THE LEADERS IN THE COMING STRUGGLE

Graphic Pen Pictures of the Men of Three Parties Who Will Conduct Affairs At Harrisburg.

STRIKING ROMANCES IN REAL LIFE.

How These Leaders Rose From the Ranks to Positions of Command. Their Characteristics and Traits as Seen Apart From Party-Notions—Life Stories and Struggles of Men Whose Names Are Political Household Words.

The approaching session of the Pennsylvania legislature promises to be one of the most interesting held in recent years. In addition to the work of electing a United States senator a great deal of important legislation will come before it.

The real work of a session, its arrangement and direction, is always in the hands of a few men who are leaders by virtue of position, experience or natural ability. The coming session will be no exception in this particular, the only difference being that with these parties in the field there will be a greater display of ability, energy and generalship than has ever been seen in the history of Pennsylvania.

The three parties referred to are the "Stalwart" Republicans, the "Independent" Republicans, and the Democrats. A study of the field on the eve of the assembling indicates that the active leadership in each of these parties will devolve upon a very few men. They will be energetic, and a study of the men at the head of each division indicates that this leadership will be in most conspicuous figures.

A conspicuous feature in the lives of this handful of men is that with one or two exceptions they have carved their way to political, professional or financial eminence by hard work. They are men from the ranks, and therefore best fitted to direct and lead.

The following sketch of their lives is purely biographical, and has been prepared without partisan bias. These leaders are described as they appear in social life, and to those who know their life.

On the part of the "Stalwart" Republicans the leading figure is Commissioner Daniel W. Dorman, ex-state senator, ex-congressman of Philadelphia, and an ex-superintendent of the Pennsylvania State Prison. He is a man of high ability and high character, and has been a leader in every sense of the word. He is a man of high ability and high character, and has been a leader in every sense of the word.

On the part of the "Independent" Republicans the leading figure is Governor Stewart W. Wallace, ex-governor of Pennsylvania, and a man of high ability and high character. He is a man of high ability and high character, and has been a leader in every sense of the word.

On the part of the Democrats the leading figure is Governor George W. Pennypacker, ex-governor of Pennsylvania, and a man of high ability and high character. He is a man of high ability and high character, and has been a leader in every sense of the word.

When an individual is in a position of leadership, it is his duty to be a leader in every sense of the word. He should be energetic, and a study of the men at the head of each division indicates that this leadership will be in most conspicuous figures.

Within a few years his eminence covered the country. He gained the reputation of a leader in every sense of the word. He is a man of high ability and high character, and has been a leader in every sense of the word.
