided to keep the money. This he did, and a month or so later he again walked into the cienr store and told his story and returned the money."-Chicago News.

The Cult of Dirt.

She Had Her Way.

There is nothing like a determined spirit. As the old saying is, "What must be done can be done." The trouble with most of us is that our minds are only balf made up. A charming old lady called at a carpenter's shop the other day bearing in her hand a little basket. "Have you a comfortable chair in the shop?" she asked of the carpenter.

"A comfortable chair?" he repeated doubtfully. "Yes." she sweetly said. "I have come to stay until you have a man ready to go back to my house with me and do the work you have been prom-Ising to do for three weeks. I have brought my luncheon and a book, and If you haven't a comfortable chair I'll have the carriage cushions brought in

In a Perthshire village recently a gentleman got out his violin to entertain some friends, says the Dundee Journal. After he had played a couple of tunes he paused for a moment and said: "I hope you like the music, for I dinna pretend to be a fiddler, you know, and I never will be. I always remember what a man told me when I first began to learn the fiddle. When I started, I thought I was getting on splendidly, but one evening as I was practicing as usual he said to me: 'Yea. that's it. is't? Weel, if a' the good fiddlers in Scotland were to be ta'en an drooned i' the noo there's ne'er a hair in your head would ever get weet." "
