O'CONNELL'S COOLNESS

Saved Many Lives Once to an Emergentey.

Daniel O'Connell, the famous Irish egitator and orator, had a contempt for physical danger. On a certain occasion, as his only surviving son has recently narrated in Temple Bar, a meeting had been convened and a large crowd assembled in a room on the first floor of a building in a small city in Ireland. O'Connell was about to address the people when a gentleman, pale with fear, made his way to the platform and hoarsely whispered; "Liberator, the floor is giving way! The beams that shore it up are cracking, and we shall all fall through it in a few minutes!" "Keep silent!" said O'Connell;; then, raising his voice, he addressed the assembly: "I find that the room is too small to contain the number who desire to come in, so we must leave it and hold the meeting outside the building." At this a few rose and went out, but the majority retained their seats. Then O'Connell said: "I will tell you the truth; you are Irlahmen, therefore brave men. The floor is giving way and we must leave this room at once. If there is a panic and a rush to the door, we shall all be precipitated into the roof below, but if you obey my orders we shall be saved. Let the twelve men nearest the door go quietly out, then the next twelve, and so on until all have gone. I shall be the last to leave." His instructions were obeyed to the letter, and he walted, patient, and calm, till all had gone

Australia Sells For Food the Rubbits She Cannot Exterminate. Everybody has heard of the extraordinary ravages of the European rabbits that were introduced into Australia years ago. The animals were imported so that the British subjects who had removed to the antipodes might enjoy the sport of rabit hunting. They had more sport than they bargained for and the whole country regrets the days the little animal was introduced to Australian scenes. There are many millions of them now and the little nibblers eat the grass, destroy fields, orchards and gardens and are the great nuisance of the country. The rewards offered by the various colonies for some sure way of destroying the pest would make the fortune of the man who should discover the process. Today, however, the Australians appear to be a little more resigned under the infliction. The idea occurred to them, a while ago, that they might utilize the animal on a large scale as a commercial commod-So they set to work to kill rabbits by the thousands, can the ment and send it to Europe in cold storage. Australian canned rabbit sells at a cheap price in the British markets and is beginning to be largely consumed by those who cannot afford very often to indulge in prime beef. The Jap's Regard for the Fox. All over Japan you will see images of foxes-old foxes, with their noses chipped and their ears broken off; older foxes still, with a growth of moss on their backs; sly, alert, foxes, with noses perked smartly in the air; great fexes and little foxes, sages and clowns, all kinds and degrees-showing the prevalence of this belief in the land of the wistaria and the far, and also showing in what respect the fox is held, says a traveler. It is curious to note that in all countries the fox above all other animals has been considered to exert great influence and power. All nations have legends or which the cunning and intelligence of the fox is the theme,

THE EMINENT DIVINE'S SUNDAY DISCOURSE.

Subject: The Resurrection of Christ-The Season of Spiritual Gladness and Retreshment-Victory Over Death and the Grave-The Mission of Flowers. (Congright 1990.)

Washington, D. C.—This sermes of Dr. Taimage rings all the bells of gladness, especially appropriate at this season, when all Christendom is celebrating Christ's resurrection; text, John Xix, 41, "In the garden a new supulcher,"

Looking around the churches this morning, seeing flowers in wreaths and flowers in stars and flowers in crowns, billows of beauty, confingration of beauty, you feel as if you stood in a small heaven.

You say these flowers will fade. Yes, but You say these flowers will fade. Yes, but perhaps you may see them again. They may be immortal. The fragrance of the flower may be immortal. The fragrance of the flower may be the spirit of the flower; the body of the flower dying on earth; its spirit may appear in better worlds, I do not say it will be so, I say it may be so. The anceators of those tubercees and camelines and japonicas and jaemines and camelines and japonicas and jaemines and heliotropes were born in paradise. These apostles of beauty came down in the regular line of apostolic succession. Their ancestors during the flood, underground afterward appeared.

The world started with Edon; it will end with Eden. Heaven is called a paradise of Goil. Paradise means flowers. While theo logical geniuses in this day are trying to blot ont everything material from their idea of heaven, and, so far as I can tell, their future state is to be a floating around somewhere between the Great Hear and Cassiopeia, I should not be surprised if at last I can pick up a daisy on the everlast ing bills and hear it say. 'I am one of the giorided flowers of earth. Don't you remember me? I worshiped with you as Easter morning in 1900."

My toxt introduces us into a garden. It a manuer in the suburbs of Jerusalen owned by a wealthy goutleman of the many owned by a wealthy gentleman of Jerusalen owned by a wealthy gentleman of the name of Joseph. He belonged to the court of seventy who had condemned Christ, but he ind voted in the negative, or, being a timid man, had absented bimself when the reaching the door just as the shattered force of his strong will, a terrible accitimid man, had absented bitmself when the vote was to be taken. At great expense hi laid out the garden, it being a hot elimate I suppose there were trees broad branched and there were paths winding under these trees, and here and there were waters dripping down over the rocks into fish ponds, and there were vines and flowers blooming from the wall, and sil around the beautic of klock and arboriculture. After the fatigues of the Jerusalem courtroom, how refreshing to come into this suburban retreat, botanical and pomological!

Wandering in the garden, I behold some rocks which have on them the mark of the rocks which have on them the mark of the sculptor's chisel. I come nearer, and I find there is a subterrangan recess. From down the marble steps, and I come to a portice, over which there is an architrave portice, over which there is an architrave by the chisel cut into representations of finits and flowers. I enter the portice, On either side there are rooms—two or four or six rooms of rock, the walls of these room naving niches, each niche large enough te hold a dead body. Here is one room that is especially wealthy of sculpture.

The fact is that Joseph realizes he cannot always wait this garden, find he has provided this place for his inst slumber. On what to beautiful spot in which to wait for vided this place for his last slumber. Ohe what a beautiful spot in which to wait for the coming of the resurrection! Mark wet this tomb, for it is to be the most celebrated tomb in all the ages. Catacombs of Egypt, tomb of Napoleon, Mahai Taj of India, nothing compared with it. Christ hajust been murdered, and His body will be thrown to the dogs and the ravens, like other crucified bodies, unless there be prompt and efficient hindrance. Joseph the owner of this mausoleum in the rocks. the owner of this mausoleum in the rocka begs for the body of Carist. the poor, mutilated frame from the dust and blood, shrouds it and performes it. It think that regular embalmment was omitted. When in olden time a body was to be embalmed, the pricest, with some pretension of medical skill, would point out the place between the ribs where the incision must be made, and then the operator having made the facision, ran leat he be slain for a violation of the dead. Then the other priests would come with salt of niter and cassia and wine of paim tree and complete the embalmment. But I think this embalmment of the body of Christ was omitted. It would have raised another contention and another riot.

The funeral hastens on, Present. I think, Joseph, the owner of the mansolistic, Nicodemus, the wealthy man whe had brought the splies, and the two Marrs. No organ dirge, no plames, no catafaique Heavy burden for two men as they carry Christ's body down the marble stairs and into the portice and lift the dead weight to the level of the niche in the rock and push the body of Christ into the only pleasant resting place it ever had. Coming forth from the portice, they close the door of rock against the recess.

The government, afraid that the disciples may steal the body of Christ into the only pleasant resting place it ever had. Coming forth from the portice, they close the door of rock against the recess.

The government, afraid that the disciples may steal the body of Christ and play resurrection, order the seal of the sanbedrin to be put upon the door of the tomb, the violation of that seal, like the violation of the seal of the Rovernment of the United States or Great Britain, to be followed with great punishment. the United States or Great Britain, to be followed with great punishment. A company of soldiers from the tower of Antonia is detailed to stand guard.

At the door of the mansoleum a fight takes places which decides the question for all graveyards and cemeteries. Sword of lightning against sword of steel. Angel against military. No seal of letter was ever more easily broken than that seal of the sanhedrin on the door of the tomb. The dead hody in the niche in the rock begins to move in its shroud of fine linen, slides down upon the payement, moves out of the portice, appears in the doorway, advances into the open air, comes up the marble steps. Having left His nortuary attire behind Him, He comes forth in workman's garb, as I take it, from the fact that the women mistook Him for the gardener. That day the grave received such shat-

Hosanan!
Some things strike my observation while standing in this garden with a new sepaicher. And, dirst, post mortem learning in contrast with ante mortem ignomintes. If they could have afforded Christ such a ciselly sepailabler, why could not they have given Himan earthly residence? Will they give this piece of marble to a dead Christ instead of a soft pillow for the living Jesus; If they had expended half the value of that tomb to make Christ comfortable, it would not have been so sad a story. He asked bread; they gave Him a stone.

Christ, like most of the world's benefactors, was approximated testion after He was dead. Westminster Abbey and monumental Greenwood are the world's attempt to atone by honors to the dead for wrongs of the living. Pool's corner in Westminster Abbey attempts to pay for the sufferings of Grub street.

Go through that Poet's corner in Westminister abbey. There is Handel, the great musicalean, from whose music you hear today; but while I took at his statue I cannot help but think of the dissords with which his featow musicans tried to destree him.

musician, from whose music you hear to-day; but while I look at his statue I cannot help but think of the discords with which his follow musicians tried to destroy him. There is the tomb of John Pryden, a beautiful monument; but I cannot help but think at seventy years of age he wrots of his heling oppressed in fortune and of the contract that he had just made for a thousand verses at sixpence a line. And there, too, you find the monument of Samuel Butler, the author of "Hudibras," but while I look at his monument in Poet's corner I cannot but ask investif where he died. In a garrot. There I see the costly tablet to the Poet's corner—the castly tablet to one of whom the colebrated Waller wrots: "The old biled schoolmaster, John Milton, has just issued a tedious poem on the fall of man. If the length of it be no virtue, it has none." There is a heautiful monument to Sheridan. Poor Sheriden! If he could have only discounted that mosument for a matton chop!

Oh, you untital children, do not give your parents so much tombstone, but a few more blanksts—less funeral and more bedroom! If the per cent, of the money we now spend on Buros's banquets could have been expended in making the living Reotch poot comfortable, he would not have been barried with the dradgery of an excisemae. Horace Greeley, cutrageously abused while living, when dead is followed.

toward 'treen wood by the Presucce of tile United States and the leading men of the army and bavy. Massachusetts tries to atone at the grave of Charles Summer for the Ignominions resolutions with which her Legislature denounced the living Senator. Do you think that the tomb at Springfield can pay for Booth's builet?

Oh, do justice to the living! All the justice you do them you must do this side the gates of the Necropolis. They cannot wake up to count the number of carriages at the obsequies or to notice the polish of the Aberdeen granite orto read epitaphial commemoration. Gentieman's mansoleum in the suburbe of Jerusaleum cannot pay for Bethlehem manger and Calvarean cross and Pilate's ruffian judiciary. Post mortem honors cannot atone for ante-mortem ignominies.

Again, standing in this garden of the sepulcher, I am impressed with the fact that floral and arborescent decorations are appropriate for the place of the dead. We are giad that among flowers and scuiptural adornments Christ speut the short time of His inhumation.

adornments Christ spent the short time of His inhumation.

I cannot understand what I sometimes see in the newspapers where the obsequies are announced and the Iriends say in con-nection with it, "Send no flowers." Bather, if the means allow—I say if the means allow—strew the casket with flowers, the hearse with flowers, the grave with flowers, Put them on the brow—it will suggest coronation; in their hand—it will mean victory.

Christ was buried in a garden. Flowers mean resurrection. Death is sail enough anyhow. Let conservatory and arboretum contribute to its alleviation. The barebell will ring the victory; the passion flower will express the sympathy; the daffold will kindle its lamp and illume the darkness. The cluster of asters will be the constellation. Your little child loved flowers when she was living. Put them in her hand now that she can go rorth no more and pluck them for berself. On sonsbling days take a fresh garland and put it shiny days take a fresh garland and put it shiny days thee a fresh garland and put it over the still heart.

Brooklyn has no grander glory than its Greenwood, nor Beston than its Mount Auburn, nor Philadelphia than its Laurel Hil, nor Channatt than its Spring Grove, nor San Francisco than its Lone Mountain. But what shall we say to those country graveyards with the vines broken down and the slab aslant and the mound caved in and the graves possible for the and the sam asimir and the mostal evectin and the grass a pasture ground for the sexton's entitle? Indeed, were your father and mother of so little worth that you cannot afford to take care of their ashes? Some day turn out all bands and straighter the slab and bank up the mound and cut away the weeds and plant the abrubs and flow

Some day you will want to lie down to your last slumber. You cannot expect any respect for your bones if you have no deference for the bones of your ancestry. Do you think those relies are of no importance? You will see of bow much importance they are in the day when the archangel takes out his trumpet. Turn all your cemeteries into gardens.

Again, standing in this garden of the new sepaleber, I am impressed with the dignity of private and unpretending obsequies.

new sepulcher, I am impressed with the dignity of private and unprotending obsequies.

Joseph was mourner, sexton, liveryman—had entire charge of everything. Only four people at the burial of the King of the Universe! Oh, let this be consolitory to those who through lack of means or through lack of acquaintance have but little demonstration of grief at the graves of their loved ones. Long line of gliltering equipage, two rows of sliver handles, cashet of richest woos, palibearers gloved and scarfed, are not necessary. If there he six at the grave, Christ looks down from heaven and remembers that is two more than were at His obsequies.

Not recognizing this idea, how many smail properties are scattered and widow-hood and orphanage go forth into cold charity! The departed left a small property, which would have been enough to keep the family together until they could take care of themselves, but the financial expenses absorbed everything. That went for crape which ought to have gone for bread. A man of moderate means can hardly afford to die in any of our great cities. By all means, do honor to the departed, but do not consider toneral pageant ns necessary. No one was ever more lovingly and tenderly put away to sepulcher than Christ our Lord, but there were only four people in the procession.

Again, standing in this garden with a new sepulcher, I am impressed with the fact that you cannot keep the dead down. Seal of sanbedria, company of solders from the tower of Antonia, floor of rock, cannot keep Christ in the crypts. Come out and come up He did. Profiguration. First fruits of them that slept. Just as certainly as we go down into the dust, just so certainly we will come up again. Though and the granite of the mountains were piled on as we will rise. Though buried amid ly as we go down into the dust, just so certainly we will come up again. Though all the granite of the mountains were piled on us we will rise. Though buried amid the cerals of the deepest cavern of the Atlantic Ocean, we will come to the surface. With these eyes we may not look into the face of the noonday sin, but we shall have stronger vision, because the tamest thing in the land to which we go will be brighter than the san. We shall have bodies with the speed of the lightning. Our bodies improved, energized, swiftened, clarified—mortality, immortality. The door of the gravetaken off its hinges and fung flat into the dust.

door of the grave taken on its langes and fung flat fato the dust.

Oh, my brothren, death and the grave are not so much as they used to be; for while wandering in this garden with the new sepulcher I find that the vines and new sepulcher I find that the vines and flowers of the garden have completely covered up the tomb. Instead of one garden there are four gardens, opening into each other—garden of Eden, garden of the world's sepulcher, garden of the carth's regeneration, garden of beaven. Four gardens. Bloom, O carth! Bloom, O heaven! Oh, my friends, wake up to gladness on this Easter morning! This day, if I interpret it right, means joy—it means peace with heaven, and it means peace with ail the world.

Oh, bring more flowers! Wreathe them Oh, bring more flowers! Wreathe them around the brasen throat of the cannon, plant them in the desert, that it may be som like the rose; braid them into the mane of the returned war charger. No more red dublias of human blood. Give us white lilies of peace. All around the earth strew Easter flowers. And soon the rough voyage of the church militant will be ended, and she will sail up the heavenly harbor, scarred with many a conflict, but the flags of triumph floating from her topgallants. All heaven will come out to gallants. All heaven will come out to greet her into port, and with a long re-verborating alout of welcome will say: "There she comes up the bay, the glorious old ship Zion! After tempestuous voyage she drops anchor within the veil."

FAMOUS RAT-HUNTERS.

Consum! Sport Pursued by Natives of Pacific Islands.

The native rat has a great enemy. When brought into competition with the common brown rat of Europe, introduced by ships throughout the world, it usually disappears an example of the evils of the influx of aliens, says Chambers' Journal, 'The depredations of the latter are such that in Funafuti the indigenous breed has been driven from the village and indeed almost exterminated upon the main islet by the foreign rat; in many of the islands it has been completely rooted out. Even more deadly onslaught has been carried on against K by the domestic cats, which, orginally brought over by missionaries and afterward migrating to the bush, have proved of service in destroying the rats. In the old days, when unchecked, rats literally overran most of the islands of the Pacific. The natives shoot the rats for sport. Fanna gooma, or rat shooting, as practiced on Hoonga in the Tonga group, apparently was an amusement reserved for chiefs, and was undertaken with much ceremony. Attracted by bait previously distributed, the rats were shot with formid able unfeathered arrows six feet long. The game was not an individual but a party affair, the side first killing ten rats were accounted the winner, and if the rats were plentiful three or four games were generally played.

It is as follows: "In pursuance of your request for information, as to the dairy and food division of this department for the past year, in its efforts to enforce the eleomarga in and renovated butter laws enacted in 1899, I respec fully report: That immediately upon the law going into effect there were printed and distributed to dealers throu bout the State 10,000 copies of the eleomargarin law, and 10,000 copies of the renovated butter law. buitable record books were prepared and form of license and placards were printed, and agents were instructed to take samples of suspected goods for analysis. , The report of the commissioner shows that during year ending December 21, 1809, 402 suspected samples of o'comargaria were taken and analyzed, seventy-five of these were found butter and 300 were oleomargarin. The department has been embarrassed in its dealing with the oleomargarin question owing to a contest in the courts over the color clause of the late law. This provision has been contested both in Pittsburg and Philadelphia, and cases were brought to each city to test its co-stitutionality. Decisions by the lower sourts sustaining the law were rendered in December, 1893, and it January 1900. These cases were appealed to the Superior Court, and one Philadelphicense was argued in March and a decision is expected in the course of a week or two when the court convenes. Every effort ha been made to jush these cases, and the courts, at the request of our attorneys, have advanced them on the list. If a favorable decision is handed down the way will then be clear for a more vigorous enforcement of the law, and pending this dicision the department is collecting evidence and is al ready to bring additional presecutions of soon as the law is declared to be constitu-tional. The courts of Philadelphia and Pitts burg are greatly burdened with the multitude of cases that they are called upon to hear, and our attorneys in Philadelphia, order to secure prompt hearing, have communicated with the District Attorney, requesting that the cases be heard at as early date as possible. The eleomargarin case however, are only a portion of the large number that the Pure Food Department called upon to bring to trial. Printed the Wrong Portrait. After Hon. Foster M. Voorhees was elected governor of New Jersey th: unual portraits of him were published in the newspapers. They made an interesting variety. In one instance an enterprising journal drew upon its cablnet and used a cut of the president of a small western university showing a young man with the hair carefully parted and curled, and with eye-glasses that stood prominently in eighty pounds of "actual" Potthe picture. He looked about 20 years of age and the face was smooth and amiling. The governor had a good laugh over this particular picture as well as over some of the other inter- taining 8% "actual" Potash sting variations or He is not an old man by any means, being only 43, but he has the look of a serious student and man of affairs.
