A JAPANESE DINNER.

HOW THE DISTASTEFUL FOOD IS SERVED AND EATEN.

Squatting Before Tables Six Inches High, One Wrestles With Chopsticks and Tiny Bowls, the While Waited Upon by Barefooted Maids.

To an American given to stiff joints and corpulency a Japanese dinner is a tedious experience, especially when it is used to business lunches and the like.

Western customs and usages have found their way into many homes of the wealthy, whose dinners and lunches are the counterpart of those with which we are all familiar.

Before leaving the trays on the tables they set them on the floor, and dropping on their knees, make their bows, touching their foreheads to the floor.

The host sets an example by removing the covers from the tiny bowls, and the guest, doing likewise, finds an assortment of food quite new and generally most distasteful.

The second course is a small fish boiled whole. One has a chance here to get in some fine play with the chopsticks—umami, bits of fowl ballad of potatoes or lotus roots, a salad of onions, pens and string beans, with a few leaves of lettuce; sunomono, sea snails served with eggplant mashed, and chawan mushi, a thick soup made of fish and vegetables, with mushrooms for a relish.

The third course is a curry of rice and pickled vegetables, and for a fourth and final course you have sobo, a sort of buckwheat vermicelli served with shirako, a sweet liquor called mirin; chiriko, rice cakes, seaweed and confectionery of all sorts, which are very sweet and tasteless.

During the dinner each guest rises and proposes the health of the host and one other guest until the whole party is disposed of. This custom is rather hard on the guests, for sake is very stuff and goes to one's head more quickly than our own brandy.

Johnny Smith," cried the teacher to the boy who had been impertinent, "you know entirely too much. You will remain in after school. 'Gee Whizz!' said Johnnie; 'you kep' me in yestidy 'cause I didn't know enough.'"

A DISMAL FAILURE.

The Last John He Tried to Play on His Dear Wife.

"I don't think I'll try any more practical jokes on my wife. They don't pay out well."

"You see, you have a habit of holding the window in our room every night. As I usually go to bed last, she depends on me to lock it. Sometimes I forget it, and then there's a wild squabble. Prudently she wakes me up in the night and asks me to see if it is open. If I don't, she must at me until morning. A night or two ago I resolved to give her a hard scare. I rolled up a lot of old newspapers into a long bundle and laid the package down by the window. Of course she was asleep and didn't hear me. Then I opened the window a little ways and crept into bed. Some time after midnight she nudged me and said: 'Jim, I'm sure you didn't open that window. It's like a bake oven in the room. Get up and see.' So I got up, went to the window and threw the sash as high as it would go. As I did so I gave a little shriek and then flung my bundle down to the walk below. It struck with a dull thud, and I dodged behind the curtain to await developments. The room was very dark, and I couldn't see my wife, but I heard her raise herself to a sitting posture. Then she spoke. 'Your old Jim,' she quietly said, 'he's tumbled out of the window in his mazelost nightgirt. What a spectacle he'll be when they find him in the morning!' Then she lay down again and went to sleep."

"What did you do?" "Stood there like a fool for a minute or two and then sneaked into bed."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ONE MEAL A DAY.

Pronounced a Secret of Human Health and Happiness.

It is by no means impossible that the newest world lecturer will allude to the delays of the single meal reform. The one meal a day plan was successfully practiced by some 80,000,000 men of the healthiest, wealthiest and most intelligent nations of antiquity for nearly 12,000 years.

There would be time for play, for reading, for the enjoyment of art and entertaining conversation.

At one time when the late George Drew Barrymore was playing in San Francisco a fabulous sum was offered her by a local theater for her services for a few weeks. The offer was exceedingly tempting, but her contract with Charles Frohman stood in the way.

Albert disappointed, Mrs. Barrymore at once sent this characteristic reply: Charles Frohman, New York City: Oh! GEORGE DREW BARRYMORE.

A Mighty Old Table. A wealthy man was once exhibiting proudly to a younger acquaintance a table which he had bought. He said it was 600 years old.

Our First Planos. The first pianos known in America were imported from London in 1784 by John Jacob Astor, but as they could not stand the rigors of this climate they soon became ruined. This fact led to the attempt to build pianos in this country, and in the early part of the nineteenth century pianos made their appearance.
